Arboreal Symbolism in European Art, 1300—1800

Katherine T. Brown Walsh University
Series: Routledge Research in Art and Religion
Arboreal Symbolism in European Art, 1300—1800 probes the significance of trees in religious iconography of Western art. Based in the disciplines of art history, botany, and theology, this study focuses on selected works of art in which tree forms embody and reflect Christian themes. Through this triple lens, Brown examines trees that early modern artists rendered as sacred symbols—symbols with origins in the Old Testament, New Testament, Greek and Roman cultures, and early medieval legends. This book will interest scholars in art history, religion, humanities, and interdisciplinary studies.

Interrogating the Visual Culture of Trumpism

Edited by Grant Hamming Virginia Tech, USA, Natalie E. Phillips Ball State University, USA
Series: Routledge Research in Art and Politics

Bringing together scholars from art history, visual studies, and related disciplines, this edited volume asks why Trumpism looks the way it does and what that look means for American – and global – society. Taken as a whole, the essays in this book examine Trumpist visuality from the seemingly trivial to the starkly horrifying, as well as offering a measured sense of the various resistances and responses that have characterised artistic responses to Trump from the beginning of his prominence. The book will be of interest to scholars working in art history, visual culture, American studies, and cultural and media studies.

Intermedial Art Practices as Cultural Resilience

Edited by Lindsay Blair University of the Highlands and Islands, UK, Camille Manfredi
Series: Routledge Advances in Art and Visual Studies

This innovative collection of essays is focused on the idea of transmedialization: the ways that the traditional forms of the predominantly oral cultures of Scotland and Brittany (poetry, song and story) can be transformed by the use of hybrid forms and new digital technologies. The volume invites readers from a range of disciplines – music, art, literature, history, cultural memory studies, anthropology or media studies – to consider how an intermedial aesthetics of the edge can enable these distinctive cultures to thrive. The book will be of interest to scholars working in art history, literature, film studies, media studies, music, cultural theory, and philosophy.

Photography, Ecology and Historical Change in the Anthropocene

Activating Archives

Bergit Arends

The Courtauld Institute of Art, UK

Series: Photography, Place, Environment

Moving beyond existing scholarship, this book connects photography, archives, ecology, and historical change, and critically applies the Anthropocene as framework to the in-depth study of artists' projects. It discards single modes of seeing environmental transformations in favour of a multiple and de-centred environmental imagination. The book will be of interest to scholars working in photography, archive studies, art history, visual culture, environmental humanities, and ecocriticism.

Diasporic Visual Art

The Afro-Descendant Woman in Latin American Diasporic Visual Art

Alice Eden

Series: British Art: Histories and Interpretations since 1700

This book proposes new understandings of modern life in Britain by bringing constructs of female spirituality centre stage and examining three 'forgotten' artists identified with the Pre-Raphaelites and Victorianism. Thomas Cooper Gotch, Robert Anning Bell, and Frederick Cayley Robinson are restituted squarely within the tumultuous social and cultural changes of the period. Becoming visible again, in more inclusive histories, allows such artists not only to re-inhabit but to re-shape narratives of modernism, reanimating the scholarly discourse and creating a dynamic cultural history of modern Britain expressed through their striking visions of womanhood.

The Art of the Eurasian Steppe

The Art of the Eurasian Steppe is a contextual analysis which traces the stylistic transformation of artefacts depicting animals from various cultures of the Eurasian steppe, and investigates its possible influence on Central and Northern European art. A wide range of individual cultures are “visited” and their historic, cultural and geographic specifics are explored. The survey in this book is based on a chronological structure, including an East-West geographic direction. This accommodates to position described changes of the period. Becoming visible again, in more inclusive histories, allows such artists not only to re-inhabit but to re-shape narratives of modernism, reanimating the scholarly discourse and creating a dynamic cultural history of modern Britain expressed through their striking visions of womanhood.

Transnational Visual Activism for Women’s Reproductive Rights

My Body, My Choice

Edited by Basia Sliwinska Art History Institute (NOVA FCSH, Lisbon), Portugal

Focusing on art practices that advocate, raise consciousness and educate about the human right to reproductive health, this book analyses and compares forms of feminist artivism to interrogate bodily rights while closely examining the lived experiences of women and their right of free choice. The book will be of interest to students and scholars studying art history, gender studies, and women’s studies.
Bob Dylan on Film
The Intersection of Music and Visuals

Jonathan Hodgers
Series: Ashgate Screen Music Series

This book delves into the fascinating convergence of Bob Dylan's life and cinema, both behind and in front of the camera. From the groundbreaking Dont Look Back in 1967 to the enigmatic Masked and Anonymous in 2003, Dylan's cinematic endeavours stand as bold additions to his creative tapestry, drawing from cinematic influences and his own songwriting. Despite being on the fringes of Dylan's scholarship, a deeper look into his cinematic work reveals an underrated auteur who blurs the boundaries between literature, music, and film. This book provides a fresh perspective on the multifaceted artist whose innovation knows no limits.

David Lynch
Sonic Style

Robert Wiessner
Series: Filmmakers and Their Soundtracks

Director David Lynch is best known for films that channel the uncanny and the weird into a distinct ‘Lynchian’ aesthetic, in which sound and music play a key role. Lynch not only writes his intended sounds into the script, but also often takes on the role of creating the sounds himself. This concise study explores what makes Lynch’s sonic imprint distinct, breaking down three different sound styles that create Lynch’s sound aesthetic across his films. Showing how sound offers new insights into the aesthetic and narrative work of Lynch’s filmmaking, this book highlights new dimensions in the work of a key American auteur, and deconstructs the process of building a unique sound world.

Debussy, Bergson and the Music of ‘la duree’

Charles Frantz

Charles Frantz provides a quantitative and qualitative analysis of Debussy’s music through the lens of Bergson’s philosophical perspective of durée, revealing his ‘revolution’ in musical time. Debussy’s use of open forms and Golden Sections create a time world of an expanded present, never ceasing. Bergson’s perception of real time is ever changing bringing the past into the present and open to unforeseen novelty. This book is intended primarily for scholars in the disciplines of musicology, music theory and philosophy and can be used as a text for upper level undergraduate or graduate courses in musicology or music theory.

Cultural Narratives of Old Age in the Lives, Work, and Reception of Old Musicians

Joseph Strauss

This book conceives of old age as a cultural formation rather than a biomedical condition, a distinctive and valuable way of being in the world rather than a tragic scene of decline, senescence, and death. It is the first book to bring this central insight of Age Studies to the study of music. It identifies and critiques ageist cultural scripts for the performance of old age, including those embodied on the operatic stage. Beyond its critique of ageist reception of musicking by old composers, performers, and listeners, it suggests ways of composing, performing, and listening oldly, that is, ways of musicking that are shaped by the particularities of the old body and mind.

Holly Unrue, John Banks, Winnie Dong, Heather Haeger
Series: Routledge Undergraduate Research Series

Designing and Implementing a Successful Undergraduate Research, Scholarship, and Creative Activity Program is designed as a resource for faculty, administrators and university leaders interested in developing new, or expanding existing, undergraduate research programs. Addressing key issues through real-world experience, the authors show how to build effective cross-disciplinary undergraduate research programs with positive impacts for students and faculty.
Edward MacDowell’s European Piano Music
The Forging of an American Composer
Paul Bertagnolli
Series: Routledge Research in Music
Edward MacDowell’s European Piano Music is a critical study of the piano music that MacDowell composed during his European sojourn (1876-1888), steeped in reception history and with a special emphasis on programmaticism. The book’s content and methodology would appeal most directly to specialists within the broad fields of musicology and music theory, particularly within American art music and its composers; nineteenth century music; program music; reception history; and piano literature.

Explorations in Music Theory
Harmony, Musicianship, Improvisation
Dariusz Terefenko, Benjamin Wadsworth
Explorations in Music Theory: Harmony, Musicianship, Improvisation offers an innovative learning approach to music theory, centered on instrumental skills, improvisation, and composition. Providing a comprehensive textbook to support music theory curricula, along with an accompanying workbook, it includes extensive performance-based exercises in each chapter, alongside written theory and analysis. Designed to support multiple learning modalities, and incorporating repertoire from a diverse array of composers, this book offers instructors and students a comprehensive and engaging foundation in music theory.

Fiddles in Luso-Afro-Brazilian Cultures
Transatlantic Aesthetics
Luiz Moretto
Series: SOAS Studies in Music
Fiddles in Luso-Afro-Brazilian Cultures presents fresh data and debates drawn from extensive research to broaden the study of African music by focusing on fiddle playing, exploring rhythm aesthetics and tonal systems within cultural contexts. Primarily aimed at academic researchers in ethnomusicology and related fields, the book provides detailed analytical descriptions and narratives of artists, instruments, and playing styles. By revealing lesser-known fiddle traditions, it enriches the world music genre, attracting both academic and general readers interested in transcultural music studies.

From Stage to Studio

Holistic Musical Thinking: A Pedagogical Model for Hands-On and Heart-felt Musical Engagement

Daniel C. Johnson
Series: Routledge New Directions in Music Education Series

Holistic Musical Thinking presents a comprehensive view of how people engage with music from a hands-on and heart-felt perspective. This approach embraces the teaching and learning processes as a multi-dimensional amalgamation of knowing, doing, and feeling through musical experiences. The result is a five-dimensional model that synthesizes cognitive, affective, and psychomotor learning with curricular integration. Written for music teachers, teacher-educators, and their students, this book provides practical applications of the multi-dimensional Model of Holistic Musical Thinking for K-12 music education, and beyond.

Interrogating Popular Music and the City

Edited by Shane Homan Monash University, Australia, Catherine Strong RMIT University, Australia, Seamus O’Hanlon, John Tebbutt
Series: Ashgate Popular and Folk Music Series

Interrogating Popular Music and the City examines the ways in which urban environments and music cultures intersect in various locales around the globe. Music and cities have been partners in an often clumsy, sometimes accidental but always exciting dance. Heritage and immigration, noise and art, policy and politics are some of the topics that are addressed in this critical examination of relationships between cities and music.

Lutes and Marginality in Pre-Modern China
Art History, Archaeology, and Music Iconography

Ingrid Maren Furniss
Series: Music and Visual Culture

Lutes and Marginality in Pre-Modern China traces the complex history of lutes as they moved from the far west into China, and how these instruments became linked to various forms of social, cultural, ethnic, and religious marginality within and at China’s borders. Using a richly interdisciplinary perspective, the author draws together the visual evidence for the history of Chinese lutes and analyzes the political and cultural dimensions of their depictions in art. Comprehensive in scope, this book offers new insights for scholars of pre-modern China, art history, archaeology, music history, ethnomusicology, and Silk Road and frontier studies.

3RD EDITION

Music, Piety, and Political Power in 17th Century Salzburg
The Sounds of Good Government

Kimberly Beck Hieb, Series: Routledge Research in Music

Music, Piety and Political Power in 17th Century Salzburg traces the role of sacred music in the service of politics at the archbishopric of Salzburg, one of many jurisdictions that made up the Holy Roman Empire in the second half of the seventeenth century. Presenting music as a powerful cultural artifact that informs our understanding of the religious and political relationships shaping the history of central Europe, this study expands our understanding of the history of music, absolutism, and Catholicism in the seventeenth century and will be of interest to scholars working in those areas.

Navigating Stylistic Boundaries in the Music History Classroom
Crossover, Exchange, Appropriation
Edited by Esther M. Morgan-Ellis
Series: Modern Musicology and the College Classroom
Navigating Stylistic Boundaries in the Music History Classroom adds nuance to the teaching of varied musical traditions by examining the places where they intersect, and the issues of musical exchange and appropriation that these intersections raise. Addressing works that are already widely taught, but presenting new ways to understand and interpret them, this volume enables instructors to enrich the perspectives on music history that they present, and to take on the challenge of teaching a more global music history without flattening the differences between traditions.

The Music of Sounds and the Music of Things: Sonic Creativity Within Sampling and DIY Cultures

Leigh Landy, John Richards

This book investigates two areas in which the appreciation of sonic creativity can be easily acquired across diverse cultural and historical contexts. It explores the creation of music of sounds – making music with any sounds, part of today’s sampling culture and the music of things – the creation of instruments using existent materials (another type of sampling?) involving the notion of ‘instrument as composition’ as part of today’s DIY (or DoIt, do it together) culture. The book is primarily aimed towards students interested in current forms of sonic creativity but will be of interest to those interested in broader issues of sampling culture, hacking and sound studies.

The Practice of Popular Music: Understanding Harmony, Rhythm, Melody, and Form in Commercial Songwriting

Trevor de Clercq

The Practice of Popular Music is a music theory textbook devoted to explaining the organization of contemporary popular music styles. With an innovative approach designed to broaden the reach of music theory coursework to a wide range of students, this textbook enables readers to gain a deep understanding of music theory in the context of popular music with any sounds, part of today’s sampling culture and the world of fandom. This book will be valuable for academics and students as well as fans of fantasy franchises.

The Routledge Handbook to Spanish Film Music provides a comprehensive exploration of the role of music in its political and socio-cultural contexts, uncovers new histories, and considers the challenges that women continue to face.

6TH EDITION
The Teaching of Instrumental Music
Richard J. Colwell, Michael P. Hewitt
The Teaching of Instrumental Music, Sixth Edition introduces music education majors to basic instrumental pedagogy for the instruments and ensembles commonly found in the elementary and secondary curricula. It focuses on the core competencies required for teacher certification in instrumental music, with the pervasive philosophy to assist teachers as they develop an instrumental music program based on understanding and respecting all types of music.

7TH EDITION
The Technique of Orchestration
Kent Kennan, Donald Grantham
The Technique of Orchestration, Seventh Edition, is the definitive textbook on the study of orchestration, offering a concise, straight-to-the-point approach that prepares students to score their own compositions with confidence. Updated to reflect developments in instruments and orchestral best practices, this seventh edition features new musical examples and revised listening lists. Supported by an accompanying workbook of scores and scoring exercises, as well as a robust listening program, The Technique of Orchestration is an accessible, essential, all-in-one resource for the student of orchestration.

7TH EDITION
The Technique of Orchestration Workbook
Kent Kennan, Donald Grantham
The Technique of Orchestration Workbook, Seventh Edition, accompanies the textbook of the same name—the definitive resource on the study of orchestration—providing musical excerpts, full scores, and scoring assignments to enrich the lessons learned in the textbook. Additional learning tools include transposition exercises, error detection drills, and discussions on harmonics, while the workbook pages are perforated throughout for ease of use in and out of the classroom. Featuring the music of Bach, Brahms, Beethoven, Schumann, Copland, Bartók, and many more, The Technique of Orchestration Workbook is an invaluable companion to the textbook.
Tradition, Community, and Nationhood in Richard Wagner’s Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg

Christopher Kimbell
Series: Rethinking Austrian and German Music
This book, as the first full-length study of cultural, political, and national meaning in Die Meistersinger, offers a deep interrogation of one of Wagner’s and indeed all of opera’s most controversial works. In four character studies which focus on the roles of Walther, Sachs, Beckmesser, and Eva, it introduces, advances, and provides a critical reflection on prominent debates in Meistersinger scholarship in a manner suitable for students, scholar, and those with a growing interest in the work.

Applied Theatre: The Key Concepts is aimed at students, academics, artists and practitioners of applied theatre as well as those with an interest in this vital blend of social and creative practice.

Archaeology of the Political Unconscious
Theatre and Opera in East Berlin, 1967–1977
Jennifer Williams
Series: Routledge Advances in Theatre & Performance Studies
This book investigates the aesthetic and political dialectics of East Berlin to argue how its theatre and opera stages incited artists to act out, fuel and resist the troubled construction of political legitimacy. It investigates three case studies of how leading East Berlin stages excavated fragmentary materials from Weimar dramatist Bertolt Brecht’s oeuvre and repurposed them for their post-fascist society. This study will be of great interest to students and scholars in theatre and performance studies, art history, music, German studies, and political science.

Beyond Innocence
Children in Performance
Adele Senior
Series: Routledge Advances in Theatre & Performance Studies
Beyond Innocence: Children in Performance proposes that performance has the ability to offer alternatives to hegemonic perceptions of the child as innocent, in need of protection, and apolitical. This research aims to redress the current imbalance between the way we read children’s bodies and adult’s bodies in performance, as well as recognizing how performance currently negotiates and might take seriously young people’s cultures and experiences in the future without essentialising them.

Federico García Lorca

Simon Breden

Series: Routledge Performance Practitioners

Lauded as one of the most important poets and playwrights of the 20th Century, Federico García Lorca was also an accomplished theatre director with a clear process and philosophy of how drama should be staged. Directing both his own work and that of others, Lorca was also closely involved in the rehearsals for productions of many of his plays, and from his own writings and those of his collaborators, a determined agenda to stimulate audiences and renovate theatre can be seen. As a first step towards critical understanding, and as an initial exploration before going on to further, primary research, Routledge Performance Practitioners offer unbeatable value for today’s student.

Recreating Historic Dress
Clothing Gems from the Hereford Museum Clothing Collection, with Patterns
Nancy E. Hills
Recreating Historic Dress compiles patterns and information for 25 never-before-published garments from the historic clothing collection at the Hereford Museum and Art Gallery Resource Center, Hereford, UK. Nancy Hills has conducted a detailed analysis of a range of garments, spanning the years of 1755 through 1954, and translated them into paper patterns. Each featured garment contains a detailed description, the pattern, historical context, and images of the full article of clothing. This book will be of interest to experienced costume designers and technicians, cutters and drapers, intermediate students of theatrical costume design, and historical reenactors.

The Art and Practice of Directing for Theatre
2ND EDITION
The formation and communication of vision is one of the primary responsibilities of a director, before ever getting to the nuts and bolts of the process. The Art and Practice of Directing for Theatre Second Edition helps young directors learn how to discover, harness, and meld the two. It explores how to craft an artistic vision for a production and sparks inspiration in directors to put their learning into practice. This new edition is fully revised to address changes in theatre since the Covid pandemic, new technology, intimacy direction, and inclusive practices. This book is written for students in Theatre Directing courses, along with new and aspiring theatrical directors.

The Drama and Opera Stage Manager's Toolkit
Protocols, Practical Considerations, and Templates
This is a concise survey of new play projects that bring together the worlds of science and performance, and the benefits that dramaturgical praxis can bring to both disciplines. Three approaches common to both performance and science – collaboration, experimentation, and interpretation – are reflected in a series of case studies that demonstrate how dramaturgical tools can inform the wider public about scientific knowledge and practice and inspire the creation of new dramatic forms that enact the dynamics of scientific research. This is a vital account of collaborative work for scholars and practitioners of theatre and performance, as well as readers across the sciences.

The Dramaturgy of Performing Science
New Work in Interdisciplinary Contexts
This is a thoughtful examination of the intersection of design, art, and the modern and contemporary theatrical design practitioner. Utilizing a recently-discovered folio of materials of stagecraft practices that was being compiled by Edmond Carl deCelle, the book examines methodologies of production using sketches from the artist as well as his thoughts on design, art, and the shifts that were happening in the industry at that time. For those new to theatre production, this book provides a resource for a selection of well-proven, straightforward techniques. The Canon in Contemporary Theatre
 Plays by Shakespeare, Ibsen, and Brecht in Contemporary Directors’ Theatre
Lars Harald Maagerø
Series: Routledge Advances in Theatre & Performance Studies
This book explores the relationship between contemporary theatre, particularly contemporary theatre directors, and the dramatic canon of plays. Through focusing on productions of plays by Shakespeare, Ibsen, and Brecht by six contemporary European directors (Emma Rice, Joe Hill-Gibbins, Christopher Rüping, Thorleifur Örn Amansson, Sigrid Strom Reibo, and Alexander Mark-Eidem) the book investigates why and how the theatre continues to engage with canonical plays. This study will be great interest to academics, and students in drama and theatre, particularly those who work with theatre in the 21st century, directors’ theatre, and the political impact of theatre.

The 'Female' Dancer
a soma-scientific approach
Edited by Claire Farmer, Helen Kindred

The 'Female' Dancer aims to question dancers' relationships with 'female' through the examination and understandings of biological, anatomical, scientific, and self-social identity. It weaves a journey between scientific and somatic approaches to dance and to dancing. Drawing together lived experiences of dancers in relationship with scientific research, this book is ideal for undergraduate students of dance, dance artists, and researchers, as well as providing dancers, dance teachers, healthcare practitioners, company managers and those in dance leadership roles with valuable information on how to support female identifying dancers through training and beyond.

Theatre Work: Reimagining the Labor of Theatrical Production

Brídín Clements Cotton, Natalie Robin

This book investigates both the history and current realities of life and work in professional theatrical production in the United States and explores labor practices that are equitable, accessible, and sustainable. The authors investigate the question of theatrical production as work – when the art is the work, how do employers navigate the balance between creative freedom and these equitable, accessible, and sustainable personnel processes? Written for members of the theatrical production workplace, leaders of theatrical institutions and productions, labor organizers, and industry union leaders, this book speaks to the ways that employers and workers can reimagine how we work.

4TH EDITION
Voice and Identity
Edited by Rockford Sansom

Voice and identity draws from the knowledge and expertise of leading figures to explore the evolving nature of voice training in the performing arts. The authors in this international collection look through both practical and theoretical lenses as they connect voice studies to equity, diversity, inclusion, and belonging, and to gender and gender diversity. The book offers chapters that focus on practical tools for voice teachers, and the text also includes chapters that give rich social, cultural, and theoretical discussions that are both academic and accessible, with a particular focus on gender diverse, gender non-binary, transgender, and inclusionary voice research.

Who Is In the Room?
Queer Strategies for Redefining the Role of the Theater Director
Brooke O’Harra

With this book, Brooke O’Harra takes up directing as an artistic practice in and of itself. Speaking beyond and against craft, O’Harra drives the art of directing forward.

Working with Children in Contemporary Performance
Ethics, Agency and Affect
Sarah Austin

This book outlines how an innovative ‘rights-based’ model of contemporary performance practice can be used when working with children and young people. The book would primarily appeal to scholars of theatre and performance studies specifically those working in the field of applied theatre and theatre for children and young people. Additionally, the practice-based elements of the book are likely to appeal to theatre professionals working in youth arts or theatre for young audiences or associated fields.
