Shopping as Comedy: A Victorian Scrapbook
Edited by Alexis Easley
This volume is a critical edition of a Victorian scrapbook, composed of cuttings from advertising images from the 1880s. The album highlights issues of concern to women at the fin de siècle: romance, marriage, shopping, and house decoration. The satirical commentary on late Victorian shopping and commodity culture provides a fascinating insight into the interests and responses of consumers during this period. The volume will be of great interest to students and scholars of literary and advertising history.

Edited by Mark Frost
This volume includes sources relating to a range of social and cultural contexts, including the proliferation of natural history craze; debates about the social and environmental impacts of changing land use in town and country; attempts to preserve landscapes; debates about hunger, poverty, and disease in the countryside; and the rise of new forms of rural leisure and debates about pollution. The volume will also turn to a range of literary sources from the period prior to 1858 to illustrate the ways in which changing attitudes to environments emerged in fiction.

Frank O. Etheridge: Musician of the African Diaspora
Edited by Ben Vinson III
This is a book by and about Frank O. Etheridge, an African-American musician from an age of cultural explosion. Etheridge performed in a period when some of the greatest cultural producers of the African-American heritage assumed center-stage. From Shanghai to Singapore; from India to Africa and beyond, Frank Etheridge left us a detailed record of his travels in his unpublished manuscript. The book contains his views, insights, and international itinerary during the 1920s. This manuscript, published for the first time, will be accompanied by editorial commentary written by Professor Ben Vinson III, and will be of great interest to students and scholars of African American history.

Nineteenth-Century Gardens and Gardening
Edited by Sarah Dewis, Brent Elliott
This collection brings together primary sources on gardens and gardening across the long nineteenth-century. Economic expansion, empire, the growth of the middle classes and suburbia, the changing role of women and the professionalisation of gardening, alongside industrialisation and the development of leisure and mass markets were all elements that contributed to and were influenced by the evolution of gardens. It is a subject that is both global and multidisciplinary and this set provides the reader with a variety of ways in which to read gardens – through recognition of how they were conceived and experienced as they developed.

Robert Southey Essays Moral and Political 1832
Edited by Tim Fulford
Robert Southey’s Essays Moral and Political, originally published in 1832, brings together many of Southey’s most influential journal pieces, providing important evidence for students of the political and literary culture of the Romantic period. Edited by Tim Fulford, this volume features a full introduction and detailed editorial notes setting the Essays in their contexts. The volume sets the Essays in the context of the political and social issues and controversies on which they comment, and will be of great interest to students and scholars of Literary and Political History.

Science and Visual Culture in Great Britain in the Long Nineteenth Century

Zoology

Edited by Diana Donald
Series: Nineteenth-Century Science and Visual Culture in Great Britain

This volume consists of a collection of primary sources throwing light on the various aspects of interplay between zoology and visual culture in nineteenth-century Britain. The study examines the impact of zoological knowledge and theories on imaginative art, and explores the aestheticisation and appropriation of nature, especially in relation to bird imagery in painting, illustration and the decorative arts. This title will be of great interest to students of the History of Science and Art History.

Women in Medicine in the Long Nineteenth Century

Edited by Claire Brock
Series: Nineteenth-Century Science, Technology and Medicine: Sources and Documents

This four-volume collection explores medical women as a global phenomenon during the long nineteenth century. The set explores how British medical women travelled internationally to treat patients who, for reasons of religious, cultural, or social beliefs, were reluctant to seek treatment from male doctors. The collection includes texts written by those who qualified as medical women and practised either in their national context or those educated abroad, who then returned home to pursue their careers. Accompanied by extensive editorial commentary, this title will be of great interest to students of Women's History and the History of Medicine.
Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Various Authors

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World is a collection of 35 previously out-of-print titles that examine many aspects of life in various ancient civilizations. Books look at the histories of the Greek and Roman worlds, the politics and philosophy of Athens, religion in ancient Greece, and other aspects of these early European societies: education, art and literature. Contacts between empires and barbarians are discussed, as well as economics and trade across the Mediterranean, Northern Europe and the Near East. One volume analyses ancient rituals in India; others look at patronage and religion across the world.

A History of the Greek World from 479 to 323 B.C.

M.L.W. Laistner

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

A History of the Greek World from 479 to 323 B.C. (1957) examines the period of Greek history – from the end of the Persian Wars to the death of Alexander the Great – which can claim to be unique in the history of the world. Into the brief space of five generations are crowded such a galaxy of great poets, artists, politicians and thinkers, whose creative achievements directly or indirectly exerted an unparalleled influence on Western civilisation since.

A History of the Greek and Roman World

G.B. Grundy

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

A History of the Greek and Roman World (1926) is a single-volume sweeping examination of the Greek and Roman civilisations from 2000 B.C. to the second century A.D. It covers all parts of the Greek and Roman worlds, and all aspects of their societies over the different time periods: culture, politics and religion.

A History of the Roman World from 146 to 30 B.C.

Frank Burr Marsh

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

A History of the Roman World from 146 to 30 B.C. (1963) analyses the workings of the Roman constitution alongside looking at the events in Roman history from the time of the Gracchi to the death of Anthony. It shows that the supremacy of the senate was based on a well-organised political machine, and that the economic, social and political changes which resulted from the conquest of the Mediterranean world weakened the senate’s control without providing a substitute, and so led to the fall of the Republic.

Education in Ancient Rome
From the Elder Cato to the Younger Pliny

Stanley F. Bonner

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Education in Ancient Rome (1977) examines the development, structure and role of education from the third century B.C. to the time of Trajan, a period which saw great changes in Roman society. It provides a historical background, tracing the development of primary, grammar and rhetoric schools, and discussing the standards of upbringing and education. The book then looks at the physical conditions of teaching – accommodation, equipment, discipline, the economic position of teachers, the fee-paying system, and the part played by the Roman State. Finally, it gives a full appraisal of the standard Roman teaching programme.

Greek and Latin Literature
A Comparative Study

Edited by John Higginbotham

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Greek and Latin Literature (1969) examines the two ancient literatures using a comparative method that recognizes the links between them – most Latin genres owe something to their Greek forebears. How far was Virgil influenced by Homer, Cicero by Demosthenes, Horace by Sappho and Alcaeus? How far did their techniques differ? How far did they share the same interests? Each contributor to this volume aims to answer such questions.

Greeks, Romans and Barbarians
Spheres of Interaction

Barry Cunliffe

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Greeks, Romans and Barbarians (1988) explores a number of themes that bind the regional cultural developments of mainland Europe and the Mediterranean Basin. Rejecting the separation into two distinct disciplines for the study of the Mediterranean world and the barbarian communities of northern Europe, this book looks at the systems at work in society – economic strategies, the nature of exchange and trade, the relationships between a civilised core and its periphery – and, more importantly, by the changing trajectories of the socio-economic systems. It also examines how much the physical nature of Western Europe affected these systems.

Life and Thought in the Greek and Roman World

M. Cary, T.J. Haarhof

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Life and Thought in the Greek and Roman World (1961) aims to provide a brief but comprehensive outline sketch of Greek and Roman civilization. It describes the geographic, political and social background of that civilization, and sets forth its main achievements in the fields of language and literature, scholarship and education, science and philosophy, art and religion. The authors have endeavoured throughout to present Greek and Roman civilization as an organic whole.

Religion in Ancient History

Studies in Ideas, Men and Events

S.G.F. Brandon

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Religion in Ancient History (1969) includes 25 essays on comparative religion, covering the origin of religion, and studies of the religions of the peoples of ancient Egypt, Mesopotamia, Israel, Greece and Iran. It also includes essays on key ideas such as creation, death, time, the soul, and the judgement of the dead, and studies of figures like Osiris, Akhenaten, Job and Zarathustra. The book also deals extensively with religious ideas, men and events in the first three centuries A.D. and the spread of early Christianity.

Minoans, Philistines and Greeks

B.C. 1400–900

Andrew Robert Burn

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Minoans, Philistines, and Greeks (1930) presents a historical narrative of the fortunes of the Aegean people, including invaders of and fugitives from the Aegean area, from the end of the fifteenth to the end of the tenth century B.C. It traces the gradual decline and fall of the Aegean culture, the first advanced civilisation in Europe, and the migrations of peoples such as the Philistines and Phoenicians across the Mediterranean.

Patronage in Ancient Society

Edited by Andrew Wallace-Hadrill

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

Patronage in Ancient Society (1989) examines a subject central to the society of the ancient Mediterranean, bringing together the interests of ancient historians and sociologists, using ancient societies, and particularly Roman society, as the focus for their studies. In its comparative approach and its historical range this volume constitutes an important contribution to the study of patronage.

Science in the Early Roman Empire

Pliny the Elder, His Sources and Influence

Edited by Roger French, Frank Greenaway

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World

The studies collected in Science in the Early Roman Empire (1986) represent key research done on the Elder Pliny – an important and difficult figure whose Natural History forms a valuable compendium at a fixed historical point in time of ancient science. Its subsequent influence was enormous, remaining the most comprehensive scientific encyclopaedia even until the Renaissance. The chapters seek to locate Pliny in his social and intellectual milieu, to survey his approach to particular sciences such as astronomy, mineralogy, botany and pharmacopoeia. Two chapters consider the response in the Renaissance to his work.

Seers, Shrines and Sirens
The Greek Religious Revolution in the Sixth Century B.C.

John Pollard

Seers, Shrines and Sirens (1965) surveys the history of Greek religion during the great formative and revolutionary era of the sixth century BC. It treats, among other subjects, the rise to prominence of the Delphic oracle, the growth of religious festivals and mysteries, the worship of Dionysus, including the development of the drama and appearance of the Orphic and Pythagorean sects. The sixth century was above all a time when prophets, supernmen and sibyls flourished and their impact is discussed in detail.

The Ancient City of Athens
Its Topography and Monuments

Ida Thallon Hill

The Ancient City of Athens (1953) contains both definite reports of the actual discoveries in the excavations which revolutionised previous topographical views of Athens, and articles and discussions to which these new discoveries gave rise. It is a comprehensive examination of the main topography and major monuments of the ancient city.

The Ionians and Hellenism
A Study of the Cultural Achievement of the Early Greek Inhabitants of Asia Minor

C.J. Emlyn-Jones

The Ionians and Hellenism (1980) presents an assessment of the art, literature and philosophy of the Asia Minor Greeks – the Ionians – in the eighth to sixth centuries B.C. The Ionians are notable both for what they achieved and for the way in which they influenced the rest of the Greek world, but their study has been presented in terms of outstanding individuals, largely due to the early loss of Ionian independence followed by political and cultural absorption into Athens-dominated Classical Greece. This book shows that early Ionian culture from Homer to Ionian philosophers and lyric poets reveals a unified vision both unique and influential.

The Roman Stage
A Short History of Latin Drama in the Time of the Republic

W. Beare

The Roman Stage (1964) gives a connected account of the drama of ancient Rome in its historical setting. Using original source material, whole plays as well as fragments, of tragedies, comedies and farces, it traces the development of theatre in Rome, and notes the historical importance of these plays – the Elizabeth world looked back with reverence on the days when Roscius was an actor in Rome’ (Hamlet). It also examines the physical conditions of drama in Rome – the types of theatres, and their place in the lives of the Roman inhabitants.
The Roman Villa in Britain
Edited by A.L.F. Rivet
Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World
The Roman Villa in Britain (1969) is a comprehensive examination of Roman villas in Romano-Britain in a series of essays by six specialists. It examines the evidence for the native agriculture which was practised after the conquest; the ground plans of the villas, and their implications, are discussed as well as the mosaic pavements, and deals with internal decoration and furnishing. It reflects on the social and economic implications of the changing fortunes of the villas, and discusses the future of villa studies from the standpoint of the modern excavator.

Town and Country in Roman Britain
A.L.F. Rivet
Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World
Town and Country in Roman Britain (1964) is a study of the effects of Roman rule on the lowland zone of Britain and of the relationship between town and country. The author places the Romano-British towns and villas in their economic and political setting, and discusses their origin and development with the aid of current scholarship and archaeological evidence.

The World of Hesiod
A Study of the Greek Middle Ages, c. 900–700 B.C.
Andrew Robert Burn
Series: Routledge Library Editions: The Ancient World
The World of Hesiod (1936) examines the world of the Ancient Greeks before Ionian rationalism and the civilisation of Athens. Lying between the Heroic Age and the Lyric Age, Hesiod and the Geometric potters and painters set the scene for the economic, political and social changes that were to follow.

Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes
14 Volume Set
Various
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes
This 14-volume set, first published between 1988 and 2001, forms the majority of the original 20-volume Ethnoscapes series. The volumes bring together a vibrant mix of cutting-edge explorations, from all over the world, of human transactions with the built and natural environments. This includes, for example, consideration of vernacular architecture that contrasts with the architecture and urbanism of the colonial enterprise, the meaning of home, aesthetics, well-being and health, and consideration of how environmental psychology has become ‘green’. All of these topics, and more, provide an exciting basis for dealing with current challenges in the environmental social sciences.

Aesthetics, Well-being and Health
Essays within Architecture and Environmental Aesthetics

Edited by Birgit Cold
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes

In everyday life, most people do not reflect seriously on the impacts of architecture and environmental aesthetics on their well-being and health. Originally published in 2001, this intriguing volume brings together professionals working in architecture, planning, urban design, and social policy with academics from both humanities and social sciences to provide a broad-based and insightful discussion on how aesthetics affect us emotionally and physically. The essays help us understand our cultural and individual preferences related to the quality of the environment and challenge the common belief that environmental beauty is a matter of personal taste.

Environmental Policy, Assessment and Communication

Edited by David Canter, Martin Krampen, David Stea
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes

Originally published in 1988, reissued now with a new series introduction, Environmental Policy, Assessment and Communication, was the second in a trilogy of books to open the series Ethnoscapes: Current Challenges in the Environmental Social Sciences. This volume has a practical orientation. Its contributions deal directly with research on those environmental matters on which government agencies and other organisations formulate policies or develop design strategies. This therefore covers the assessment and evaluation of designs and design proposals as well as background research to policy issues.

Architecture, Ritual Practice and Co-determination in the Swedish Office

Dennis Doxtater
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes

Originally published in 1994, as part of the Ethnoscapes: Current Challenges in the Environmental Social Sciences series, reissued now with a new series introduction, Architecture, Ritual Practice and Co-determination in the Swedish Office is a case study of Swedish office buildings and examines how they have been influenced by spatial aspects of traditional culture in Scandinavia. It suggests a theoretical framework for architecture by casting the ritual form of Swedish offices into three distinct modes of expression.

Environmental Psychology in Europe
From Architectural Psychology to Green Psychology

Enric Pol
University of Barcelona, Spain
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes

Originally published in 1993, as part of the Ethnoscapes: Current Challenges in the Environmental Social Sciences series, reissued now with a new series introduction and preface, Environmental Psychology in Europe: From Architectural Psychology to Green Psychology sets out to explain the nature of environmental psychology, how it was born, how it developed, what were its dominant subjects, its principal actors and its present state in Europe at the time. The volume covers each European country, looking at the origin and development of the subject in the principal European cultural areas.

Environmental Perspectives

Edited by David Canter, Martin Krampen, David Stea
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes

Originally published in 1988, reissued now with a new series introduction, Environmental Perspectives was the first in a trilogy of books to open the series Ethnoscapes: Current Challenges in the Environmental Social Sciences. The first of these volumes focuses, essentially, on theory. It brings together papers covering our growing understanding of the environmental matters on which government agencies and other organisations formulate policies or develop design strategies. This therefore covers the assessment and evaluation of designs and design proposals as well as background research to policy issues.

Forms of Dominance
On the Architecture and Urbanism of the Colonial Enterprise

Edited by Nezar AlSayyad
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes

Originally published in 1992, as part of the Ethnoscapes: Current Challenges in the Environmental Social Sciences series, reissued now with a new series introduction and new preface, Forms of Dominance: On the Architecture and Urbanism of the Colonial Enterprise examines the complex experience of colonial domination, social reaction, and physical adaptation within the built environment of regions such as Morocco, Eastern Europe, India, Guatemala and East Africa, and provides a multi-disciplinary and cross-cultural perspective on the colonial experience.
Housing
Design, Research, Education
Edited by Marjorie Bulos, Necdet Teymur
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes
Originally published in 1993, reissued now with a new series introduction, New Directions in Environmental Participation was the third in a trilogy of books to open the series. Ethnoscapes: Current Challenges in the Environmental Social Sciences. For this volume the editors chose to deal directly with current developments in environmental participation. This brings together contributions that range from studies of hands-on user participation to explorations on a much broader scale of the role we all play in shaping our environment. The role of communication, education and research in the participation process is a motif that is apparent throughout the contributions.

New Directions in Environmental Participation

On the Aesthetics of Architecture
A Psychological Approach to the Structure and the Order of Perceived Architectural Space
Ralf Weber
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes
Originally published in 1995, this title is a result of an interdisciplinary study in architectural theory, psychology and philosophy and the author’s experience as a practicing architect. It tries to relate theories of aesthetics and recent advances in the psychology of visual perception to the practice of design. The text starts with an analysis of traditional and contemporary schools of thought in architectural theory, and then proceeds through the formulation of a general theory of aesthetics based on perceptual and cognitive information processing to a description of the actual conditions under which aesthetic experiences of buildings and cities take place.

Placemaking
Production of Built Environment in Two Cultures
David Stea, Mete Turan
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes
Originally published in 1993, reissued now with a new series introduction, Placemaking: Production of Built Environment in Two Cultures is a book about the context of placemaking—the production of vernacular architecture and settlement. It is an attempt at prototheory, the formation of a perspective with which to view built environment produced by traditional societies. Focusing on two examples: carved dwellings and other masonry structures of Anatolian Turkey and pre- and post-conquest Southwestern pueblos in the US. Architectural and settlement phenomena are analyzed primarily in terms of the social forces that gave rise to them, rather than their formal properties.

The Home
Words, Interpretations, Meanings and Environments
Edited by David N. Benjamin
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes
Originally published in 1995, reissued now with a new series introduction, The Home: Words, Interpretations, Meanings and Environments written by by leading theorists and empirical researchers offers an interdisciplinary and multi-cultural spectrum of viewpoints on the study of the home concept. Among the disciplines covered are environment-behaviour research, anthropology, geography, archaeology, architecture, political science, and linguistics-place name research. The authors in this volume focus on refining our concepts of home, our knowledge of the uses of home, and the relationship of home to the study of cultural interpretation.

The Meaning and Use of Housing
International Perspectives, Approaches and their Applications
Edited by Ernesto G. Arias
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes
Originally published in 1993, reissued now with a new series introduction, The Meaning and Use of Housing presents a re-evaluation of the use and meaning of residential environments. It integrates methodological and philosophical approaches to assist in the making of comparisons across issues, concerns, disciplines and countries, and links theory, research and practice. It spans the globe, reviewing studies of every conceivable form of housing. In these studies a wide range of social science, design, management and policy perspectives are harnessed to enrich our understanding of the central place in people’s life, their homes.
Tradition, Location and Community
Place-making and Development

Edited by Ademere Awotona University of Massachusetts, USA, Necdet Teymur
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ethnoscapes

First published in 1997, this title brings together the selected papers of 17 architects, social scientists and planners. It offers a range of original perspectives on the relationship between the design and habitation of the built environment on the one hand and social and cultural development on the other. As an archival volume, the attempts to present a mixture of cross-disciplinary and cross-cultural perspectives. It explores the view that planning and design, which follow from the rapid transformations wrought by development must respond to, and be based on, the wants and needs of the people affected; that is, it must be in accord with their notions of environmental quality.

Charcoal Making in Developing Countries

Gerald Foley
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Forestry

Originally published in 1986, this book provides a detailed examination of programmes to introduce improved charcoal making techniques throughout the developing world. Charcoal making is widely regarded as an extremely wasteful use of scarce wood resources. The book includes a section on the physics and chemistry of charcoal and descriptions of the various traditional methods of charcoal making. Patterns of charcoal supply and distribution are analysed and efforts to introduce improved charcoal making techniques are described and evaluated.

Farm and Community Forestry

Gerald Foley, Geoffrey Barnard
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Forestry

In 1984, when this book was originally published the need to take forestry outside the forests and involve local people in tree growing was widely recognised. Projects to encourage farm and community forestry were launched in over 50 developing countries. This book describes the main approaches which were taken, discussing their scope and limitation. It examines the reasons why people plant trees, and the constraints which prevent them from doing so.

Planned Management of Forests

N. V. Brasnett
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Forestry

Originally published in 1953, this book was compiled to provide students of forestry with a simple outline of what the management of forests involves, and of the way in which forestry operations are organized and controlled. Topics discussed and explained include economic considerations, stock mapping, topography, climate, soils, form and distribution of crops, scientific forestry, destruction of forests, regulation by volume, area and size and forest protection.
Stoves and Trees
How Much Wood Would a Woodstove Save If a Woodstove Could Save Wood?

Gerald Foley, Patricia Moss, Lloyd Timberlake
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Forestry

Originally published in 1968, Stoves and Trees asks whether better stoves really help the two billion people in the developing world who rely on wood and charcoal for cooking and heating their homes. It also asks if improved stoves actually save fuel and if they can help slow down tropical deforestation. The book not only examines newer stoves but also ascertains how people buy, collect and use wood in the developing world. It finds that most forests are cleared for timber or farmland not fuelwood and explains why stoves which show 50% energy savings in European laboratories often save little or none in village homes.

The Forest Frontier
Settlement and Change in Brazilian Roraima

Edited by Peter A. Furley
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Forestry

Originally published in 1994, this book analyses land developments, deforestation and pasture substitution, colonisation schemes and spontaneous settlement during the latter part of the 20th Century. In so doing, The Forest Frontier presents an overview of the intrinsic environmental and socio-economic resources of the Roraima, the most northerly of the Brazilian Amazon states. Roraima is of special environmental interest because of its extensive savannas and varied forests – the home of some of the largest and most diverse groups of indigenous Indians.

The Management of Forests

F. C. Osmaston
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Forestry

Originally published in 1968, this book discusses the principles and methods on which forest management has been founded in the past and how these principles and methods still apply or are affected by modern management skills, changing demands, social habits and resources. The book is concerned mainly with the technical aspects of forestry and the classic foundations of management. To a lesser degree it deals with commercial efficiency, labour relations and the implications of these. The historical chapter shows the trends in the development of forestry, particularly in Europe.

Routledge Library Editions: Government

Various Authors
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government

Originally published between 1938 and 1970 the volumes in this set cover the crucial post-war period of British, European and Israeli politics at a time when there were extensive reforms taking place (particularly in the UK) with regard to the balance of power between central and local government. Many of the issues debated in this set became the building blocks of devolution and the arguments they cover continue to be widely debated today. The volumes in this set offer exceptional insights into notions of responsibility; analyse the processes of political integration and devolution within the British Isles; demonstrate the obstacles, political and procedural to social reform.

A History of Local Government

K. B. Smellie
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government

Originally published in 1946, this book traces the essential changes in structure, areas and in the relations between local and central authorities in England from 1832 to the Education Act of 1944. Modern English local government has developed from the industrial and scientific revolution and the growth of political democracy since 1832 and the present system is the result of an interplay between political, economic and scientific factors. The book contains a stand-alone chapter on London government and an introductory chapter on the condition of local government between 1660 and 1832.

Constitutional Bureaucracy

Henry Parris
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government

Originally published in 1969, this book discusses specific issues in the rise of a ‘constitutional bureaucracy’ as a counter-part to constitutional monarchy. These issues, including patronage, ministerial power and responsibility and the ‘grey-eminence’ myth are set against the relationship among legislation and administration, Treasury control and the relevance of public administration to our conception of public accountability and ‘representative bureaucracy’.
Delegation in Local Government
County to District Councils

Peter G. Richards
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1956, this book outlines the history of delegation in local government since the establishment of county councils in 1888. It describes the use made of delegation over a wide range of council services. The technique of delegation has become more important in recent years and represents the compromise of the competing claims of county and district councils to control local government. This book is an important contribution both to the detailed study of local administration and to the debate on the future pattern of local government.

Introduction to French Local Government

Brian Chapman
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1953, this was the first post-War study in either English or French of the institutions and law relating to French local government and on the practice of French local administration. It is a study in political science and therefore, although the basic laws governing local institutions are dealt with in some detail, the aim is to give a picture of those institutions at work in the middle of the 20th Century. The book assumes no prior knowledge of the subject and will be of interest to students of French government and comparative political institutions.

Modern Forms of Government
A Comparative Study

Michael Stewart
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1959, this book discusses both the formal constitution and the actual working of the government in 20 countries of the world and deals with principles as well as facts. The chapters describing the Commonwealth countries precede an examination of the development and potentialities of the unique Commonwealth form of association; the description of the USA, Germany and Switzerland is followed by a discussion of federalism; and in inquiry into the Communist conception of politics precedes the description of Communist governments.

Government and Politics in Israel

Oscar Kraines
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1961, this book provides a clear authoritative work of reference, surveying not only constitutional form, but also actual political practice. The author deals in turn with the Knesset, the political parties and the electoral system, Cabinet, Presidents and Judiciary, the basis of citizenship and civil rights, the administrative structure, local government and foreign policy. The book also emphasizes the precarious balance of the new state of Israel in which immigrants exceeded the original population.

Parliament and Conscience

Peter G. Richards
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1970, this book has a dual purpose. Firstly, it is a study of how Parliament works when the party whips are withdrawn. The author shows how backbenchers can create legislation of great importance; he demonstrates the obstacles, political and procedural to social reform; he relates the votes of MPs to their personal characteristics e.g. age, religion and occupation, and he argues that Parliament achieves a fresh vigour and authority when MPs think and act independently of party policy. Secondly, Parliament and Conscience analyses 6 major controversies in British society in the late 20th Century.

Political Integration and Disintegration in the British Isles

Anthony H. Birch
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1977, this book provided the first analysis of the processes of political integration and devolution within the British Isles, taking account of the social, economic and cultural factors involved as well as the unique character of the political system, together with the growth of Scottish and Welsh nationalism. The book contains both an analysis of the nationalist movements of Ireland, Ulster, Scotland and Wales and a critical assessment of the way British central Governments have reacted to these movements.
Representative and Responsible Government
An Essay on the British Constitution
A H Birch
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1954 and written by a serving M.P., this book discusses the nature and purpose of political activity in the Government of Britain, the Commonwealth and the former British Empire. As politics is closely connected with history and economics, the book makes reference to these subject areas, but in a way that is only necessary to give a lucid introduction to the political problems of the 20th Century. The book was written in such a way as to be particularly useful for the introductory study of government and politics.

The British Approach to Politics
Michael Stewart
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1958 and written by a serving M.P., this book remains a seminal source for contemporary political scientists and offers exceptional insights into notions of responsibility. Wahlke (1971) describes it as 'one of the best analytical surveys of representation.' The book is a compact and critical essay on the British constitution which reveals the realities of British politics in the second half of the 20th Century by showing the extent to which theory and reality agree and differ.

The New Local Government System
Peter G. Richards
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1966, this book was a successor to the highly respected volume by J. H. Warren English Local Government System. This book is more than just a study of law and administration, focussing on the contemporary interest in the political and sociological aspects of local government. It discusses problems of management and many aspects of the Maud Report.

The Prefects and Provincial France
Brian Chapman
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1955, this book traces the history of the Corps from its foundation in 1800, the successive stages in the career of a Prefect, his or her legal powers and influence on the social, political and economic life of the country. As well as being an original piece of research, it provides an absorbing picture of life in provincial France and explains the fundamental strength of France despite her political contradictions.

The Profession of Government
The Public Service in Europe
Brian Chapman
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1959, and using material collected from eight languages, much of which was previously unpublished, this is a genuine comparative study, not merely describing each country separately, but an analysis of the most important questions facing 20th century public administration. A substantial historical introduction traces from Roman to modern times the concept and practice of public service and brings out the underlying unity of European experience.

The Reformed Local Government System
Peter G. Richards
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Government
Originally published in 1973 and revised as a third edition in 1978, this book provides a concise introductory account of the system of local administration since the Local Government Act of 1972 produced the most-far-reaching change in England and Wales since 1888. The book shows why such a major shake-up was necessary, and how the policies evolved which produced the new pattern of local authorities. The book contains basic factual material about the constitution and powers of the new councils and discusses the major problems which confront them. It also considers the respective roles of councillors officials and the political circumstances within which local government has to work.
Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Various Authors
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations presents in 38 volumes a series of previously out-of-print books that examine industrial relations between employers and workers, governments and workforces. Titles look at the history and development of industrial relations, mainly in Britain but also internationally, often comparing experiences around the world. Many titles analyse the shifting landscapes of the 1980s, as new governments brought with them new attitudes towards trade unions, and the development of management techniques and new styles of business brought about a range of developments that still resonate today.

British Industrial Relations

Gill Palmer
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

British Industrial Relations (1983) provides a comprehensive and balanced approach to British industrial relations, an often controversial subject with a variety of academic interpretations which achieved a large significance in national politics. The author draws on political and social theory to explain both the state of British industrial relations in the 1980s and the conflicting prescriptions for change. Trade unions and collective bargaining are placed in the context of the inevitable development of group negotiation within complex organisations. Management strategy in the British system is emphasised and the state's role in industrial relations are fully explored.

Agenda for Change

Title: Agenda for Change (1991)

Edited by John Niland, Oliver Clarke

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Agenda for Change (1991) examines the experiences of five industrialised market economies in a period of profound change in industrial relations. It looks at the national history and culture affecting industrial relations, the obstacles to change and the levers that could effect it, and the respective roles of employers, unions and governments in bringing about improvement. Is there any single model of an industrial relations system to which a country could aspire?

Business and Sociology

T.F. Honour, R.M. Mainwaring

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Business and Sociology (1982) is a sociological perspective on business that examines industrialisation, capitalism, organisation, management, work, and industrial relations. It approaches the subject with an acknowledgment of its capitalist nature, rather than organisational or industrial nature.

An Introduction to Industrial Relations

Michael P. Jackson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

An Introduction to Industrial Relations (1991) analyses various theoretical approaches to industrial relations, and summarises the origins and development of the subject. It looks at the impact of legislative changes, technological developments and the growing currency of 'human resource management' theories. The book offers a comparative approach, making extensive use of material from outside the UK, notably from America, Europe and the Pacific Rim, and examines the implications of EEC legislation for industrial relations in the 1990s.

Capitalism, the State and Industrial Relations

Dominic Strinati

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Capitalism, the State and Industrial Relations (1982) examines the many different forms of state intervention in industrial relations in Britain, among them being corporatism, liberalism, paternalism and pluralism. This discussion puts forward a sociological explanation of some of the determinants of state intervention. It concentrates on the period since 1960 and on policies such as those embodied in the Industrial Relations Act of 1971 and the Employment Protection Act of 1975.
Change in Industrial Relations
The Organization and Environment

P.B. Beaumont

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Change in Industrial Relations (1990) examines the industrial relations system in the UK at the end of the 1980s, after a decade of changes such as the growth of non-union firms, trade union decline, the emergence of human resource management practices, and increase in labour-management co-operation. The author describes the major features of the system and discusses the recent changes, drawing on insights from economics, organizational behaviour, and urban and regional research, as well as from the traditional literature of industrial relations.

Improving Industrial Relations
The Advisory Role of ACAS

Eric Armstrong, Rosemary Lucas

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Improving Industrial Relations (1985) presents and discusses the findings of research into the advisory function of the Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service (ACAS). ACAS is most widely known for its attempts to resolve industrial disputes through conciliation, but most of its endeavours lie in its advisory role to improving industrial relations.

European Trade Unionism

Eric Jacobs

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

European Trade Unionism (1973) examines the differences between the trade union movements of Europe, alongside noting their similarities. Trade unions in Europe differ in their political and religious allegiances, their membership and structure, their success or failure – but they have much in common too, not least their problems.

Industrial Action
Patterns of Labour Conflict

Edited by Stephen J. Frenkel

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Industrial Action (1980) examines in a comparative analysis the principal elements involved in industrial action – strikes, work-to-rule, go-slow etc – in four key industries in Australia – construction, shipbuilding, the waterfront and telecommunications. The individual case studies are placed within a theoretical and an international perspective, and conclusions are drawn which point up many common threads running through industrial relations in widely differing industries.

History and Heritage
The Social Origins of the British Industrial Relations Systems

Alan Fox

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

History and Heritage (1985) offers the first comprehensive exploration and assessment of the historical developments that form Britain’s industrial relations system – its institutions, texture and place in wider society. It looks at pre-industrial patterns of thought and behaviour, at religious and political struggles, different strategies of rule and social control, and at the central significance of the ruling order’s conditional commitment to the rule of law and certain liberal freedoms.

Industrial Relations
Contemporary Problems and Perspectives

Edited by B.C. Roberts

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Industrial Relations (1968) discusses the impact of the changing industrial relations environment on the supply of labour, trade unions, management, collective bargaining, wage policy, factory-level relationships, industrial social policy, the law, politics and public policy and its administration in the labour field.

Industrial Relations and Health Services
Edited by A.S. Sethi, S.J. Dimmock
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
Industrial Relations and Health Services (1982) provides a comparative treatment of labour and industrial relations in health services in Canada, Britain and the USA. While there are differences between the systems in these three countries, such differences illuminate the particular responses and policies that need to be made in varying circumstances. It is written by practitioners as well as academics, so that it will provide practical insights into bargaining strategies, labour relations issues and conflict resolution techniques.

Industrial Relations in a Changing World
Edited by Michael E. Beesley
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
Industrial Relations in a Changing World (1975) shows how industrial relations embrace very deep-rooted attitudes and institutions, and that change, if it is to be radical, is slow. This book exposes long-term trends underlying developments in the 1970s, emphasising the importance and variety of objective industrial conditions that condition bargaining, the capacity of bargaining machinery to absorb change, the long-standing ideology inherent in the social contract, and the gradual emergence of a multinational dimension in trade union affairs.

Industrial Relations in the Modern State
An Introductory Survey
R. Keith Kelsall, T. Plaut
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
Industrial Relations in the Modern State (1937) provides an introduction, as objective as possible in character, to the differing policies of 1930s liberal and totalitarian states in the matter of industrial relations. The period was the height of trade union affairs. The book exposes long-term trends underlying developments in the 1970s, emphasising the importance and variety of objective industrial conditions that condition bargaining, the capacity of bargaining machinery to absorb change, the long-standing ideology inherent in the social contract, and the gradual emergence of a multinational dimension in trade union affairs.

Labour and Business in Modern Britain
Edited by Charles Harvey, John Turner
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
Labour and Business in Modern Britain (1989) examines the history of labour relations in British business using important empirical research. The study of ‘labour process’ and the dynamics of the labour market are key, and each chapter follows a similar format, with an examination of the environment of industrial relations – economic, legal, social and political – and the major players – unions, employers and governments. Then follow descriptions of the main processes of industrial relations, such as local and centralised collective bargaining, arbitration and mediation, joint consultation and employee participation.

International and Comparative Industrial Relations
A Study of Developed Market Economies
Edited by Greg J. Bamber
Monash University, Australia, Russell D. Lansbury
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
International and Comparative Industrial Relations (1987) analyses the factors shaping industrial relations in different countries, including the characteristics of the major groups and parties concerned, and the nature and types of bargaining relationships which have evolved. Each chapter follows a similar format, with an examination of the environment of industrial relations – economic, legal, social and political – and the major players – unions, employers and governments. Then follow descriptions of the main processes of industrial relations, such as local and centralised collective bargaining, arbitration and mediation, joint consultation and employee participation.

Industrial Relations in the Public Services
Edited by S.J. Dimmock, R. Mailly, A.S. Sethi
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
Industrial Relations in the Public Services (1989) assesses the changes in industrial relations following Thatcher’s 1979 election in three particular parts of the public sector: local authorities, the national health service and the civil service. It considers the effects of the changing ‘political contingency’ on industrial relations, and discusses the trade union responses and the impact of the new conditions on bargaining.

<td>Living with Capitalism (1977) examines work in a large corporation and its effects on the people working there. It uses as its source ‘ChemCo’, an anonymised giant, British-owned multinational chemical producer, and the authors interviewed workers, foremen and managers to analyse relations within its factory, relations both class and industrial, as well as the structures of capitalistic production.</td>

<td>National Wages Policy in War and Peace (1958) examines the thorny issue of inflation prevention, looking at a host of Western economies in the wartime and postwar period. It looks at the experience of national wage policies under a variety of different economic and social conditions, and concludes that a centrally administered national wages policy cannot be relied upon as a means of preventing inflation. It indicates that this may be achieved with the minimum interference with free collective bargaining if all parties, Government, trade unions and employers exercise their power with responsibility.</td>

Safety at Work and the Unions

P.B. Beaumont

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
Safety at Work and the Unions (1983) surveys the whole field of safety at work. It looks at the diverse body of literature on the subject, examines the organisational structures by which labour and management are attempting to cope with the problem, and compares the British with overseas experience. It reports original research on how joint safety committees actually work, and looks at several case studies in depth.

The Decline of Trade Union Organisation

P.B. Beaumont

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
The Decline of Trade Union Organisation (1987) considers the reasons behind the decline in trade union membership and discusses the prospects for recovery. It shows that many factors were at work besides unemployment growth, and overall it argues that the changing structure and nature of British industry was having a fundamental affect on the nature of trade union activity. It points to legislation which protects individual employees without the need for union involvement; to the fact that a major growth area is the private services sector which has been traditionally poorly unionised; and the rise in smaller non-union plants.

Staff Relations in the Civil Service
Fifty Years of Whitleyism

Henry Parris

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
Staff Relations in the Civil Service (1973) describes the origins of the Civil Service National Whitley Council, the growing pains it endured in its early years, its major achievements and the role it played in industrial relations between staff in the civil service and their employers, the British Government.

The Development of Industrial Relations in Britain, 1911–1939

Studies in the Evolution of Collective Bargaining at National and Industry Level

Rodger Charles

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
The Development of Industrial Relations in Britain (1973) examines the evolution of the central institution of the British industrial relations system – collective bargaining. This book traces changes to collective bargaining, and therefore industrial relations, through the most significant joint attempts made by trade unionists and employers to understand and improve it. These attempts were through the Industrial Council (1911–13), the Whitley Committee, Report and Scheme (1916–39), the National Industrial Conference (1919–21) and the Conference on Industrial Reorganisation and Industrial Relations (1928–9).

The British Worker Question
A New Look at Workers and Productivity in Manufacturing

Theo Nichols

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
The British Worker Question (1986) examines the productivity of British workers, drawing upon a wide range of management, trade union and other sources, and spanning the traditional preserves of several other areas and disciplines – economic history, industrial administration, industrial relations and Marxism. It criticises much earlier research for its lack of a grounded sociological analysis of both workers and managements and for its lack of detailed attention to how goods and services are actually produced. The book accords a central place in its analysis of workers and productivity to the role of social organisation and management.

The Durham Miners, 1919–1960

W.R. Garside

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
The Durham Miners (1971) examines the Durham miners’ movement and of its organization – its economic, social, financial and political development. It looks at the miners’ demands for nationalization and for improved working and living conditions, and the outcomes of trade union negotiation and of industrial dispute.

The Origins of British Industrial Relations
The Nineteenth Century Experience

Keith Burgess
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
The Origins of British Industrial Relations (1975) traces the beginnings of industrial relations in nineteenth century Britain, looking at the interdependence of economic, political, legal and ideological factors that provide the framework. This important study, focusing on the key sectors of engineering, building, coal mining and cotton textiles, shows how the origins of British industrial relations reflected the changing character of international capitalism during the nineteenth century.

The Policy-making Process

J.J. Richardson
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
The Policy-making Process (1969) studies the relationships between the Conservative Government of 1956 and the organised industrial groups that were considered its natural allies in the aftermath of the Restrictive Trade Practices Act of 1956. This Act reflected a long-standing belief in Britain that the degree of competition and the efficient uses of resources are closely related, and acted against the long-established practices of certain industrial trade associations.

The Price of TUC Leadership

Edited by Bryn Roberts
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations
The Price of TUC Leadership (1961) is a serious criticism of the TUC by the General Secretary of another large trade union. It contends, among other things, that the TUC bore responsibility for Labour’s defeat in the 1959 General Election, and for the decline in the influence and effectiveness of the trade union movement. It also criticises the leadership and its public relations, and covers the part played by the union in the de-nationalization of the steel industry.

The TUC Overseas
The Roots of Policy

Marjorie Nicholson
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

The TUC Overseas (1986) traces the decisions made by the Trades Union Congress in response to domestic and external influences and events, from its establishment of a joint international committee with the Labour Party in 1917 to the first congress of the World Federation of Trade Unions in 1945. In this crucial period the TUC played a part in the establishment of international union and labour organisations. This international framework and the Labour Party’s imperial policy are treated here in relation to the TUC’s work first in India and then in the colonies.

Wage Regulation under the Statute of Artificers

R. Keith Kelsall
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

Wage Regulation under the Statute of Artificers (1938) is a study of the enforcement of the 1562 Statute of Artificers during the period of its operation, with particular reference to wage assessment and the contract of employment. Extensive use is made of manuscript sources in different parts of Britain, many of which have not hitherto been examined in this connection. An attempt is made, in the light of this and the printed evidence, to determine the effectiveness of machinery, the working of which has been a controversial issue since the study of economic history began.

White-Collar Proletariat
The Industrial Behaviour of British Civil Servants

Michael P. Kelly
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Industrial Relations

White-Collar Proletariat (1980) explores the major changes in the industrial and political behaviour of British civil servants in the 1970s. It looks at their turn to militancy and asks whether it can be explained by reference to the sociological concept of proletarianization, a concept defined with particular reference to Marx and neo-Marxist writers. Attention is focused on a number of variables which sociologists have regarded as critical, those of level and source of income, social origins and the organization of work.

Activity, Health and Fitness in Old Age

Jean A. Macheath
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Physical activity is a key element in maintaining the independence and quality of life of older people. Originally published in 1984, different aspects of activity in relation to old age are examined in this book. These include not only physical exercise and occupational therapy activities, but also activities of daily living, leisure, housework and shopping. An analysis is made of the attitudes of professional groups, such as nurses, to their elderly patients or clients. The author shows that, at the time, the profession’s needed greater education about the needs of the elderly who cannot be considered as an homogeneous group.

Adjustment to Adult Hearing Loss

Edited by Harold Orflans
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1985, the chapters in this book were, with two exceptions, first prepared for and discussed at a monthly research seminar series on Hearing Loss in Adulthood during the 1983-1984 academic year. One of the exceptions was included to fill a major gap in the literature dealing with the experience of persons who suffer a moderate hearing loss in midlife. The other, by the editor, presents his observations and reiterates significant points made by a number of seminar members. As a whole this book shines a light on the experience of hearing-impaired people, particularly the loss of hearing in later life.

Ageing
Recent Advances and Creative Responses

Edited by Alan Butler
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1985, this title contains a selection of the papers contributed to the British Society of Gerontology Annual Conference. The book examines some of the positive and innovative multi-disciplinary work which is going on in the field of human ageing, placing particular emphasis on issues such as: the use of leisure in later life; association and friendship; innovations in the funding of services; the political and social views of older people themselves; the importance of an adequate income and appropriate housing; the psychologist’s role in prevention and early detection of disorders, and work in the community.

Ageing and Mental Handicap
James Hogg , Steve Moss , Diana Cooke

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

In the 1980s there was growing interest in the topic of ageing and learning disabilities. First published in 1988, this book was one of the first on this subject. It examines epidemiology and mortality, and medical and psychiatric issues compared with non-disabled older people. It considers how people with learning disabilities change in intellectual and adaptive function with age, the nature of family relationships relevant therapeutic programmes, and policy and the development of services. This book is a re-issue originally published in 1988. The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re-publication.

Ageing in Modern Society
Contemporary Approaches

Edited by Dorothy Jerrome
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1983, the chapters in this title draw attention to the changed circumstances in which ageing takes place, at the subjective level, at the level of care and provision, and at the level of theory. Some challenge prevailing notions about the characteristics, needs and capacity of older people. Others are about the changing perceptions of policy makers and practitioners. As a whole it offers a view of social gerontology and illustrates the integration of theory and practice. Taken together, the contributions reflect the view that the contemporary experience of old age needs to be seen against a background of social change and cultural diversity.

Ageing, Neuropsychology and the 'New' Dementias
Definitions, Explanations and Practical Approaches

Una Holden
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1995, this title introduces the concepts of neuropsychology and behaviour and the recent research on dementia to equip the professional user with the most up-to-date knowledge of these influences on ageing. This practical resource fills the gaps in knowledge and practice by providing a wealth of explanations, suggestions for assessments and approaches to common problems encountered with this age group. Chapters focus on such issues as: recognizing the problems of head injuries, misinterpreted behaviour and impairments to brain function; re-examining the concept of dementia management, rehabilitation and training; community care.

Ageing and Health Care
Social Science and Policy Perspectives

Edited by Marcia G. Ory , Kathleen Bond
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

First published in 1989, Aging and Health Care focuses on the most urgent health care problems of older people at the time and explores possible solutions. Drawing on up-to-date social and behavioral research, it provides a sound basis on which to build policies and practices on ageing and health care. The contributors examine the complex relationships among aging persons, their health care needs, and the current health care and support systems. Individual chapters contribute in particular to our understanding of the interactions of the health care system with individual aging processes, and the interdependence between the informal and formal care systems.

Caring for Elderly People
Understanding and Practical Help (Third Edition)

Susan Hooker
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

First published in 1976, Caring for Elderly People rapidly established itself as a standard guide for anyone dealing on a day-to-day basis with the elderly. This updated and revised edition, originally published in 1990, contains information on financial help and services and on the new technology available at the time. The book concerns itself primarily with elderly people who are either living alone or with relatives. In addition to setting out the practical steps to be taken in the treatment of illness, the author explains why elderly people cannot cope with apparently simple operations, and why they act in a certain way.

Communication Problems in Elderly People
Practical Approaches to Management

Rosemary Gravell
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

In the 1980s work with elderly people was making up an increasing proportion of the workload of speech therapists, due to the overall increase in the elderly population. Originally published in 1988, this book provides a practical approach to working with elderly people with speech and communication difficulties. While traditional speech therapy for adults with specific disorders is covered, it focuses primarily upon the ‘indirect’ role of the therapist, working through lay and professional carers, environmental modification and in both hospital and community.

Dependency and Interdependency in Old Age
Theoretical Perspectives and Policy Alternatives

Edited by Chris Phillipson University of Manchester, UK,
Miriam Bernard, Patricia Strang
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1986, Dependency and Interdependency in Old Age presents papers from the British Society of Gerontology annual conference in 1985. The areas covered include: the sociology of ageing, methodological issues, evaluations of service provision, ethnographies of growing old, historical studies and political perspectives on ageing. A creative dialogue between the proponents of these themes was urgently needed at the time and it was hoped that this volume would stimulate such a discussion.

Daughters Who Care
Daughters Caring for Mothers at Home

Jane Lewis, Barbara Meredith
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1988, from in-depth interviews with daughters who have looked after their mothers for varying numbers of years, Jane Lewis and Barbara Meredith look at why it is that women come to care, and consider the legacy of their caring experiences. Because caring is usually a labour of love, the feelings that surround it are complicated and fraught with ambivalence. In analysing these Daughters Who Care explores the meaning of caring from the carer’s point of view, as well as examining the implications for professionals seeking to ‘support the supporters’.

Domiciliary Services for the Elderly

Liam Clarke
W.F.CLARKE@BTON.AC.UK - Undeliverable
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1984, Domiciliary Services for the Elderly looks at the field of elderly care and particularly domiciliary work from the perspective of social services. Starting with the early influences that helped shape the development of Domiciliary Services for elderly people, the author, a qualified social worker, goes on to look at how the service has developed over the years and where it falls short. Chapters include the role of government policy over time, European comparisons, and training. The final chapter looks to the future and what part domiciliary services might play in the care of our aging population.

Day Brought Back My Night
Aging and New Vision Loss

Stephen Charles Ainlay
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1989, Day Brought Back My Night explores the lives of people who have lost sight in late life as a result of age-related visual disorders. As life expectancy in western society has increased, the number of people who fall into this group has grown, yet little had been written on this plight. This major study filled the gap in the literature, and will still be of great value to practitioners, scholars, and students in the fields of social gerontology, medicine, social work, and nursing. Stephen Ainlay surveys the various etiologies of age-related visual disorders and establishes the medical framework of the problem.

Drugs, Ageing and Society
Social and Pharmacological Perspectives

Bruce Burns, Chris Phillipson University of Manchester, UK
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

During the 1970s and 1980s prescription and over-the-counter drugs had come to play a major role in the health care of older people. Originally published in 1986, this book reviews the historical background to this development and explores its social and pharmacological implications. The main aim of the study was to provide a critical perspective on drug use together with a framework for developing effective prescribing policies. The authors do not, in developing their arguments, reject the enormous value of drugs in the treatment of many illnesses affecting older people; they do, however, criticize excessive as well as inappropriate prescribing.
Facing Retirement

A Guide for the Middle Aged and Elderly

A Country Doctor

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Especially in the 1980s, an increasing proportion of all prescribed medicines went to people over 65 years of age, not only because they constituted a growing sector of the population but also because their consumption rate, unlike that of younger people was increasing. First published in 1988, the authors looked at the medicines prescribed for, and taken by, a nationally representative sample of elderly people. The experiences and views of both patients (elderly people) and professionals (general practitioners) are examined and related. What is revealed is how much, and how little GPs knew about the social circumstances and medicine taking of their elderly patients.

Establishing a Geriatric Service

Edited by Davis Cookley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1982, in this book experts describe the geriatric services in Britain at the time, a country which had pioneered developments in this field over the previous thirty years. Much of the practical knowledge required to establish a service is outlined and the underlying philosophy is also discussed. The material covered includes the historical development of the services, operational policies, the team approach, orthopaedic and psychiatric services for the elderly and the social aspects of care. There is also a chapter dealing with the importance of education and research in this field.

Housing for the Elderly

Planning and Policy Formulation in Western Europe and North America

Leonard Heumann, Duncan Boldy

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

During the 1970s housing and social welfare policy as it affected the elderly was changing throughout Western society. Conventional high-rise apartments and institutionalized nursing or residential homes were no longer the sole public responses to housing the elderly. Originally published in 1982, this book defines sheltered housing, traces its development in Western society and analyses its success under several variations in Great Britain. The British analysis focuses on those aspects of the sheltered housing programme that had wider relevance to the development of Assisted Independent Living (AIL) housing policy in Europe and North America.

Independence and the Elderly

Malcolm J. Fisk

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

In the 1980s much research into the needs of the elderly was undertaken from the perspective of a ‘sickness’ model, a model which enforced labels of elderly people as frail, disabled, dependent and economically unproductive. Few studies adopted a positive attitude to ageing and elderly people. Originally published in 1986, reissued here with a new preface, this book helped to redress this imbalance by focusing on the theme of independence, examined particularly from the perspective of current housing and social policies relating to elderly people at the time.
Intellectual Functioning in the Aged

R. D. Savage, P. G. Britton, N. Bolton

5F 01955088, E.H. Hall

By the early 1970s the psychology of age had become an extremely important topic in the field. In the present book, originally published in 1973, the authors are particularly concerned with the subject of intellectual functioning. Intellectual functioning is severely affected by psychiatric illness — but the intellectual difficulties associated with functional disorder in the aged may be quite different from those in the young. The cross-fertilization of psychiatric and psychological work on problems of the aged at the time left much to be desired. It was the hope of the present book to contribute towards a much firmer amalgamation of the two attitudes.

A Study of the Elderly Widowed

Ann Bowling, Ann Cartwright

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

First published in 1982, Life After A Death presents the results of a study of the experiences and attitudes of over 350 elderly widowed men and women, their GPs, their relatives, friends, and neighbours, and considers the implications of the help the widowed received, or failed to receive, from those to whom it was most likely that they would turn for support. The authors’ identification and description of the emotional and practical day-to-day needs of the widowed, and their recommendations about the potential role of the GP and voluntary and social services, should be considered by all those concerned to alleviate the difficulties of the widowed.

Life Before Death

Ann Cartwright, Lisbeth Hockey, John L. Anderson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Since death is an experience which will inevitably be common to us all, we are often surprisingly uninterested in what services are provided for people, who are at risk or who are on the point of death. First published in 1973, this study describes the last twelve months in the lives of 785 adults. Based mainly on the reports of close relatives, it is concerned with the needs of the dying and the care they receive. This includes the more emotional aspects such as ‘awareness’ of dying and the effects of the death on relatives. The book looks at the part played by hospitals, GPs, local authority health and welfare services, and by relatives, friends and neighbours.

In the early 1980s, it had only recently been appreciated that what was known of the epidemiology of dementia in the elderly living in the community was just the tip of a large iceberg. Originally published in 1984, reissued here with a new preface, this book is concerned with presenting information on the nature of dementia, its prevalence and the existing pattern of services available at the time. It begins by considering the nature and epidemiology of dementia and examines the problems of supporting dementia sufferers for both families and professionals.

Long-Term Care for the Elderly

A Comparative View of Layers of Care

Betty H. Landsberger

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

In the 1980s, the need for long-term care for elderly people in Western societies was quite obvious from the increasing numbers of old and very old people in the population. Countries had responded in a number of different ways to cope with this need. Originally published in 1985, the central theme of this book is to explore these different ways and to probe beneath the surface level of institutions and specific programs. Beneath this level are a number of layers of care, consisting of attitudes, beliefs and values on a social as well as personal level.

Old Age in European Society

The Case of France

Peter N. Stearns

George Mason University

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1977, Old Age in European Society provides an historical perspective on aging, a process which had received little attention from any group in the social sciences and virtually none from historians at the time. Starting from the premise that ‘the elderly can and should be active, participant members of their society’ the book examines the ways in which old people were and are viewed by certain key groups. This is done in a series of thematic essays linked by the main theme of a dominant culture in which the elderly and the groups who deal with them were and still are ensnared.

Old and Alone
A Sociological Study of Old People
Jeremy Tunstall
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging
Originally published in 1966, this was the first full-length study by a sociologist of isolation in old age. Although the majority of old people were in no sense a problem group at the time, a substantial minority of the elderly were ‘alone’ in one or more ways. About 1.3 million people aged sixty-five and over in Britain lived alone; a large number admitted to feeling lonely, at least sometime. About a million were actually socially isolated in terms of low level and frequency of social contact. Tunstall also uses a fourth category of aloneness – namely anomie (as developed by Durkheim, Merton, and Srole).

Physiotherapy and the Elderly Patient
Paul Wagstaff, Dave O’Kealy
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging
First published in 1988, the purpose of this book was to introduce the student and practicing physiotherapist to the multi-faceted components of the care and treatment of elderly patients and to present a problem-oriented approach to physiotherapy, assessment and management. Care of the elderly demands a dynamic and responsible approach and it was hoped that this book would improve therapy skills. The authors’ principle aim was to describe appropriate physiotherapy practice together with the pathology and medicine of old age. There is also considerable consideration of social and psychological issues and working with the elderly people in the community as well as in hospital.

Old People’s Homes and the Production of Welfare
Bleddyn Davies, Martin Knapp
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging
In 1980 old people comprised over half the clients of Local Authority Social Services Departments and accounted for about half of their resources, yet until then residential care of the aged had been a backwater of both research and practice. During the 1970s a large research literature had developed on the subject, particularly in the US. However, studies had been partial in their focus on issues, making no attempt to draw together their arguments to create a model that described and evaluated competing theories about what it is that determines the quality of residential life. First published in 1981, Bleddyn Davies and Martin Knapp filled that gap in this book.

Planning Local Authority Services for the Elderly
Greta Sumner, Randall Smith
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging
In the 1960s, planning the development of services for the elderly was a subject of considerable importance in Britain, both because existing services were known to be inadequate, and because the proportion of older people, especially of those over seventy-five, was expected to increase during the next thirty years. Originally published in 1969, this book describes how a sample of local authorities were planning their services for the elderly, how they estimated the need for services and the availability of resources, and how they linked their plans with those of other organisations.

Physical Activity and Aging
Second Edition
Roy Shephard
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging
In the late 1980s, the relationship between physical activity or exercise and aging was one of great contemporary interest. The first edition of this book was acknowledged as a major review of the field. With many advances in our knowledge, this second edition, originally published in 1987, contains over 50 percent more references. The author shows how far we can improve our adaptation to the aging process through an increase in personal fitness. Aimed at gerontologists, physicians in geriatric medicine and sports medicine, as well as other interested in human performance, the book would remain a standard reference work on this subject for many years.

Psychological Approaches to the Care of the Elderly
Edited by Ian Hanley, John Hodge
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging
Originally published in 1984, the overall purpose of this book was to provide ideas and suggestions about the usefulness of applied psychology in dealing with some of the problems of the elderly. Although many problems of the elderly are not included, the editors wanted to put forward ideas which they, both individually and collectively, had found to be of practical value in dealing with the kinds of problem they found to be most urgent. The chapters of this book range from the more traditional psychological topic of assessment through to psychological treatment and management approaches for various problems.
Social and Medical Problems of the Elderly
Fourth Edition

Edited by Kenneth Hazell
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

In the 1960s and 1970s doctors were increasingly trained to apply science to the eradication of disease, the accent being on the treatment of disease rather than the true welfare of the patient. This is not the same as dealing with illness and its attendant problems. Originally published in 1976, this book highlights the modern approach to the care of the elderly at the time, and emphasizes the individual contributions of doctor, nurse, social worker and paramedical members of the team. It also stresses the important role of voluntary associations relatives and neighbours. Much of the book is concerned with the particular medical problems which occur in the elderly.

The Aging Dimension
Perspectives in Behavioral Medicine

Edited by Matilda White Riley, Joseph D. Matarazzo, Andrew Baum
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1987, this volume, and the working conference that preceded it, broke new ground in addressing the complex topics of aging, health, and behavior. Taking a bio-behavioral approach to a range of topics, contributors to this book advanced their disciplines. This volume as well as searching for important interfaces between behavior and health also added the dynamic aspect of aging. Cells, organ systems, and whole human beings all change as they move through life, linking health in varied and intricate ways to changes in behavior patterns, social structures, and cultural values and norms.

Social Gerontology
New Directions

Edited by Silvana di Gregorio
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1987, Social Gerontology presents papers from the British Society of Gerontology annual conference held at the University of Glasgow in September 1986. It shows much of the most innovative research and thinking in social gerontology and will interest a wide range of academics and professionals in the social and health sciences and services, interested in gerontology and the welfare of elderly people.

The Aging Experience

Edited by Cherry Russell
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1981, this book provides an in-depth study of how old age was experienced in contemporary Australian society at the time. It was the first major piece of original research on aging to be published in Australia and in several important respects represented a clear departure from the mainstream of Australian gerontology. The Aging Experience links original in-depth data to a broad theoretical framework. Working from the premise that old age is a devalued status it examines the implications of this for the personal experience and interpersonal relations of elderly people.

Social Work with Elderly People

Cherry Rowlings
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

The care of elderly people, particularly those who are frail, is a major task facing society. Originally published in 1981, this book considers the challenge of caring from a social work perspective. It locates social work with elderly people firmly within the mainstream of social work ethics, knowledge and skills, and demonstrates how work with the elderly both informs and in turn is informed by an understanding of work with other client groups.

The Generation Jigsaw

Irene Gore
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

In The Generation Jigsaw, originally published in 1976, Irene Gore explores some of the problems which face older people in the family and the community. Her attitude, differing from many attitudes and practices at the time, was that people in old age are capable of expanding their interests and activities, given encouragement and opportunity. She points the way forward to a livelier, more fulfilled community of people of all ages. She has a scientifically trained mind capable of seeing to the core of the problem, and a genuine concern for the true welfare of older people – and of their younger relatives who will become old in their turn.
The Impact of Ageing
Strategies for Care

Edited by David Hobman
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

At the beginning of the 1980s, the previous few decades had been characterised by a ‘population explosion’ amongst the older age groups. Originally published in 1981, this book presented an important contribution toward the necessity for a multidisciplinary, international approach to both public policy-making and practice at the time. The continued social functioning of the ageing community as a whole was dependent upon a combination of social and health care services together with adequate income maintenance provision, suitable housing and transport services to enable the majority to function as autonomous individuals.

The Mind and Mood of Aging
Mental Health Problems of the Community Elderly in New York and London

Barry Gurland, John Copeland, Judith Kuriansky, Michael Kelleher, Lawrence Sharpe, Laura Lee Dean
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1983, this cross-national study had three aims. First, to examine the cross-national differences among the elderly community in the prevalence of psychiatric problems and their relationship to other health and social problems. Second, to examine the differences in health care of aged people, with a view to providing a framework for improvement of health and support services to those elderly with psychiatric problems who reside in the community. Finally, the differences in the course and outcome of psychiatric disability with implications for the role of healthcare and community resources in reducing chronic disability or its consequences.

The Social Challenge of Ageing

Edited by David Hobman
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Originally published in 1978, this book provided a multidisciplinary study of the process of ageing for those in the caring professions as well as for planners and architects, whose decisions and designs affected the lives of the elderly. It is divided into three parts: the first provides a sociological, demographic and cultural background to the place of old people in eastern and western societies. The second explores the relationships which exist (or should exist) between a number of professional disciplines and part three considers an interdisciplinary model in practice. Today it can be read in its historical context.

Visual Disability in the Elderly

Tim Cullinan
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Aging

Visual disability (including blindness) is of major significance among the elderly, and since it is so crucial to the quality of life of the elderly, it is necessary for all professional staff concerned with old people to have an understanding of the subject. Originally published in 1986, this book was written for such an audience, whether involved in care in the hospital, nursing home or the person’s own home, and includes physicians in geriatric medicine, family doctors, nurses, social workers and staff in old people’s homes, as well as volunteers or relatives. The book will also interest ophthalmic surgeons, doctors, nurses and students.

Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
20 Volume Set

Various
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society

This 20-volume set has titles originally published between 1929 and 1991. The books cover a variety of topics that affect women, often adversely, including employment, law and politics. Further titles look at infertility, women’s studies as a discipline; social and public policy; the women’s movement; how women have been viewed, controlled and maligned throughout history. This collection provides insight and perspective into the history of women, sees towards them, and how their position has evolved within society.

Controlling Women
The Normal and the Deviant

Edited by Bridget Hutter, Gillian Williams
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society

First published in 1981 this book examines the forms of moral regulation and social control that were exercised over women at the time, arguing that the study of ‘deviant’ women cannot be separated from the study of how all women are defined and controlled. Topics cover motherhood, prostitutes, abortion, alcoholism, retirement, geriatric patients, Broadmoor patients and legal controls of sexuality in Britain. Social definitions of women and institutional arrangements are used to control women, often in such a way that women see them, not as control, but as part of everyday routines. The book shows some of the ways in which women seek to resist or circumvent these forms of control.

Gender, Sex and the Law

Edited by Susan Edwards
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
Originally published in 1985 Gender, Sex and the Law explores the way in which the law, at its various levels of jurisdiction, justifies its discrimination against women in terms of the physiological differences between the sexes. The book examines the wider and most pervasive consequences of this as it affects women in their legal status, their rights, obligations and duties and in their confrontation with the law. Whilst it focuses principally on the contemporary implications of this legal perception in the sphere of crime, work and medical practice, there is also discussion of the historical development of these attitudes.

Gendered Jobs and Social Change

Rosemary Crompton, Kay Sanderson
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
Originally published in 1990, Gendered Jobs and Social Change is a systematic exploration of the changing structure of women’s paid work in Britain since the Second World War and an invaluable and accessible text for undergraduate students, and teachers and researchers, in the areas of employment, gender, and class theory. Four substantial case-study chapters, drawing upon original research material, give in-depth accounts of developments across the whole range of women’s employment, from the ‘post-feminist’ finance professional to unskilled workers in the hotel and catering industry.

Infertility

Women Speak Out About Their Experiences of Reproductive Medicine

Edited by Renate D. Klein
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
First published in 1989, Infertility looks at how fertility treatments fail women. At the time there was disturbing evidence of medical malpractice and invasive technologies which violated women’s bodies and took a heavy toll on their lives. Here for the first time, women – from all over the world – tell their own stories about the pain and stigma of infertility; never-ending cycles of drugs and hormone injections; the trauma of the ‘test-tube baby’ method (IVF); their unmet hopes when technology fails – yet again; the damage caused by experimental medicine and surgery; how they have been exploited as so-called ‘surrogate’ mothers. Today considered a classic in the field.

Political Woman

Melville E. Currell
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
Originally published in 1974, Political Woman explains why women had participated so little in the British political elite at the time. To many, the question was familiar and the facts plain. Melville Currell in an objective way analyses and attempts to answer the question, ‘Why so few?’ The book begins with a brief survey of women’s political activity before enfranchisement. It continues by tracing the assimilation of women into the various levels of political activism, as the latecomers to the political scene, and compares them with their immediate predecessors, working class men.

Rapiers and Battleaxes

The Women’s Movement and its Aftermath

Josephine Kamm
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
The long and bitter struggle for the vote is certainly the most spectacular part of the history of women’s emancipation. First published in 1966, this title tells the story in its wider aspect and in terms of the pioneers in the various fields. Just a hundred years previously, the first women’s suffrage committee was formed in London with the object of collecting signatures to petition for the enfranchisement of women which John Stuart Mill, MP for Westminster, had undertaken to present in Parliament. It points to the outstanding problem at the time, which was not so much lack of equal pay – although this still existed, particularly in trade and industry – but of equal opportunity.

Test-Tube Women
What Future for Motherhood?

Edited by Rita Arditti, Renate Duelli Klein, Shelley Minden
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society

Originally published in 1984, when new reproductive technologies were just beginning to become part of the public discussion, this edition was published with a new preface in 1989. The Editors wanted to look carefully at how much real choice reproductive technologies offered to women. Genetic engineering, sperm banks, test tube fertilization, sex selection, surrogate mothering, experimentation in the so called ‘third world’, increased technological intervention in childbirth – were we taking pregnancy and the birth process out of the dark ages or into a terrifying ‘brave new world’? Still a huge industry today, this reissue can be read in its historical context.

Theories of Women's Studies

Edited by Gloria Bowles, Renate Klein
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society

Women’s Studies investigates the world from women-centred perspectives which cross the boundaries of traditional academic disciplines. Thus every issue, every question is material for Women’s Studies. The worldwide development of Women’s Studies during the 1970s and 1980s presented a radical challenge to the male-centred bias which dominated knowledge-making at the time. Originally published in 1983, in this book feminist scholars discuss the assumptions and aims of Women’s Studies, its connections with the women’s movement, its research, its teaching and its emerging methodologies.

Women and Sometimes Men

Florida Scott-Maxwell
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society

Originally published in 1957, in Women and Sometimes Men, the author accepts the findings of modern psychology that every man and woman is both masculine and feminine. Her book is about the relationship of these two, both in society and within the individual at the time. She believes that the relationship in either case could be better than it is; that the pressures of our times load many women to live – or be lived by – their masculine sides. The pressures will not cease and a new harmony cannot be found without a self-understanding that is sometimes painful and an understanding of the opposite sex which greatly depends upon self-knowledge.

Women and Symbolic Interaction

Edited by Mary Jo Deegan University of Nebraska-Lincoln, USA, Michael R. Hill Jane Addams Research Center, USA

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society

Symbolic interaction explains the world of social behavior and the development of the ‘self’ as a function of social learning. As such, it plays an instrumental role in describing the processes that create women’s everyday lives and also, their gender-specific behaviors. Originally published in 1967, the readings collected for this volume were designed to link the sociological study of women to the well-developed and well-known tradition of symbolic interactionists’ research and theory. Topics addressed include childhood socialization, marriage and the home, the marketplace and social class, and adult socialization.

Women Attached
The Daily Lives of Women with Young Children

Jacqueline Tivers
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society

Originally published in 1985, Women Attached was one of the first empirical studies in geography to deal with the special problems of women with young children. Even within sociology and psychology there were very few studies in this area at the time. Within geography the study of this population sub-group was certainly a new departure. This book was an attempt to redress the balance slightly in favour of women’s activities and specifically focuses on a group of women who had only rarely been the subject of research interest at the time.

Women in the Community
Edited by Marjorie Mayo
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
Originally published in 1977, this lively collection of papers by women involved in community work and community action explores some of the links between the women’s movements and community action at the time; in terms both of the recent developments in women’s thinking and of their practical experience of involvement in community organizations and groups. The book opens with a theoretical chapter on women’s rights, discussing reasons for the particular involvement of women in a range of community issues such as the housing struggle and the role of women in campaigns for nursery and other pre-school provision, and relates these factors to the women’s movement in general.

Women Servants of the State 1870–1938
A History of Women in the Civil Service
Hilda Martindale
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
Originally published in 1938, Women Servants of the State 1870–1938 tells the story of women as they became an integral part of the Civil Service, work previously reserved for men. As the functions of government widened and the activities of the Civil Service touched the lives of people in more ways, it was felt there were many opportunities for women, particularly in the health and care of women and children. It was recognized that the joint contribution made by the cooperation of men and women together would benefit the service as a whole. Today it can be read and enjoyed in its historical context.

Women of Ideas
And What Men Have Done to Them: From Aphra Behn to Adrienne Rich
Dale Spender
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
Originally published in 1982, Women of Ideas is a classic reference work and, from beginning to end, a provocative and stimulating read. With characteristic energy, humour and learning, Dale Spender has dug into the hidden past and uncovered shining examples of women’s creativity and intellectual prowess which had been suppressed or stolen by men. Men have removed women from literary and historical records and deprived women of the knowledge of their intellectual heritage. Now this lost history of women’s thought is set out for all to see.

Women, Social Science and Public Policy
Edited by Jacqueline Goodnow
Macquarie University, Carole Pateman
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
Originally published in 1985, Women, Social Science and Public Policy looks at what difference the debate over the position of women had made to the way social scientists worked and thought, or to law and social policies at the time. Debate had been widespread during the 1960s and 1970s and this book takes stock. It avoids the standard statistics on the position of women and concentrates instead on the challenges contained in this long debate to the way research topics and method are selected – challenges in effect to the assumption of ‘business as usual’ with the addition of a few details on women.

Women’s Issues in Social Policy
Edited by Mavis Maclean
University of Oxford, UK, Dulcie Groves
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
Why are women ‘invisible’ within the welfare state? Originally published in 1991, Women’s Issues in Social Policy was intended as a contribution to the social policy literature which could also be used in a women’s studies context. This important collection of papers incorporates recent research findings written from a feminist perspective and reveals the breadth and depth of recent work in previously unexplored areas. It highlights the impossibility of understanding the welfare state without understanding how it treats women, and examines their traditional role as unpaid carers.

Women’s Lives
Sue Llewelyn, Kate Osborne
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
What are the patterns dominating women’s lives today? What are the issues which confront women in their relationships, their work, and their families? First published in 1990, the authors argue that a multi-faceted approach is needed to understand a woman’s life, taking in not only her personal psychology but also the social context in which she lives. They explore themes which are central to women’s experience, focusing on areas such as growing up, women on their own, sexuality, bringing up children, and family relationships, and demonstrating the increased understanding that comes from a combined approach using social psychology, feminist ideas, and psychodynamic insights.
Women's Partnership in the New World

Maude Royden
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women in Society
First published in 1941, the original blurb read: "Women have been among the worst sufferers not only in war-time but in every ill-organized time of peace. The vast "slave class" on whose backs the great civilizations of the past have been carried has always included them. What is their true share in the world's work? What are they going to make of the new world? ... What will be the scope and character of women's partnership in the new world? These are some of the questions women have to face and try to answer, and with which Dr. Maude Royden deals brilliantly in this challenging book." Today it can be read and enjoyed in its historical context.

Employment and Income Distribution in the African Economy

James Fry
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Zambia is one African country which has evolved from being a classic example of a colonial economy to become an independent state with a large export enclave. The economy has had to face structural problems that have arisen at one time or another, characterised other African economies. This study therefore throws light upon many aspects of the labour markets elsewhere in Africa. Originally published in 1979, this book analyses 3 stages of development in the Zambian labour force.

British Labour Management & Industrial Welfare 1846-1939

Robert Fitzgerald
Royal Holloway, University of London, UK
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1968, this book examines company provision of welfare in the century preceding the Second World War, a period of enormous change in the structure and organisation of British industry and management. The creation of large-scale, corporate companies increased the need for settled, experienced company workforces and for adequate levels of industrial welfare. The paternalistic, frequently ad hoc methods associated with smaller firms were replaced with systematic schemes. This process is illustrated and discussed in 5 detailed case studies with supportive evidence from many other industries. Moreover, the political aspects of industrial welfare are not ignored.

Education Versus Qualifications?

A Study of Relationships Between Education, Selection for Employment & Productivity of Labour

Edited by John Oxenham
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1984, this book investigates the validity of educational qualifications: how they are determined, what justifications are offered for them and how they change. It examines the assumption linking education and productivity and explores the belief that the ways in which scholastic qualifications are acquired distort education. In the investigations, the labour market, the school and community are not treated as ‘black boxes’ with no questions asked of their contents. Each is opened and placed under the microscope. Human resource personnel are asked to explain qualifications and selection for jobs.

Higher Education and Employment
An International Comparative Analysis

Bikas C. Sanyal
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1987, this book focuses on the relationship between higher education and employment and is based on 21 national case studies. The countries discussed are Bangladesh, Benin, Botswana, Egypt, Germany, Malaysia, Pakistan, People’s Democratic Republic of Yemen, Philippines, Poland, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Tanzania, the former Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Zambia, the State of West Bengal (India), Mali, Nepal, France, Indonesia and Peru. It is a unique collection of information, analyses and results which provide the basis for methodological lessons.

In Place of Work
Policy and Provision for the Young Unemployed

Rob Fiddy
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1983, this book promotes understanding of the provision for the young unemployed in Britain in the 1980s, both in policy and practice, through a series of research-based papers. Various strategies are analyzed which were available to policy makers. The place of black youth amongst the unemployed, and the connections between unemployment and street violence are also discussed. The book focuses on Britain but high levels of youth unemployment were found all over the Western world during that period.

Labour Markets Under Different Employment Conditions

D I Mackay, David Boddy, J. Brack, J. A. Diack, N. Jones
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1971, this wide-ranging study illuminates many crucial wage and employment issues by examining the operation of local labour markets and by testing labour market theory against the observed behaviour of employers and employees in different labour market environments. It is based on an empirical investigation of engineering plants both in major conurbations and in smaller labour market areas. There is an emphasis on measurement and quantification, which provides a fund of information on such subjects as wage structures, labour turnover, recruitment and mobility, internal labour markets, manpower forecasting, apprentice training and redundancy.

Local Partnership & the Unemployment Crisis in Britain

Chris Moore, J.J. Richardson, Jeremy Moon
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1989, this study provides an informed and critical analysis of local partnerships between the private and public sectors in response to the unemployment problems. Until this book was published, there had been little objective analysis of the workings of the local partnership model with big business. This book assesses the contribution of local enterprise agencies, and how they related to other dimensions of policy responses to unemployment. An important element of the analysis is a number of local case studies of established partnerships in different parts of the United Kingdom.

Repercussions of Redundancy

Hilda R. Kahn
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1964, at a time of much public unease regarding redundancy, this book contains the results of a comprehensive survey, inspired by a suggestion of the then Minister of Labour that the mass redundancies in the Midlands motor industry of 1956 merited a full-scale investigation. The findings are based on an analysis of a 1 in 10 sample of men made redundant in Birmingham in the period. Among the matters examined are the difficulties encountered in obtaining work after redundancy; the range of geographical mobility and the role played by the then employment exchanges in securing new employment.

Rural Employment
Trends, Options, Choices

Ian Hodge, Martin Whitby
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1981, the main thesis of this book is that rural labour markets are at the core of the problem of rural depopulation in development countries. Therefore, the success or failure of policies seeking to moderate the process of population decline is linked to the policy maker’s ability to influence labour markets constructively. Migration in search of work has been a major cause of rural decline, and its reversal to bring about economically viable communities must be related to the availability of employment in rural areas.
Salaries in the Public Services in England and Wales

Hilda R. Kahn
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1962, this book discusses public service salaries in post-war England and as such makes a valuable contribution to literature of the labour market. Part 1 deals with 17 of the country’s public services and contains among other things 60 tables of salary scales. Part 2 is comparative and analytical, with chapters on salary structure, the distinction between wages and salaries, some of the problems of pay determination, and salary policy. Particular attention is paid to the question of a national wages policy.

The Concept and Measurement of Involuntary Unemployment

Edited by G.D.N. Worswick
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1976, the 14 papers in this collection discuss the history and significance of the concept of ‘involuntary unemployment’, particularly as seen from a Keynesian perspective. The micro-economic foundations of employment and job-search theory and the measurement and the significance of employment statistics are also examined. Later sections consider aspects of unemployment as economic indicators and the relationship between unemployment and vacancies, as well as the social aspects of unemployment. A final chapter considers employment policies during the 20th century in the light of managing the economy.

The Experience of Labour in Eighteenth-Century Industry

John Rule
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1981, this book, unlike conventional textbooks concerning the Industrial Revolution, stresses the continuity of the labour experience in the 18th Century. Examining the organisation and structure of mining and manufacture in England, the author identifies the main kinds of workers: artisans, miners, journeymen and home-based outworkers. The book goes on to illustrate how the pattern of remuneration and counter-remuneration was a condition of the employer-worker relationship in traditional industries.

The Fixing of Wages in Government Employment

E. Colston Shepherd
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Originally published in 1923, this thorough and critical volume collected and analysed material bearing on the UK Government practice during the early part of the 20th Century in settling wages in 4 key government departments. A substantial introduction indicates the constitutional aspect of the problem and its relation to economic theory on the subject of wages. The book discusses developments in Government wage negotiations and provides a comparison with methods of other countries. The changes of the First World War period are summarized in Chapter 5.

The Impact of Recession

Alan R. Townsend
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
Rich industrialised countries entered the 1980s with unemployment higher than before the Second World War. Britain experienced the impact of recession more immediately and sharply; over one million factory jobs were lost. Originally published in 1983 and now reissued with a new Preface by the author, this book points to the industries, corporations and places in which job losses occurred between 1976 and 1981. The Impact of Recession opens with an examination of national trends which includes the post-war rise and fall of manufacturing employment and the fashionable concept of ‘de-industrialisation’.

Unemployment

Edited by Bernard Crick
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society
This book was originally published in 1981 at a time when mass unemployment had returned to the United Kingdom. Now reissued with a new Preface by the author’s literary executor, the essays in this volume discuss in detail the damage that was being done to the community and the economy at national and regional levels as a result of government policy. There are chapters on the political and economic aspects of the problem, on the comparison with the inter-war years, on youth unemployment and on unemployment in each of the regions worst affected.
Unemployment, Crime and Offenders

Iain Crow, Paul Richardson, Carol Riddington, Frances Simon
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society

The preoccupation with the unemployment-crime link has meant that a number of other concerns about the way that unemployment affects the criminal justice system, and ways of dealing with offenders, have been largely ignored. This book, originally published in 1989, brings together research from a variety of sources relating to unemployment. This research provides much information on the practical, day-to-day experiences of dealing with offenders at a time of high unemployment and the related policy implications.

Youth Unemployment in the 1980s

Michael H. Banks, Philip Ullah
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society

Youth unemployment is one of the most critical problems generated by any recession. Widespread changes in the structure of the youth labour market, together with the increasing affluence amongst the employed, meant that the experience of unemployment for young people in the 1970s and 1980s was quite different from that of previous decades. Originally published in 1988, this book examines the psychological consequence of prolonged periods of joblessness among a national cohort of 16-19-year-olds.

Whitehall and the Labour Problem in late-Victorian and Edwardian Britain

A Study in Official Statistics and Social Control

Roger Davidson
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society

This book, originally published in 1985 focuses on the production, structure, and output of the official statistics relating to a range of imperfections in the labour market and industrial relations, characterised by contemporary social observers, administrator and policy makers as ‘the labour problem.’ This study makes a significant contribution to the recent debate over the nature and motivation of late-Victorian and Edwardian social policy. It provides a case study with which to assess the hypotheses put forward by social scientists as to the relationship between social statistics and policy.

Youth, Unemployment and Training

A Collection of national Perspectives

Edited by Rob Fiddy
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society

Originally published in 1985, this book brings together diverse perspectives of global policy and experience concerning threatened or high levels of youth unemployment and the measures taken in the countries concerned. From the examples quoted it is obvious that there was little consensus concerning what one is led to believe life after school is about or what one would like life after school to be about, and how these expectations and aspirations may be accommodated.

World Labour Rights and Their Protection

James Avery Joyce
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Work & Society

Originally published in 1980, this book examines a range of Government attitudes to their workers arguing that these provide the touchstone for all civil justice. The book looks at the United Nations system of Human Rights protection and the procedures of the International Labour Office (ILO) in implementing the international conventions which protect workers’ rights. It also examines in detail the record of 9 countries where workers were seriously abused in the 1970s namely Chile, Czechoslovakia, Equatorial Guinea, Indonesia, Palestine, the Soviet Union, Southern Africa, Tunisia and Uruguay.
