Crisis Communication Cases from Asia

A Cultural Approach

Edited by Krishnamurthy Siriramesh
University of Colorado Boulder, USA, Su Lin Yeo
Singapore Management University

This book analyzes crisis communication in Asia, focusing on how culture plays a central role in the way a crisis develops and is resolved. Each of the cases addresses the onset, evolution, and resolution of the crisis. The contributors are seasoned practitioners who have done crisis communication work in this continent and have used the same framework of five environmental variables that define culture in this book: political culture; economic systems; societal culture; media systems; and activist environments. This volume is ideal for scholars and advanced students in public relations and strategic communication generally and crisis communication specifically.

Dissonant Public Spheres
Communication, Campaigns and Crises

Edited by Karolina Koc-Michalska, Audencia Business School, Nantes, France, Ulrike Klinger, Lance Bennett, Andrea Rommele

This book covers various aspects of political communication in dissonant public spheres and their impact on democratic processes. It expands research on campaigning beyond assumptions of well-functioning political systems, to better understand how the erosion of institutional legitimacy and trust affects communication processes. Chapters also examine the role of data-driven campaigning and address how limited access to platform data affects our understanding of dissonant public spheres. The chapters in this book were originally published in Political Communication.

Race and Ethnicity as Foundational Forces in Political Communication

Edited by Stewart M. Coles, Daniel S. Lane

Race and ethnicity are central to our lived experiences of politics, yet they are often absent from studies of urgent questions in contemporary political communication. This volume responds to this crucial issue in the field, illuminating a multitude of ways that identity and power shape the interpersonal, mediated, and technological dimensions of politics. It empirically illustrates the lack of race-focused scholarship in this area, while demonstrating how studying race/ethnicity as endogenous to politics sheds new light on the “big questions” facing multicultural, multiethnic societies. This book was originally published as a special issue of Political Communication.

Risk and Crisis Communication in Europe
Towards Integrating Theory and Practice in Unstable and Turbulent Times

Edited by Audra Diers-Lawson, Kristiana Univ. College, Norway, Andreas Schwarz, Technical University of Ilmenau, Germany, Florian Meissner, Macromedia University of Applied Sciences, Germany, Silvia Ravazzani, IULM, Italy

This timely volume offers an international and cross-disciplinary examination of risk and crisis communication theory and practice in Europe. This exciting and innovative volume will interest scholars and students of risk and crisis communication, media studies, political communication, public relations, political studies and international relations.

State-Sponsored Disinformation Around the Globe
How Politicians Deceive their Citizens

Edited by Martin Echeverría, University of Puebla, Mexico, Sara García Santamaría, Daniel C. Hallin, University of California-San Diego, USA

This book explores the pervasive and globalized trajectory of disinformation, illustrating specific operations and general apparatuses of disinformation that are sponsored by the State institutions in several countries around the world, such as governments, political parties, and politicians. The Law of Public Communication is an ideal core textbook for undergraduate and graduate courses in communication law and mass media law.

Start-up and Entrepreneurial Communication
Theoretical Foundations and Contemporary Development

Edited by Alexander Godulla, Leipzig University, Germany, Linjuan Rita Men, University of Florida, U.S.A.

This book delves into the dynamic field of start-up and entrepreneurial communication, addressing a significant research gap. It examines central areas of discourse, exploring the intricate balance between a start-up’s brand, identity, and strategic communication, as well as the crucial role of internal communication. Additionally, the book offers insights into the highly innovative realm of crowdfunding, complementing its comprehensive exploration of start-up communication. This volume was originally published as a special issue of the International Journal of Strategic Communication.

The Law of Public Communication

The Sociomateriality of Leadership
A Ventriloquial Perspective
Edited by Jonathan Clifton
Series: Routledge Studies in Communication, Organization, and Organizing
With the parallel expansion of both leadership research and the use of ventriloquism within communication studies, this book addresses the lack of connection between the two, arguing that ventriloquial analyses can add significant insights to leadership research and that leadership research can be a fruitful avenue of inquiry. Offering fresh insight into leadership practice, this book will be an essential read for scholars and students of organisational communication, leadership and management.
Art of the Cut
Conversations with Film and TV Editors, Volume II

Steve Hullfish
This follow-up text of the widely acclaimed Art of the Cut book published in 2017 expands on its predecessor with more than 360 interviews from the world’s best editors (including nearly every Oscar-winner from the last 30 years). The interviews contained within are carefully curated into topics that are most important to film editors and those that aspiring editors will face. The questions asked and the organization of the book is not merely an academic view of the art of editing but is the practical result of an actual working film and TV editor bringing benefits to both student and professional readers.

Cannabis

Cultures and Markets

Edited by Michał Wanke University of Opole, Poland, Sveinung Sandberg University of Oslo, Norway, Ruken Macit Harran University, Turkey, Hakan Gül醚ce Harran University, Turkey

This book demonstrates how culture matters for the understanding of cannabis use. It stems from the growing body of research on how users manoeuvre stigmatisation and celebrate the subcultural status of cannabis amid rapid transformation of the substance and its societal reception. The volume presents international studies that challenge the normalisation thesis and simplified views on patterns of use, as well as the western bias in social research of cannabis. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Drugs: Education, Prevention and Policy.

Cinema and Surveillance
The Asymmetric Gaze

Martin Blumenthal-Barby Rice University, USA
Series: Routledge Focus on Film Studies
Cinema and Surveillance: The Asymmetric Gaze shows how key modern filmmakers challenge and disturb the relation between film and surveillance, medium and message. Assembling readings of films by Harun Farocki, Michael Haneke, and Fritz Lang, the book considers surveillance in such different domains as urban life, religious doctrine, and law enforcement. In its intersection of well-known figures and a highly topical issue, this book will have broad appeal, especially, but not exclusively, among students and scholars in film studies, media studies, German studies, European studies, art history, and political theory.

Media Inequality
News Framing and Media Power

Victoria Fielding, University of Adelaide, Australia
Series: Theorizing Education

News media not only underpins a vibrant and diverse democracy by representing political, industrial and social conflict to mass audiences. Yet, few studies measure how equitably journalists frame public contestation. Despite framing theory’s extensive use in media and communication scholarship, little is known about how frames are created and disseminated – how frames are built – to explain how and why journalists frame news the way they do. Media Inequality is thus valuable to scholars, academics and research students in the fields of journalism, communication, and media, particularly scholars interested in how journalists represent political, industrial, and social contestation.

Television Sitcom and Cultural Crisis

Edited by Holly Willson Holladay, Chandler L. Classen  Series: Routledge Advances in Television Studies

This volume demonstrates that television comedies are conduits through which we might resist normative ways of thinking about cultural crises. By drawing on Gramscian notion of crisis and the understanding that crises are overlapping, interconnected, and mutually constitutive, the essays in this collection demonstrate that situation comedies do more than make us laugh; they also help us understand the complexities of our social world’s moments of crisis. Divided into thematic sections that highlight crises of systems, identity, representation, speculation and more, this book will interest scholars of media & cultural studies, political economy, communication and humor studies.

Transforming PR
Public Relations to People Relations
Andrius Kasparas
This book introduces the concept of Picnic Society – a society which we all belong to today because social media has given us unlimited opportunities to create or destroy our own and our circle’s (our bubble’s) realities, possibilities, and reputations. This book will appeal to professionals who already have a solid grasp of public relations technologies but would like to review their skills and develop their own model of public relations know-how without being limited by the strict boundaries of traditional PR theory.

Transnational Radio Monitoring in the Twentieth Century
Practices of Propaganda and Surveillance in Europe and Beyond, 1930-1990
Edited by Suzanne Bardgett, Friederike Kind-Kovács, Vincent Kuitenbrouwer University of Amsterdam, the Netherlands
Radio monitoring is an important feature of broadcasting history and monitoring reports form a treasure trove for historians. This volume offers six case studies that provide new insights on the importance of radio monitoring during the Second World War and the Cold War. This volume explores the rich history of radio monitoring during the Second World War and the Cold War. As such it offers original case studies that shed light on previously unknown radio histories. Moreover, all the authors reflect on the use of monitoring reports as a historical source and as such provide methodological guidelines. It was originally published in Media History.

What To Do About Conspiracy Theories?
Academic Entanglements in Conflicts Over Truths

Edited by Elżbieta Dągżykiewicz, Lund University, Lund University, Jaron Harambam, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

This book highlights that like everything that relates to conspiracy theories, even the answer to this question is not straightforward and can vary across disciplines and schools, and can be influenced by disciplinary ethical codes of conduct, research methodologies, and specific approaches to conspiracy theories. Foregrounding a variety of approaches, from across disciplines, academic seniority, and countries (USA, Ireland, UK, The Netherlands, Sweden, and Greece), the chapters offer multiple alternative takes on the issue of what should academics do with conspiracy theories. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal for Cultural Research.

5TH EDITION

Understanding Video Games
The Essential Introduction

Simon Egenfeldt-Nielsen, IT University of Copenhagen, Denmark,
Jonas Heide Smith, IT University of Copenhagen, Denmark,
Susana Pajares Tosca, IT University of Copenhagen, Denmark

The fifth edition of this pioneering textbook takes video game studies into the next decade, highlighting changes in mobile, social, and casual gaming. This book introduces students to the major theories used to analyse games, such as ludology and narratology, and the commercial and organizational aspects of the game industry. The text evaluates the cultural position of video games and considers the potential effects of both violent and “serious” games. Including illustrations, questions, a glossary of key terms, and a detailed video game history timeline, this is an indispensable resource for anyone interested in examining the ways video games are reshaping entertainment and society.

Clinical Photography — Theory and Practice
A Reference and Guide for Practitioners

Edited by Simon Brown, Paul Crompton, Amy Lake
Lecturer in Medical Photography, Programme Manager for Postgrad Certificate in Medical Illustration, Cardiff University

Series: Applications in Scientific Photography

This is an authoritative and comprehensive reference for understanding clinical photography and improving the reader’s ability to hone their skills and knowledge. Some medical specialties are covered in detail, including dermatology, dental and oral medicine, pediatrics, orthopedics, telemedicine, and photography in surgery and the operating room. As well as a practical guide to clinical photography, the book also discusses the legal, moral, and ethical contexts within which photography in medicine operates and, for the first time, explores the societal, cultural, and religious factors for practicing in today’s digitally literate, multi-cultural world.

Photography and Resistance
Securing the Evidence in Nazi Occupied Europe

Janina Struk
Photography and Resistance tells the stories of the people who resisted fascism in Europe by taking or securing photographs. This original study will be an essential resource for students and scholars of photography, visual culture, Holocaust studies and history, as well as anyone interested in the history of the Second World War.

Displacement, Environments, and Photo-Politics in the Mediterranean

Migrant Sea

Parvati Nair
Queen Mary University of London, UK

Series: Photography, Place, Environment

Focusing on the Mediterranean region from 2015 onwards, this volume explores photography’s engagement with displacement, a process that denotes the environmental and social breakdown of places and the forced mobility of people. The book will be of interest to scholars in photography theory, migration and refugee studies, art history, Mediterranean studies, and political science.

The Darkroom Cookbook

The fifth edition of this comprehensive guide to darkroom photography is fully revised and updated, placing analog and traditional methods into the context of a digital world and contemporary workflows. This is the essential guide for any practitioner who wants to take the next step to develop a thorough understanding of film and darkroom processes, techniques, and working methodologies, as well as graduate and advanced photography students with an interest in analog and darkroom processes.

Langford’s Basic Photography
The Guide for Serious Photographers

Michael Langford, Anna Fox, Richard Sawdon Smith
Professor of Photography & AIDS Cultures and Head of the Arts & Media Department at London South Bank University, Andrew Bruce

This seminal photography text, now in its 11th edition, has been revamped, reorganized, and modernized to include the most up-to-date and need to know information for photographers. Introducing all the key concepts and fundamentals of photography, this book is a must have for any photographer’s bookcase ideal as a foundational text for students of photography as well as a key reference for professionals.
