Our catalogue
Our New Titles catalogue is designed to bring you the most current and accurate information about our new books.
If you require any further information, please contact your local sales representative who will be happy to assist you (details to be found at the end of this catalogue).

Our history
Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.
Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.
Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year, with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Moral Theory and Climate Change
Ethical Perspectives on a Warming Planet
Dale E. Miller and Ben Eggleston

In this volume, nine leading ethicists in nine separate chapters each present a major ethical theory and discuss the implications of that theory for our responses to a rapidly warming planet. Each chapter first provides an exposition of the theory before working out the implications of the theory for dealing with climate change. In addition, two initial stage-setting chapters review the state of the art in climate science and the related ethical quandaries that we face.

Why It’s OK to Ignore Politics
Christopher Freiman, College of William & Mary, USA

In this book, Christopher Freiman explains why these 100 million need not feel guilty. Why It’s OK to Ignore Politics argues that you’re under no obligation to be politically active. Freiman addresses new objections to political abstention as well as some old chestnuts (“But what if everyone stopped voting?”). He also synthesizes recent empirical work showing how our political motivations distort our choices and reasoning. Because participating in politics is not an effective way to do good, Freiman argues that we actually have a moral duty to disengage from politics and instead take direct action to make the world a better place.

Skepticism in Philosophy
A Comprehensive, Historical Introduction
Henrik Lagerlund, University of Western Ontario, Canada

In this book, Henrik Lagerlund offers students, researchers, and advanced general readers the first complete history of what is perhaps the most famous of all philosophical problems: skepticism. As the first of its kind, the book traces the influence of philosophical skepticism from its roots in the Hellenistic schools of Pyrrhonism and the Middle Academy up to its impact inside and outside of philosophy today.

Why It’s OK to Want to Be Rich
Jason Brennan

In Why It’s OK to Want to Be Rich, Jason Brennan argues that, in general, the more money you make, the more you already do for others, and that even an average wage earner is productively “giving back” to society just by doing her job. In addition, wealth liberates us to have the best chance of leading a life that’s authentically our own. Brennan also demonstrates how money-based societies create nicer, more trustworthy, and more cooperative citizens. While writing that the more money one has, the more one should help others, Brennan also notes that we weren’t born into a perpetual debt to society. It’s OK to get rich and it’s OK to enjoy being rich, too.

Why It’s OK to be Of Two Minds
Jennifer Church

Jennifer Church argues in this book that inner conflict can be a good thing, and not just as a temporary road bump on the road to resolution. This book describes several desirable types of “double consciousness”—or being of two minds—and explains why and how they should be maintained. Church looks critically at some common ideas about identity, including a popular belief about narratives that suggests our lives should “make sense” as a story. She also examines how empathy can helpfully cause us to be of two minds, and how various forms of irony and laughter enable us to benefit from holding onto opposing views.

A New Environmental Ethics
The Next Millennium for Life on Earth
Holmes Rolston III, Colorado State University, USA

This Second Edition of A New Environmental Ethics: The Next Millennium for Life on Earth offers clear, powerful, and often moving thoughts from Holmes Rolston III, who is sometimes called the “father of environmental ethics.” Key updates include: the worsening environmental situation due to actions of the Trump administration; the deleterious effects of online consumer behavior; new analysis of the effects of epistemic bubbles, echo chambers, and fake news.
The Animal Mind
An Introduction to the Philosophy of Animal Cognition
Kristin Andrews, York University, Canada
Andrews introduces and assesses the essential topics, problems and debates as they cut across animal cognition and philosophy of mind, citing historical and empirical data and case studies throughout. This second edition includes a new chapter on animal culture, and new sections on the evolution of consciousness, tool use in animals, mental representation, belief, communication, theory of mind, animal ethics and moral psychology.
An indispensable introduction to those teaching philosophy of mind, philosophy of animal minds, or animal cognition. It will also be an excellent resource for those in fields such as ethology, biology and psychology.

TEXTBOOK - READER
The Process of Argument
An Introduction
Michael Boylan, Marymount University, USA
This is a comprehensive yet accessible guide to logical thinking and effective communication, helpful to anyone seeking to organize, construct, and communicate arguments. It begins with techniques for improving careful reading before explaining how to reconstruct deductive, inductive, and abductive presentations. Finally, there is a step-by-step guide for responding to these texts via the argumentative essay. Along the way are current examples from social media, reading questions and exercises.

What is this thing called The Meaning of Life?
Stewart Goetz, Ursinus College, USA and Joshua W. Seachris, University of Notre Dame, USA.
Series: What is this thing called?
What is this thing called The Meaning of Life? provides an engaging and stimulating introduction to philosophical thinking about life’s meaning. Goetz and Seachris provide the reader with accessible examples, before looking at the main theoretical approaches to meaning and key philosophers associated with them. With boxed summaries of key concepts and noteworthy examples, discussion questions, and suggestions for further reading included within each chapter, this book is the ideal introduction to life’s meaning for philosophy students coming to the subject for the first time.

A New Theory of Conscientious Objection in Medicine
Justification and Reasonability
Robert F. Card, State University of New York, Oswego and University of Rochester Medical Center
Series: Routledge Annals of Bioethics
This book argues that a conscientiously objecting medical professional should receive an exemption only if the grounds of an objector’s refusal are reasonable. It defends a detailed, contextual account of public reasonability suited for healthcare, which builds from the overarching concept of flawonian public reason. The author analyzes the main competing positions and maintains that these other views fail precisely due to their systematic inattention to the grounding reasons behind a conscientious objection.

Catharine Macaulay’s Republican Enlightenment
Karen Green
This comprehensive biography in the “life and letters” tradition situates Macaulay’s works in their political and social context and offers an unprecedented, detailed account of the content and influence of her writing, the arguments she developed in her eight-volume history of England and her other political, ethical, and educational works. Her disagreements with conservative opponents, David Hume, Edmund Burke, and Samuel Johnson are developed in detail, as is her influence on more progressive admirers such as Thomas Jefferson, Jacques-Pierre Brissot, Mercy Otis Warren, and Mary Wollstonecraft. Macaulay emerges as a coherent and influential political voice.

Commutative Justice
A Liberal Theory of Just Exchange
Carl David Mildenberger, University of St. Gallen, Switzerland
Series: Political Philosophy for the Real World
This book develops a liberal theory of justice in exchange. It identifies the conditions that market exchanges need to fulfill to be just. It also addresses head-on a consequentialist challenge to existing theories of exchange, namely that, in light of new harms faced at the global level, we need to consider the combined consequences of millions of market exchanges to reach a final judgment about whether some individual exchange is just. The author argues that, even if we accept this challenge, the effect of it is minimal.

Corporate Responsibility and Political Philosophy
Exploring the Social Liberal Corporation

Kristian Hoyer Toft, Aalborg University, Denmark
Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics
This book argues for the inclusion of the corporation as an integral element of political philosophy. It begins with a historical evaluation of the corporation as a constituent of political society—from Smith, Hegel, and Marx through Rawls and Habermas. It then outlines four distinct political philosophies of corporate social responsibility: the Aristotelian conservative-virtue ethical conception; the market liberal theory; the social-liberal theory; and Marxist-inspired critical theories. Finally, these theories are applied to contemporary issues including human rights in global supply chains, financial institutions and global capital, and sustainability and climate change.

Heidegger’s Entscheidung
“Decision” Between “Fate” and “Destiny”

Norman K. Swazo, Department of History and Philosophy, North South University, Dhaka, Bangladesh
This book critically examines the debate on Martin Heidegger’s concept of Entscheidung (“decision”) and his engagement and confrontation with Nazism in terms of his broader philosophical thought. It argues that one cannot explain Heidegger’s actions without accounting for his idea of “decision” and its connection to his understanding of individual “fate” and national (and European) “destiny.” The book looks at the relation of biography to philosophy and the ethical and political implications of appropriating Heidegger’s thinking in these domains of inquiry.

Current Controversies in Philosophy of Cognitive Science

Edited by Adam J. Lerner, Simon Cullen, Princeton University and Sarah-Jane Leslie, Princeton University
Series: Current Controversies in Philosophy
In this volume, leading researchers debate five core questions in the philosophy of cognitive science:

1. Is an innate Universal Grammar required to explain our linguistic capacities? Are concepts innate or learned? What role do our bodies play in cognition? Can neuroscience help us to understand the mind? Can cognitive science help us understand human morality?
2. For each topic, the volume provides two essays, each advocating for an opposing approach.

Indian Philosophy
A Reader

Edited by Jonardon Ganeri
The purpose of this volume is to re-introduce the heritage of ‘Indian Philosophy’ to a contemporary readership through acquainting the reader with some of the core concepts of Indian philosophy such as the concept of philosophy, philosophy as a search for the self, Buddhist philosophy of mind, metaphysics, epistemology, language and logic.

Epistemic Duties
New Arguments, New Angles

Edited by Kevin McCain, University of Alabama at Birmingham, USA and Scott Stapleford, St. Thomas University, Canada
Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology
This book features a wide variety of positions, ranging from arguments for and against the existence of purely epistemic requirements, reductions of epistemic requirements to moral or prudential requirements, the biological foundations of epistemic requirements, extensions of the scope of epistemic requirements to include such things as open-mindedness, eradication of explicit bias and interpersonal duties to object, to new applications such as epistemic requirements pertaining to storytelling, testimony and fundamentalist beliefs. Anyone interested in the nature of responsibility, belief or epistemic normativity will find a range of useful arguments and fresh ideas in this book.

Involving Anthroponomy in the Anthropocene
On Decoloniality

Jeremy Bendik-Keymer, Case Western Reserve University, USA
Series: Routledge Research in the Anthropocene
This book introduces the idea of anthroponomy—the organization of humankind to support autonomous life—as a response to the problems of today’s purported “Anthropocene” age. It argues for a specific form of accountability for the redressing of planetary-scaled environmental problems. Written in a novel style that demonstrates—not simply theorizes—moral relatedness, this book makes a valuable contribution to the fields of Anthroponomy studies, environmental studies, decolonial studies, as well as social philosophy.
Microaggressions and Philosophy

Edited by Lauren Freeman, University of Louisville, USA and Jeanine Weekes Schroer, University of Minnesota, Duluth, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

Microaggressions and Philosophy features cutting-edge research on an important topic that will appeal to a wide range of students and scholars across disciplines. It includes perspectives from philosophy of psychology, empirically informed philosophy, feminist philosophy, critical race theory, disability theory, philosophy of language, philosophy of science, and social and political philosophy.

Neurofunctional Prudence and Morality

A Philosophical Theory

Marcus Arvan

Series: Routledge Focus on Philosophy

This book outlines a theory of prudence and morality that unifies a wide variety of findings in neuroscience with philosophically sophisticated normative theorizing. The author shows how moral and prudential cognition and motivation are known to involve over a dozen brain regions and capacities. He then outlines a detailed normative philosophical theory of prudence and morality based on neuroscience and lived human experience. The result demonstrates how this theory coheres with and explains the behavioral neuroscience, showing how each brain region and capacity interacts to give rise to normatively prudent and moral behavior.

Secret Subversion I

Mou Zongsan, Kant, and Early Confucianism

Tang Wenming and Cathy Tong

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Chinese Philosophy

From a more traditional Confucian perspective, this book makes a critical analysis on Mou Zongsan (1909-1995)’s “moral metaphysics”, mainly his thoughts about Confucian ethos. He observes that Mou simplifies Confucian ethos rooted in various and specific environments, making them equal to modern ethics, which is a subversion of the ethical order of life advocated by traditional Confucianism. Besides, it believes that Mou has twisted Confucian ethos systematically by introducing Kant’s concept of autonomy into the interpretation of Confucian thoughts. The book will appeal to scholars and students in Chinese philosophy, especially those in Confucian studies.

Social Epistemology and Relativism

Edited by Natalie Alana Ashton, University of Vienna, Austria, Martin Kusch, University of Vienna, Austria, Robin McKenna, University of Liverpool, UK and Katharina Anna Sodorna, University of Vienna, Austria

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This is the first book to explore the connections and interactions between social epistemology and epistemic relativism. The essays in the volume are organized around three distinct philosophical approaches to this topic: 1) foundational questions concerning deep disagreement, the variability of epistemic norms, and the relationship between relativism and relativism; 2) the role of relativistic themes in feminist social epistemology; and 3) the relationship between the sociology of knowledge, philosophy of science, and social epistemology. By bringing together these two strands of epistemology, this volume offers unique perspectives on a number of central epistemological questions.

Social Functions in Philosophy

Metaphysical, Normative, and Methodological Perspectives

Edited by Rebekka Hufendiek, University of Basel, Switzerland, Daniel James, University of Duisburg-Essen, Germany and Raphael van Riel, University of Duisburg-Essen, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This volume explores metaphysical, normative, and methodological perspectives on social functions and functional explanations within the social domain, and various applications of functionalist theorising. As such, this is one of the first collections to exclusively address a variety of philosophical questions concerning the nature and relevance of social functions.

The Ethics of Belief and Beyond

Understanding Mental Normativity

Edited by Sebastian Schmidt, Friedrich–Alexander University Erlangen–Nürnberg, Germany and Gerhard Ernst, Friedrich–Alexander Universität Erlangen-Nürnberg, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This volume provides a framework for approaching and understanding mental normativity. It presents cutting-edge research on the ethics of belief as well as innovative research beyond the normativity of belief—and towards an ethics of mind. By moving beyond traditional issues of epistemology the contributors discuss the most current ideas revolving around rationality, responsibility, and normativity.

Arguing about Judaism

A Rabbi, a Philosopher and a Revealing Debate

Peter Cave and Dan Cohn-Sherbok

Arguing About Judaism differs from other introductions to Judaism. It is unique, not solely in its engaging dialogues between a Reform rabbi and a humanist and atheist philosopher, but also in its presentation of and challenges to the fundamental religious beliefs of the Jewish heritage and their relevance to today’s Jewish community.

An Ethology of Religion and Art

Belief as Behavior

b Bryan Rennie

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

Drawing from sources including the ethology of art and the cognitive science of religion this book proposes an improved understanding of both art and religion as behaviors developed in the process of human evolution. The innovative combination of art, science, and religion in this book makes it a vital resource for scholars of Religion and the Arts, Aesthetics, Religious Studies, Religion and Science and Religious Anthropology.

American Babylon

Christianity and Democracy Before and After Trump

Philip S. Gorski, Yale University, USA

Series: Routledge Focus on Religion

In European history, the relationship between Christianity and democracy has often been ambivalent. In US history, it has usually been complementary. But the role of white evangelical in the election of Donald Trump suggests that American Christianity may now be taking an authoritarian turn. American Babylon is a historical sociology of this political moment.

Digital Media, Young Adults and Religion

An International Perspective

Edited by Marcus Moberg, Åbo Akademi University, Finland and Sofia Sjö, Åbo Akademi University, Finland

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Digital Culture

Utilising results of an unprecedented global research project Young Adults and Religion in a Global Perspective (YARG), this volume explores the ways in which young adults in seven different countries engage with digital and social media in religiously significant ways. As such, it will be of great interest to scholars working in religious studies, digital media, communication studies, sociology, cultural studies, theology and youth studies.

An Epistemology of Religion and Gender

Biopolitics, Performativity and Agency

Ulrike E. Auga, Humboldt University of Berlin, Germany

Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Religion, Gender and Sexuality

This book puts forward a new epistemological framework for a theory of religion and gender’s role in the public sphere. This is a bold new take on religion, gender and public life. As such, it will be of keen interest to scholars of Religious, Gender and Visual Culture Studies and Cultural Critique, as well as those working on religion’s interaction with Politics, Sociology, Anthropology and Social Activism.

Landscape, Ritual and Identity among the Hyolmo of Nepal

The Buddha and the Drum

Davide Torri

Series: Vitality of Indigenous Religions

This book analyses the social, political and religious life of the Hyolmo people of Nepal. Highlighting patterns of change and adaptation, it addresses the Shamanic-Buddhist interface that exists in the animated landscape of the Himalayas. Offering a unique insight into a fascinating Himalayan culture and its formation, this book will be of great interest to scholars of indigenous peoples and religion across religious studies, Buddhist studies, cultural anthropology and South Asian studies.
Nineteenth-Century European Pilgrimages
A New Golden Age
Edited by Antón M. Pazos, Instituto de Estudios Gallegos Padre Sarmiento, Spain
This uniquely wide-ranging collection sets out the historic context of the formation of contemporary European pilgrimage in order to better understand its role in religious expression today. This collection offers a renewed overview of the development of Modern European pilgrimage that used intensively the new techniques of organisation and travel implemented in the Nineteenth-Century. As such, it will appeal to scholars of Religious Studies, Pilgrimage and Religious History as well as Anthropology, Art, Cultural Studies, and Sociology.

Past and Present Political Theology
Expanding the Canon
Edited by Dennis Vanden Auweele and Miklos Vassányi
This book demonstrates how discussions of Political Theology have been a constant feature throughout philosophical modernity and that they continue to impact contemporary political debates. By broadening out the field of Political Theology this book offers the reader a more nuanced understanding of its sustained influence on public life. As such it will be of interest to academics working in Political Theology, but also to Philosophy and Political Science more generally.

Schleiermacher’s Theology of Sin and Nature
Agency, Value, and Modern Theology
Daniel J. Pedersen, University of Exeter, UK
Friedrich Schleiermacher (1768-1834) is often considered the Father of Modern Liberal Theology, known for his attempt to reconcile the intellectual thrust of the Enlightenment with traditional Protestant Christianity. Despite the influence of his work on significant figures like Karl Barth, he has been largely ignored by contemporary theologians. Focussing on Schleiermacher’s doctrine of sin, this book demonstrates how Schleiermacher has not only been misinterpreted, but also underestimated, and deserves a critical re-examination. As such, it will greatly appeal to scholars of Modern Theology and the history of Modern Christianity.

The Evolution of Blake’s Myth

Sheila Spector

Series: Routledge Studies in Romanticism

In The Evolution of Blake’s Myth, Sheila A. Spector re-establishes the dimensions of the myth that structures Blake’s thought. In the first of three parts, she uses Jerusalem, Blake’s most complete book, as the basis for extrapolating the components of the consolidated myth. She then traces the chronological development of the myth from its origin in the late 1780s through its crystallization in Milton. Finally, she demonstrates how Blake used the myth hermeneutically, as the horizon of expectations for interpreting not only his own work, but the Bible and the visionary texts of others, as well.

The Fourth Pentecostal Wave in South Africa

A Critical Engagement

Solomon Kgatle

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book critically examines contemporary Pentecostalism in South Africa and its influence on some of the countries that surround it. Pentecostalism plays a significant role in the religious life of this region and so evaluating its impact is key to understanding how religion functions in Twenty-First Century Africa.

This book is cutting-edge look at an emerging form of one of the fastest-growing religions in the world. It will, therefore, be of great use to scholars working in Pentecostalism, Theology, Religious Studies and African Religion as well as African Studies more generally.

The Goddess and the Sun in Indian Myth

Power, Preservation and Mirrored Māhātmyas in the Mārkandeya Purāṇa

Raj Balkaran, Ryerson University, Canada

Series: Routledge Hindu Studies Series

In analyzing the parallels between myths glorifying the Indian Great Goddess, Durgā, and those glorifying the Sun, Sūrya, found in the Mārkandeya Purāṇa, this book argues for an ideological ecosystem at work in the Mārkandeya Purāṇa privileging worldly values, of which Indian kings, the Goddess (Devī), the Sun (Sūrya), Manu and Mārkandeya himself are paragons.

Sport and the Home Front
Wartime Britain at Play, 1939-45
Matthew Taylor, De Montfort University, United Kingdom
This monograph contributes in significant and original ways to our understanding of the social and cultural history of the Second World War. It explores the complex and contested treatment of sport in government policy, media representations and the everyday lives of wartime citizens. The author argues that sport played an important, yet hitherto neglected, role in maintaining the morale of the British people and providing a reassuring sense of familiarity at a time of mass anxiety and threat. Using a wide range of personal and public records, this book breaks new ground in both the history of the British home front and the history of sport.

The United States, 1865–1920
Reuniting a Nation
Adam Burns
Series: Seminar Studies
The United States, 1865–1920: Reuniting a Nation explores how the U.S. attempted to heal Civil War-era divisions, as well as maintain and strengthen its unity as new rifts developed in the conflict’s aftermath. By exploring controversies over issues such as citizenship, ethnicity, regionalism, and economic disparity, all of which resonate strongly in the nation’s political discourse today, the book will be an important staple for undergraduate students of American History and the period that followed the Civil War, as well as general enthusiasts.

The Years of Anger
The Life of Randall Swingler
Andy Croft
Series: Routledge Studies in Radical History and Politics
Randall Swingler (1909-67) was arguably the most significant and the best-known radical English poet of his generation. This new biography draws on extensive sources, including the Security Services files, to present the most detailed account yet of this influential poet, lyricist and activist.

The book will challenge the Cold War assumptions that have excluded Swingler’s life and work from standard histories of the period and should be of great interest to activists, scholars and those with an interest in the history of the literary and radical left.

Approaching Historical Sources in their Contexts
Space, Time and Performance

Edited by Sarah Barber, University of Lancaster, UK and Corinna M. Peniston-Bird, University of Lancaster, UK
Series: Routledge Guides to Using Historical Sources

In this book, twelve academics examine how space, time and performance interact to co-create context for source analysis. Supported by a range of case studies that cover 2000 years and stretch across the Americas and Europe, the contributors embed lessons and methodological approaches that can be adapted and adopted by those working with similar sources, offering students both a theoretical and practical demonstration of how to analyse sources within their contexts. Drawing on common threads to help with the reader’s own historical investigation, this book encourages a broad and inclusive approach to the physical and social contexts of historical evidence.

The Science of Demons

Early Modern Authors Facing Witchcraft and the Devil

Edited by Jan Machielsen, Cardiff University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Witchcraft, Demonology, and Magic Examining individual authors from across the continent, this book reveals the many purposes to which the devil could be put, both during the late medieval fight against heresy and the age of Reformations. It explores what it was like to live with demons, and how careers and identities were constructed out of the battle against them, or against those who granted them too much power. Contributors tell the story of the devil’s emergence during the 1300s and 1400s as a threatening figure who made pacts with human allies and appeared bodily, through to the comprehensive but easily challenged surveys in the early 17th century, when European witch-hunting entered its most deadly phase.

(Re)writing History in Byzantium

A Critical Study of Collections of Historical Excerpts

Panagiotis Manafis

Series: Routledge Research in Byzantine Studies

Scholars have recently begun to study collections of Byzantine historical excerpts as autonomous pieces of literature. This book focuses on a series of minor collections that have received little or no scholarly attention, including the Epitome, the Excerpta Anonymi, the Excerpta Salmasiana, and the Excerpta Planudea. Combining codicological, literary and political analyses, this study contributes to a better understanding of the intertwining of knowledge and power, and suggests that these collections of historical excerpts should be seen as a Byzantine way of re-writing history.

A Fascist Decade of War

1935-1945 in International Perspective

Edited by Marco Maria Aterranço and Karine Valery

Routledge Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

From the invasion of Ethiopia in 1935 through to the waning months of the Second World War in 1945, Fascist Italy was at war. As a junior partner to Nazi Germany, only entering the war in June 1940, Italy is often seen as a relatively minor player in the Second World War. However, this book challenges existing scholarship by arguing that Fascist Italy played a significant and distinct role in shaping international relations between 1935 and 1945, creating a Fascist decade of war.

Administration and Organization of War in Thirteenth-Century England

David S. Bachrach, University Of New Hampshire, USA

Routledge Series: Variorum Collected Studies

The essays brought together in this volume examine the conduct of war by the Angevin kings of England during the long thirteenth century (1189-1307). Drawing upon a wide range of unpublished administrative records that have been largely ignored by previous scholarship, David S. Bachrach offers new insights into the military technology of the period. The studies in this volume also highlight the administrative sophistication of the Angevin kings in military affairs, showing how they produced and maintained huge arsenals, mobilized vast quantities of supplies for their armies in the field, and provided for the pastoral care of their men.

An Earthly Paradise

Trade, Politics and Culture in Early Modern Bengal

Edited by Raziuddin Aquil and Tilottama Mukherjee

The essays in this volume explore the trading networks, religious traditions, artistic and literary patronage, and politico-cultural practices that emerged in roughly sixteenth-eighteenth century India. A variety of themes – Portuguese and Arakanese presence, artistic production in the Nizamat, the English company state’s intrusions in local economy and indigenous reactions and rebellions, representation of women in vernacular writings – have been analysed in this volume; it will be invaluable reference tool for students and scholars of history, especially of early modern India.

American Race Relations and the Legacy of British Colonialism

Thomas H. Stanton, Johns Hopkins University, USA

Colonial rule distorts a colony’s economy and society, and British rule did this too. British rule led to a divided American colonial society with slaves on the bottom and white settlers on top. Colonial rule also expanded social divisions in other countries, with lasting effects. Tracing the history of America’s divided society, and briefly contrasting experiences of other former colonies, this book shows the power of the Anglo-American tradition of the rule of law – also a British legacy – in helping to make long term, if incomplete, progress in overcoming a racially divided society, and ways for this to continue today.

Aspects of British Policy and the Treaty of Versailles

Of War and Peace

Edited by B. J. C. McKercher, University of Victoria, Canada and Erik Goldstein, Boston University, USA

This book looks at some key issues involving British policy and the Treaty of Versailles, one of the twentieth century’s most controversial international agreements. It discusses the Danzig Question; the establishment of diplomatic history as a field of academic research; and David Lloyd George. Contributors also look at the restitution of cultural objects in German possession and the Treaty’s impact on both Germany and France, revealing how it profoundly affected the European balance of power.

Black Abolitionists in Ireland

Christine Kineally, Quinnipiac University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

This publication traces the stories of ten black abolitionists, including Douglass, who travelled to Ireland in the decades before the American Civil War, to win support for their cause. It opens with former slave, Olaudah Equiano, kidnapped as a boy from his home in Africa, and who was hosted by the United Irishmen in the 1790s; it closes with the redoubtable Sarah Parker Remond, who visited Ireland in 1859 and chose never to return to America. The stories of these ten men and women, and their interactions with Ireland, are diverse and remarkable.

Colonial, Refugee and Allied Civilians after the First World War

Immigration Restriction and Mass Repatriation

Jacqueline Jenkinson, University of Stirling, UK
Series: Routledge Studies in First World War History
Following the First World War and in actions which challenged Britain's reputation as a liberal democracy, various government departments implemented policies of mass repatriation from Britain of populations of colonial and friendly migrants and refugees. This book sets out to uncover why central government decided to implement a policy of repatriation of "friendly" peoples after the war. It also explores the imposition of wartime and post-war legal restrictions on these groups as part of a major shift in policy towards reducing the settlement and limiting the employment of overseas populations in Britain.

Cultural Economies of the Atlantic World

Objects and Capital in the Transatlantic Imagination

Edited by Victoria Barnett-Woods, Loyola University Maryland, USA
Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Cultures and Societies
Cultural Economies explores the intersection of material culture and transatlantic formations of "capital" in the long-eighteenth century. The book brings together two fields of inquiry—Material Studies and Atlantic Studies—into a collection of essays that investigate the ways that capital, material culture, and differing transatlantic ideologies intersected. It shows that the eighteenth-century Atlantic world of capital and materiality informs the hemispheric and transatlantic geopolitics of capital and nation of the present day. This volume is designed for an interdisciplinary scholarly audience interested in cutting-edge research of the eighteenth-century Atlantic.

Decolonising Europe?

Popular Responses to the End of Empire

Edited by Berny Sèbe, University of Birmingham, UK and Matthew G. Stanard, Berry College, USA
Decolonising Europe? offers a new paradigm to understand decolonisation in Europe, showing how it was fundamentally a fluid process of fluxes and refusals involving not only transfers of populations, ideas and socio-cultural practices across continents but also complex intra-European political dynamics. The volume's contributors set out a carefully crafted panorama of decolonisation's sequels in European popular culture by means of in-depth studies of specific cases and media, analysing the interwoven meaning, momentum, memory, material culture, and migration patterns of the end of empire across eight major European countries.

Education and the Racial Dynamics of Settler Colonialism in Early America

Georgia and South Carolina, ca. 1700–ca. 1820

James O'Neil Spady, Soka University of America, USA
Series: Routledge Advances in American History
Based in systematic archival research and intended for both student and scholarly audiences, this book demonstrates the significance of settler colonialism and empire for Early American culture. Colonization made learning a fulcrum of power. Cross-cultural learning created the colonial economy and gave Native American and African people insights and skills that enabled strategies of survival and resistance. Colonials created initiatives to shape the learning of both the settler and the colonized. Ultimately, colonials expanded schools for poorer whites and prohibited or limited education for African and Native American people.

Emotions and Everyday Nationalism in Modern European History

Edited by Andreas Stynen, N.ISE, Belgium, Maarten Van Ginderachter, University of Antwerp, Belgium and Xose M. Nuñez Seixas, Ludwig-Maxilians University, Munich, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

This volume examines how ideas of the nation influenced ordinary people by focusing on their affective lives. Using a variety of sources, methods and cases, ranging from Spain during the age of Revolutions to post-WWII Poland, it demonstrates that emotions are integral to understanding the everyday pull of nationalism on ordinary people.

English Readers of William Caxton’s Golden Legend

Judy Ann Ford

Series: Studies in Medieval History and Culture

In 1484, William Caxton, the first publisher of English-language books, issued The Golden Legend, a translation of the most well-known collection of saints’ lives in Europe. This study analyzes the moulding of the Legenda aurea into a book that powerfully attracted the English market. The publication history of Caxton’s Golden Legend reveals attitudes towards national identity and piety within the context of English print culture during the half century prior to the Henrician Reformation.

Food in Wartime Britain

Testimonies from the Kitchen Front (1939–1945)

Natacha Chevalier, University of Sussex, United Kingdom

Series: Routledge Studies in Second World War History

Based on deep analysis of Mass Observation wartime diaries, Food in Wartime Britain explores the food experience of the British middle-classes from their own words throughout the course of the Second World War. It reveals that while the food practices of the population were modified by rationing and food scarcity, social class and personal circumstances were a key dimension of the wartime food experience that demand to be taken into account in the historical narrative of the Home Front.

Falangist and National-Catholic Women in the Spanish Civil War (1936–1939)

Angela Flynn

Series: Routledge/Canada Blanch Studies on Contemporary Spain

Although there is an established historiography on women’s roles during the Spanish Civil War (1936-9), little has been written on Nationalist women in the Republican-held zones. By examining the vital and invisible role played by women within Madrid’s ‘fifth column’ this monograph offers a new contribution to the gender historiography of the Spanish Civil War and re-evaluates the significance of women in the Nationalist war effort. It explores how and why a sector of Falangist and Catholic women decided to mobilise against the legally constituted Popular Front government in support of an undemocratic military coup.

Exploring Greek Manuscripts in the Library at Wellcome Collection in London (Open Access)

Edited by Petros Bouras-Vallianatos

This book offers new insights into a largely understudied group of Greek texts preserved in selected manuscripts from the Library at Wellcome Collection, London. The content of these manuscripts ranges from medicine, including theories on diagnosis and treatment of disease, to astronomy, philosophy, and poetry. With texts dating from the ancient era to the Byzantine and Ottoman worlds, each manuscript provides its own unique story, opening a window onto different social and cultural milieus. All chapters are illustrated with black and white and colour figures, highlighting some of the most significant codices in the collection.

From Chanson de Geste to Epic Chronicle
Medieval Occitan Poetry of War

Gérard Gouiran and Linda M. Paterson
Series: Variarum Collected Studies
In this collection of essays Gérard Gouiran, one of the world’s leading scholars of medieval Occitan literature, examines this literature from a primarily historical perspective. Through texts offering hitherto unexplored insights into the history and culture of medieval Europe, he studies topics including intercultural relations, and Christian dissidence in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. Written in an approachable style, the book will be of interest to scholars and students, as well as any reader curious about this hitherto little-known Occitan literature.

New Approaches to Governance and Rule in Urban Europe Since 1500

Edited by Simon Gunn, University of Leicester, UK and Tom Hulme, Queens University, UK
Series: Routledge Advances in Urban History
This exciting collection of essays explores how Europe’s cities were governed across the last 500 years. Taken as a whole it represents a unique historical overview of urban politics in modern Europe. At the same time, it guides the reader through the variety of ways in which power and governance are understood by historians and new directions in the subject. The chapters span modern Europe from St Petersburg to Madrid, examining urban politics through a variety of lenses including ritual performance, governmentality and infrastructure. Reflecting on the art scholarship, it will be essential reading for any student of power and rule in the urban past.

Power in the Village
Social Networks, Honor and Justice among Immigrant Families from Italy to Brazil

Maira Ines Vendrame
Series: Microhistories
This book explores the formation of Italian rural society in southern Brazil from the late nineteenth century through an examination of how Italian peasants in northern Italy and southern Brazil solved issues related to family honor. Looking at social networks and justice practices, it offers an understanding of the restoration of social balance in these communities, and explores the culture of immigrants. It will be of interest to scholars working in Italian history, Brazilian history, immigration history and the history of colonialism. It will also be of interest to scholars working on ethnographic and religious history, as well as to social anthropologists.

Prosecuting Homicide in Eighteenth-Century Law and Practice
"And Must They All Be Hanged?"

Drew D. Gray, University of Northampton, UK
Series: Routledge Research in Early Modern History
This book offers a fresh analysis of homicide and its prosecution in late 18th-century England. Using a series of case studies, it explores the ways in which criminal and civil law and the pardoning process intersected with wider societal concerns. These include: the nature and context of homicide; the importance of statute law and the legal profession; contemporary beliefs about the relationship between law, state and the governed; the reporting of trials; the relationship of the pardoning process to power and influence. It argues that while previous studies have identified the importance of discretion, they have underplayed the importance of context in determining who hanged.

The Christian Ashram Movement in India

Zdeněk Štíp, Charles University, Prague, Czech Republic

This book is one of the first to present a definitive history of the Christian Ashram Movement. Drawing extensively from ashram literature and the author’s field research, the book critically analyses the notions of incorporation in the encounter between Christianity and Hindu spirituality and ritualism. The volume offers an alternate perspective to the generally perceived history of Christianity in India. It will be of interest to scholars and researchers of religious studies, Christianity, sociology, social anthropology, and religious history.

The Independent Labour Party, 1914-1939

The Political and Cultural History of a Socialist Party

Keith Laybourn, University of Huddersfield, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern British History

Historians of political history are fascinated by the rise and fall of political parties and, for twentieth-century Britain, most obviously the rise of the Labour Party and the decline of the Liberal Party. What is often overlooked in this political development is the work of the Independent Labour Party (ILP), a formative influence in the growth of the political Labour movement and its leaders in the late nineteenth century and the early twentieth century. This monograph analyses the dynamic shifts in this history across 25 years. This scholarship will prove foundational for scholars and researchers of modern British history and socialist thought in the 20th century.

The Making of Modern Physics in Colonial India

Somaditya Banerjee

Series: Empires in Perspective

This monograph offers a cultural history of the development of physics in India during the first half of the twentieth century, focusing on Indian physicists Satyendranath Bose (1894-1974), Chandrasekhara Venkata Raman (1888-1970) and Meghnad Saha (1893-1956). The analytical category “bhadralok physics” is introduced to explore how it became possible for a highly successful brand of modern science to develop in a country that was still under colonial domination. The book analyzes the responses by Indian scientists to the radical concept of the light quantum, and their further development of this approach outside the purview of European authorities.

The Nation of the Risorgimento
Kinship, Sanctity, and Honour in the Origins of Unified Italy

Alberto Mario Banti, Università di Pisa, Italy
Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of Italy

This monograph is a translation of La Nazione del Risorgimento, an important work in Italian history of recent years. It analyses features of the idea of nationhood that animated the Italian Risorgimento movement during the first half of the 19th century. Through an innovative interdisciplinary approach, the book argues that Risorgimento nationalism, in contrast to the dominant views in post-1945 Italian historiography, was based mainly on an ethnic (naturalistic and deterministic) conception of the Italian nation.

The Overseers of Early American Slavery
Supervisors, Enslaved Laboueurs, and the Plantation Enterprise

Laura R. Sandy, University of Liverpool, UK
Series: Routledge Advances in American History

Overseers were crucial to the management of early American plantations. Too frequently dismissed as brutal and incompetent, they defy easy categorisation: rogues and gentlemen, farmers and artisans, free and unfree. Their history, revealed here in unprecedented detail, illuminates the complex interplay of class and race in a volatile slave society.

Transatlantic Anarchism during the Spanish Civil War and Revolution, 1936–1939
Fury Over Spain

Morris Brodie, Queen’s University Belfast
Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

Between 1936 and 1939, the Spanish Civil War showcased anarchism to the world. News of the revolution in Spain energised a moribund international anarchist movement, and activists from across the globe flocked to Spain to fight against fascism and build the revolution behind the front lines. Those that stayed at home set up groups and newspapers to send money, weapons and solidarity to their Spanish comrades. This book charts this little-known phenomenon through a transnational case study of anarchists from Britain, Ireland and the United States, using a thematic approach to place their efforts in the wider context of the civil war, the anarchist movement, and the international left.

Thessaloniki
A City in Transition, 1912–2012

Edited by Dimitris Keridis, Panteion University, Greece and John Brady Kiesling
Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

This book shares the conclusions of a remarkable conference marking the centennial of Thessaloniki’s incorporation in the Greek state in 1912. Twenty-three articles cover the multicultural physiognomy of a “Levantine” city. Together, they underscore the importance of cities and their local histories in shaping the key national narratives that drove development in southeastern Europe. Those lessons are highly relevant today, as Europe reacts to renewed migratory pressures and the rise of new nationalist movements, and draws lessons, valid or otherwise, from the nation-building experiments of the previous century.

The Routledge History Handbook of Central and Eastern Europe in the Twentieth Century
Volume 2: Statehood

Edited by Wlodzimierz Borodziej, Warsaw University, Poland, Sabina Ferhatbegović, Imre Kertész Kolleg, Friedrich Schiller University, Jena, Germany and Joachim von Puttkamer, Imre Kertész Kolleg, Friedrich Schiller University, Jena, Germany
Series: The Routledge Twentieth Century History Handbooks

Statehood examines the extending lines of development of nation-state systems in Eastern Europe, in particular considering why certain tendencies in state development found a different expression in this region compared to other parts of the continent. It discusses the differences between the social developments, political decisions, and historical experience that have influenced processes of state-building, with a focus on structural problems and the different paths taken to overcome them. The second in a four-volume set on Central and Eastern Europe in the twentieth century, it is the go-to resource on statehood and state-building in this complex region.

Transport and Its Place in History
Making the Connections
Edited by David Turner, University of York, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern British History

Containing contributions exploring transport and mobility history after 1800, this volume of eclectic chapters shows how new subjects are explored, new sources are being encountered, considered and used, and how increasingly diverse and innovative methodological lenses are applied to both new and well-travelled subjects. This monograph not only demonstrates cutting-edge research, and delivers valuable new insights into the role and position of transport and mobility in history, but it will also evidence the many and varied directions and possibilities that exist for the field's future development.

Change and Archaeology

Change and Archaeology

Rachel J. Crellin, University of Leicester

Series: Themes in Archaeology Series

Change and Archaeology explores how archaeologists have historically described, interpreted, and explained change and argues that change has been under-theorised. Archaeologists, scholars, anthropologists, and historians interested in the theoretical frameworks we use to interpret the past will find this book a fascinating new insight into the way our world changes and evolves. The approaches presented within will be of use to anyone studying and writing about the way societies and their environs move through time.

Heritage, Tourism, and Race

The Other Side of Leisure

Antoinette T Jackson

Series: Heritage, Tourism, and Community

Heritage, Tourism, and Race views heritage and leisure tourism in the Americas through the lens of race, and is especially concerned with redressing gaps in recognizing and critically accounting for African Americans as an underrepresented community in leisure. It will be invaluable reading for academics and students engaged in the study of museums, as well as architecture, anthropology, public history, and a range of other disciplines. It will also be of interest to museum and heritage professionals and those studying the construction and control of space and how this affects and reveals the narratives of marginalized communities.

Controversy in Science Museums

Re-imagining Exhibition Spaces and Practice

Erminia Pedretti, University of Toronto, Canada and Ana Maria Navas-Iannini, University of Toronto, Canada

Controversy in Science Museums focuses on exhibitions that address sensitive or controversial topics. With a keen sense of past and current practices, Pedretti and Navas-Iannini examine and reframe how museums and science centers can create exhibitions that embrace criticality and visitor agency. It provides an invaluable resource for museum professionals who are interested in creating and hosting controversial exhibitions, and for scholars and students working in the fields of museum studies, science communication, and social studies of science.

Managing Natural Science Collections

A Guide to Strategy, Planning and Resourcing

Robert Huxley, Natural History Museum, London, UK and Christiane Quässer, Leibniz Institute for Research on Evolution and Biodiversity, Germany

Managing Natural Science Collections demonstrates the need for consistency and evidence-based decision-making in the management of natural science collections, which are becoming increasingly valuable when it comes to addressing societal challenges. It encourages each reader to consider the different options available to them. As such, it should be essential reading for museum practitioners and other professionals around the world who are involved with any strategic aspect of managing natural science collections. Students of museum studies will also find much to interest them within the pages of this book.

From Arabia to the Pacific

How our Species Colonised Asia

Robin Dennell

Drawing upon invasion biology and the latest archaeological, skeletal and environment evidence, From Arabia to the Pacific documents the migration of humans into Asia, and explains why we were so successful as a colonising species. Using interdisciplinary source material, From Arabia to the Pacific charts this process and draws conclusions as to the factors which made it possible. It will be invaluable to scholars of prehistory, archaeologists and anthropologists interested in how the human species moved out of Africa and spread throughout Asia.

Museums and Social Change

Challenging the Unhelpful Museum

Edited by Adele Chynoweth, Australian National University, Bernadette Lynch, University College London, UK, Klaus Petersen, University of Southern Denmark and Sarah Smed, Svendborg Museum, Denmark

Series: Museum Meanings

Museums and Social Change explores the ways museums can work in collaboration with marginalised groups to work for social change and, in so doing, re-think the museum. Emerging in response to ongoing calls for museums to be more inclusive and participate in meaningful engagement, Museums and Social Change will be essential reading for academics and students working in museum and gallery studies, librarianship, archives, heritage studies and arts management. It will also be of great interest to those working in history and cultural studies, as well as museum practitioners and social activists around the world.

The Role of Today’s Museum
Clive Gray, University of Warwick, UK and Vikki McCall, University of Stirling, UK
The Role of Today’s Museum provides a thorough investigation of what museums do and why. Arguing that museums are multi-functional institutions, the book examines the consequences of this for the services that museums provide, the public to whom they are provided and the providers themselves. The book will be of interest to academics and students engaged in the study of museums, cultural policy, social policy, cultural sociology, public policy and cultural and political economy. Highlighting the gaps that exist between policy ideas and museum practices, the book also provides valuable insights to policymakers and practitioners.

Archaeological Networks and Social Interaction
Edited by Lieve Donnellan
Series: Routledge Studies in Archaeology
Archaeological Networks and Social Interaction focuses on conceptualisations of human interaction, human-thing entanglement, material affordances and agency. Network concepts in the archaeological discipline are ubiquitous these days. They range from loose concepts, used as metaphors to address a notion of connectivity, to highly formal and mathematically complex predictions of human behavior. This book will be of interest to archaeologists wishing to access the latest research on networks and interconnectivity and how these approaches have been productively modified to archaeological research.

Museums of the Commons
L’Internationale and the Crisis of Europe
Nikos Papastergiadis
Museums of the Commons examines L’Internationale, an ongoing collaboration between six museums and contemporary art institutions in Europe. Drawing on extensive interviews with the directors, curators, public programs officers in all the museums, as well as artists, critics and members associated with them, it provides a transversal account that connects the ideas across the various institutions and situates this in the wider visual and social context. The book will be of great interest to academics, researchers and postgraduate students working in the fields of Museum Studies, Cultural Studies, Art History, Media and Communication.

Sacred Heritage in Japan

Edited by Aike P. Rots, University of Oslo, Norway and Mark Teeuwen
Series: Routledge Research on Museums and Heritage in Asia

Sacred Heritage in Japan is the first volume to explicitly address the topics of Japanese religion and heritage preservation in connection with each other. The book examines what happens when places of worship and ritual practices are rebranded as national culture. It also considers the impact of being designated tangible or intangible cultural properties and, more recently, as UNESCO World or Intangible Heritage.

The volume will be of interest to scholars and students who want to learn more about the diversity of local responses to heritage conservation in non-Western societies.

The Domestication of Humans

Robert G. Bednarik

The Domestication of Humans explains the alternative to the African Eve model by attributing human modernity, not to a speciation event in Africa but the unintended self-domestication of humans. This alternative account of human origins provides the reader with a comprehensive explanation of all features defining our species that is consistent with all available evidence. It presents the most revolutionary proposal of human origins since Darwin. Although primarily intended for the academic market, The Domestication of Humans is perfectly suitable for anyone interested in how and why we became the species that we are today.

The Scandinavian Early Modern World

A Global Historical Archaeology

Jonas Monié Nordin, The Swedish History Museum

The Scandinavian Early Modern World explores the early modern colonialism, globalization, and modernity in Scandinavia, along with its colonies, and its role in the shaping of the modern world. Scandinavians played an active role in early modern globalization, and were present as traders, as colonialists, and as consumers, in competition and collaboration with Indigenous agents, and other colonial actors, in America, Africa, India. It aims at students and scholars of anthropology, archaeology and history, alike, taking interest in the global connections of the long seventeenth century and the role of Scandinavia in that process.

Passion, Persecution, and Epiphany in Early Jewish Literature

Edited by Nicholas Peter Legh Allen, North-West University, South Africa, Pierre J. Jordaan, North-West University, South Africa and József Zsengeller, Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church, Hungary

This volume examines Jewish literature produced from c. 700 B.C.E. to c. 200 C.E. from a socio-theological perspective. In this context, it offers scholars a chance to understand how the ancient Jewish psyche dealt with times of extreme turmoil and how Jewish theology altered to meet the challenges experienced.

Passion, Persecution and Epiphany in Early Jewish Literature will be of interest to anyone working on the bible (both Masoretic and LXX) and early Jewish literature, as well as students of Jewish history and the Levant in the classical period.

Text and Intertext in Greek Epic and Drama

Essays in Honor of Margalit Finkelberg

Edited by Jonathan Price and Rachel Zelnick-Abramovitz

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

Spanning texts from Hittite archives to Homer to Greek tragedy and comedy to Vergil to Celsus, the studies here were all written by friends and colleagues of Margalit Finkelberg who are experts in their particular fields, and who have all been influenced by her work. The papers offer close readings of individual lines and discussion of widespread cultural phenomena. Readers will encounter Hittite precursors to the Homeric poems, characters in ancient epic analysed by modern cognitive theory, the use of Homer in Christian polemic, tragic themes of love and murder, a history of the Sphinx, and more.

Un-Roman Sex

Gender, Sexuality, and Lovemaking in the Roman Provinces and Frontiers

Edited by Tatiana Ileva and Rob Collins

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

Un-Roman Sex explores how gender and sex were perceived and represented outside the Mediterranean core of the Roman Empire.

The volume critically explores the gender constructs and sexual behaviours in the provinces and frontiers in light of recent studies of Roman erotic experience and flux gender identities. At its core, it challenges the unproblematised extension of the traditional Romano-Hellenistic model to the provinces and frontiers. Un-Roman Sex will be of interest to higher-level undergraduates, and graduates/academics, studying the Roman empire, gender and sexuality in the ancient world, and Roman frontiers.

The Routledge Handbook of Hellenistic Philosophy

Edited by Kelly Arenson

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

The Routledge Handbook of Hellenistic Philosophy provides accessible yet rigorous introductions to the theories of knowledge, ethics, and physics belonging to each of the three schools. It explores the fascinating ways in which inter-school rivalries shaped the philosophies of the era, and offers unique insight into the relevance of Hellenistic views to issues today, such as environmental ethics, consumerism, and bioethics.

Eleven countries are represented among the Handbook’s thirty-five authors, whose chapters were written specifically for this volume and are organized thematically into six sections.

The Poetics in its Aristotelian Context

Edited by Pierre Destree, University of Louvain, Belgium, Malcolm Heath, University of Leeds, UK and Dana Munteanu, Ohio State University, USA

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This volume integrates aspects of the Poetics into the broader corpus of Aristotelian philosophy. It both deals with some old problems raised by the treatise, suggesting possible solutions through contextualization, and also identifies new ways in which poetic concepts could relate to Aristotelian philosophy.

The Poetics in its Aristotelian Context offers a fascinating new insight to the Poetics, and will be of use to anyone working on the Poetics, or Aristotelian philosophy more broadly.

4th Edition - NEW EDITION

A Short History of Writing Instruction

From Ancient Greece to The Modern United States

Edited by James J. Murphy, University of California at Davis, USA and Chris Thaiss

This newly revised 30th Anniversary edition provides a robust scholarly introduction to the history of writing instruction in the West, from Ancient Greece to the present-day United States. An ideal text for undergraduate and graduate courses in writing studies, rhetoric and composition, and the history of education, A Short History of Writing Instruction’s longitudinal approach enables students to track the recurrence over time not only of specific teaching methods, but also of major issues such as writing as power, the effects of technologies, the rise of vernaculars, writing as a force for democratization, and the roles of women in rhetoric and writing instruction.

Automating Vision

The Social Impact of the New Camera Consciousness

Anthony McCosker and Rowan Wilken

Automating Vision explores the rise of seeing machines through four case studies: facial recognition, drone vision, mobile and locative media, and driverless cars. Proposing a conceptual lens of camera consciousness, which is drawn from the early visual anthropology of Gregory Bateson and Margaret Mead, Automating Vision accounts for the growing power and value of camera technologies and digital image processing. This book will appeal to students and scholars in media, communication, cultural studies, sociology of media, and science and technology studies.

Approximation

Documentary, History and the Staging of Reality

Stella Bruzzi, University of Warwick, UK

In our era of fake news, Stella Bruzzi examines the dynamism that results from reusing and reconfiguring raw documentary data (documents, archives, news etc.) in creative ways. Original and thought-provoking, Approximation provides students and researchers of media, film and cultural studies a deeper insight into our understanding and acceptance of what truth really means today.

Biopics of Women

Karen Hollinger, Georgia Southern University, USA

This book is an accessible overview of biographical fiction films of women. Structured around four of the most popular subjects of female biopics: queens and political figures; entertainers, writers, and subjects of current affairs. Providing an overview of key subgenres, Biopics of Women examines the development of biographical films in each area and the images of successful women they project in order to investigate the issues involved in women’s representation in the genre as a whole. This is a lively and readable text for students and scholars in Gender and Film, Gender and Media and Women’s Studies.

Career Management for Artists

A Practical Guide to Representation and Sustainability for Your Studio Practice

Stacy Miller, New School, USA

This book supports emerging, mid-career and experienced artists, encouraging them to reconsider standard definitions of what it means to be a successful artist. Both pragmatic and motivational, Stacy Miller addresses what it means to have a successful long-term career in the arts, taking stock of the current landscape in the art world, introducing new venues in the field, reflecting on issues of social media and exhibition, and ultimately encouraging artists to take action in order to move their goals forward and take control of their professional lives. The book is woven throughout with interviews from internationally-based artists who have negotiated alternative paths to success.

Audio Metering

Measurements, Standards and Practice

Eddy B. Briken, audio consultant and lecturer based in Denmark; member of the AES, SMPTE and ACFEI Series: Audio Engineering Society Presents

In this comprehensive guide, Briken takes the reader through the complex and confusing aspects of audio metering, imparting the knowledge and skills needed to utilize optional signal levels and produce high-quality audio. Packed full of valuable information with a wide range of practical applications, this is the essential reference guide to audio metering for technicians, engineers, and tone-masters, as well as sound designers working with acoustics, electro acoustics, broadcast, studio recording, sound art, archiving, audio forensics, and theatrical and live-audio set-ups.
Crossover Stars in the Hindi Film Industry
Globalizing Pakistani Identity
Dina Khair
This book explores the cultural politics of Pakistani crossover stardom in the Hindi film industry as a process of both assimilation and ‘Otherness’. It analyses the career profiles of three crossover performers—Ali Zafar, Fawad Khan, and Mahira Khan. As the first comprehensive study of Pakistani crossover stardom, it captures intersections between political economy, cultural representation and nationalist discourse, at the same time reflecting on larger questions of identity and belonging in an age of globalization. It will be indispensable to researchers of film studies, media and cultural studies, peace and area studies, and South Asian studies.

How To Write A Horror Movie
Neal Bell, Duke University, USA
How to Write a Horror Movie is a close look at an always-popular (but often disrespected) genre. It focuses on the screenplay and acts as a guide to bringing scary ideas to cinematic life using examples from great (and some not-so-great) horror movies. The book provides insights into the economics of horror-movie making, and the possible future of this versatile genre. It is the ideal text for screening students exploring genre and horror, and aspiring scriptwriters who have an interest in horror screenplays.

Media Culture
Cultural Studies, Identity, and Politics in the Contemporary Moment
Douglas Kellner
In this thorough update of one of the classic texts of media and cultural studies, Douglas Kellner argues that mediated culture is now the dominant form of culture which socializes us and provides and plays major roles in the economy, politi, and social and cultural life. Situating the works of media culture in their social context, within political struggles, and the system of cultural production and reception, Kellner develops a multidimensional approach to cultural studies that broadens the field and opens it to a variety of disciplines. Anyone interested in the nature and effects of contemporary society and culture should read this book.

Media Management Matters
Challenges and Opportunities for Bridging Theory and Practice
Edited by Ulrike Rohn and Tom Evens
Series: Media Management and Economics Series
Media Management Matters explores media management as an engaged scholarship, bridging theory and practice and discussing research collaboration between academia, policymakers, and the media industry. It covers topics from digital transformation, media entrepreneurship, and business models in digital journalism to ad-blocking, location-based services, and digital privacy. Investigating the practical value of the research undertaken, it shows how media management research can provide actionable, practice-relevant knowledge to decision makers in the media industry and policy. Simply put, this book aims to demonstrate why media management matters.

Making Data in Qualitative Research
Engagements, Ethics, and Entanglements

Laura L. Ellingson, Santa Clara University and Patty Sotirin

Ellingson and Sotirin's data engagement model offers a vibrant framework through which data are made rather than found, assembled rather than collected or gathered, and becoming or dynamic rather than static. The authors draw on critical, intersectional perspectives, including feminist, poststructuralist, new materialist, and postqualitative theorizing, to reframe methodological practices of data collection for the contemporary moment. Further, pragmatism, compassion, and joy form a compelling ethical foundation for engaging with qualitative data reflecting the full range of critical, postpositivist, interpretivist, and arts-based research methods.

Academies and Schools of Art in Latin America

Edited by Oscar E. Vázquez, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

This edited volume’s chief aim is to bring together the principal histories and narratives of some of the most significant academies and national schools of art in South America, Mexico and the Caribbean, from the late eighteenth to the early twentieth centuries. The book highlights issues shared by Latin American academies of art, but also those that differentiate them from their European counterparts. Authors examine issues including: statutes; influence of workshops and guilds; the importance of patronage; discourses of race and ethnicity in visual pedagogy; and European models versus the quest for national schools.

Contemporary Group Theatre in Kolkata, India

Arnab Banerji

Series: Routledge Advances in Theatre & Performance Studies

This book is the first of its kind offering a materialistic semiotic analysis of a non-Western theatre culture – the Bengali group theatre. Arnab Banerji fills two lacunae in contemporary theatre scholarship.

The book shows a refreshing new perspective towards a theatre culture that frequently escapes the critical lens in spite of being one of the largest urban theatre cultures in the world. The materialist semiotic critical framework of this book locates the Bengali group theatre within its performative context and offers a heretofore insight into this vibrant theatre culture.

Contemporary Processes of Text Typeface Design

Michael Harkins, University of Portsmouth

Series: Routledge Research in Design Studies

This book addresses the paucity of published research that specifically deals with knowledge of text typeface design processes. Dr. Michael Harkins uses a grounded theory methodology to render a tripartite theory, including explanation and description of the processes of text typeface design based upon the evidence of subject specific expert knowledge, including world-leading practitioners Matthew Carter, Robin Nicholas, Erik Spiekermann, and Gerard Unger.

Disability, Media, and Representations

Edited by Jacob Johansen, University of Westminster, UK and Diana Garril, Xi’an Jiaotong-Liverpool University, China

Series: Routledge Research in Disability and Media Studies

This volume offers an interdisciplinary exploration and critique of media representations of physical and mental impairments, broadening our understanding of how bodies are presented as strange, shameful, impaired, wounded, disabled, lacking different or ‘other’ in the media. Contributors argue that the contemporary media landscape provides an ideal site for observing how what is labelled as ‘other’ can create new representational and narrative modes, and therefore new possibilities to think about the self. Using a variety of theoretical and methodological approaches, the volume encompasses an array of media forms including cinema, newspapers, television, advertising and social media.

Film Ecology
Defending the Biosphere — Doughnut Economics and Film Theory and Practice

Susan Hayward, University of Exeter, UK

Using the Regenerative economic model - also known as Doughnut Economics - Susan Hayward offers a thought-provoking sketch for a renewed, tentatively revolutionary, perspective on film theory and film practice. This approach will inspire film practitioners, film theorists, critics and analysts, film students and film lovers alike to consider how they might integrate this Doughnut model into their thinking or work as part of their process.

Hot Art, Cold War – Southern and Eastern European Writing on American Art 1945-1990

Edited by Claudia Hopkins, University of Edinburgh and Iain Boyd Whyte, University of Edinburgh

Translated into English for the first time from sixteen languages and introduced by scholarly essays, the texts in this volume offer a representative selection of the diverse responses to American art in Portugal, Italy, Spain, Greece, Yugoslavia, Romania, Bulgaria, Soviet Union (including the Baltic States), Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, and East Germany (GDR). There was no single European discourse, as attitudes to American art were determined by a wide range of ideological, political, social, cultural and artistic positions that varied considerably across the European nations.

Media Literacy in a Disruptive Media Environment

Edited by William G. Christ, Trinity University and Belinha S. De Abreu

Series: Electronic Media Research Series

This book, part of the BEA Electronic Media Research Series, lays out the current state of the field in areas such as propaganda, news, participatory culture, representation, education, social/environmental justice, and civic engagement. It provides an overview of how the field of media literacy continues to undergo changes and challenges as audiences are reconceptualized and reconfigured, media industries are transformed and replaced, and the production of media texts is available to anyone with a smartphone. It offers readers specific examples and recommendations to help others as they develop their own teaching and research agendas.

How the Personal Became Political
The Gender and Sexuality Revolutions in 1970s Australia

Edited by Michelle Arrow and Angela Woollacott

How the Personal became Political brings together new research on the feminist and sexual revolutions of the 1970s in Australia. It addresses the political and theoretical significance of these movements, asking how and why did matters previously considered private and personal, become public and political? Scholars from several disciplines offer fresh insight into this wave of social revolution, and its contemporary relevance. This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal, Australian Feminist Studies

Narrative Environments and Experience Design

Tricia Austin, Central Saint Martins, University of the Arts London

Series: Routledge Research in Design Studies

This book argues narrative, people and place are inseparable and pursues the consequences of this insight through the design of narrative environments. This a new and distinct area of practice that weaves together and extends narrative theory, spatial theory and design theory. Examples of narrative spaces, such as exhibitions, brand experiences, urban design and socially-engaged participatory interventions in the public realm, are explored to show how space acts as a medium of communication through a synthesis of materials, structures and technologies; and how particular social behaviours are reproduced or critiqued through spatial narratives.

Prime Time Soap Operas on Indian Television

Shoma Munshi

This book examines the phenomenon of prime time soap operas on Indian television. An anthropological insight into social issues and practices of contemporary India through the television, this volume analyses the production of soaps within India’s cultural fabric. It deconstructs themes and issues surrounding the ‘everyday’, and the ‘middle class’, through the fiction of the ‘popular’. In its second edition, this still remains the only book to examine prime time soap operas on Indian television. The book will be of interest to students of anthropology and sociology, media and cultural studies, visual culture studies, gender and family studies, and also Asian studies in general.

New Media Unions

Organizing Digital Journalists

Nicole S. Cohen and Greig de Peuter

Series: Disruptions

Through in-depth interviews with journalists and organizers, this book documents a historic and ongoing moment in the digital media industry. Cohen and de Peuter examine the issues which prompted a unionizing movement in United States journalism, and details how organizers built a union from scratch, mobilized support, faced anti-union backlash, and participated in collective bargaining to create a new labor code for journalism in a digital age. Drawing on political economy, journalism studies, and labor studies, this book provides a counter-perspective on an industry in flux.

Routledge Handbook of Environmental Journalism

Edited by David B. Sachsman and JoAnn Myer Valenti

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This Handbook provides a thorough understanding of environmental journalism around the world. With contributions from across the world broken down into five key regions – the United States of America, Europe and Russia, Asia and Australia, Africa and the Middle East, and South America – it provides support for today’s environment reporters, the providers of essential news in the 21st century. As a scholarly and journalistic work written by academics and the environmental reporters themselves, this volume is an essential text for both upper-level undergraduates and postgraduates who study journalism and global environmental issues.

The Eloquence of Art

Essays in Honour of Henry Maguire

Edited by Andrea Olsen Lam and Rossitza Schroeder

Series: Birmingham Byzantine and Ottoman Studies

For those within the fields of art history and Byzantine studies, Professor Henry Maguire needs no introduction. His publications transformed the way art historians approach medieval art through his insightful integration of rhetoric, poetry and non-canonical objects into the study of Byzantine art. His ground-breaking studies of Byzantine art that consider the natural world, magic, and imperial imagery, among other themes, have re-defined the ways medieval art is interpreted. In this volume, twenty-three of Henry Maguire’s colleagues and friends have contributed papers in his honour, resulting in studies that reflect the broad range of his scholarly interests.

The Paradox of Transgression in Games

Torill Elvira Mortensen and Kristine Jørgensen

Series: Routledge Advances in Game Studies

The Paradox of Transgression in Games looks at transgressive games as an aesthetic experience, tackling how players respond to game content that shocks, disturbs, and distresses, and how contemporary video games can evoke intense emotional reactions. Drawing on qualitative player studies and approaches from media aesthetics theory, the book challenges the perception of games as innocent entertainment, and examines the range of emotional, moral, and intellectual experiences of players. This book will be an essential resource for scholars and students of game studies, aesthetics, media studies, philosophy of art, and emotions.

The Routledge Companion to Cyberpunk Culture
Edited by Anna McFarlane, University of Glasgow, Scotland, Lars Schmeink and Graham Murphy, Seneca College, Canada

Series: Routledge Companions
This expansive companion addresses not only literary and cinematic manifestations of cyberpunk, but also other cultural manifestations of cyberpunk such as video games, music, fashion, and online culture, including sample case studies of oft-overlooked texts in these categories. The volume does not limit its analytical apparatus to overview discussions of singular media forms, but also engages in critical analysis refracted through contemporary theoretical approaches, such as posthumanism, human-animal relations, utopianism, postmodernism, and more.

Victorian Artists’ Autograph Replicas

Auras, Aesthetics, Patronage and the Art Market

Edited by Julie F. Codell, Arizona State University

This book is a wide-ranging exploration of the production of Victorian art autograph replicas, a painting’s subsequent versions created by the same artist who painted the first version. Autograph replicas were considered originals, not copies, and were highly valued by collectors in Britain, America, Japan, Australia, and South Africa. Motivated by complex combinations of aesthetic and commercial interests, replicas generated a global and especially transatlantic, market between the 1870s and the 1940s and almost all collected replicas were eventually donated to US public museums, giving replicas authority in matters of public taste and museums’ modern cultural roles.

American Literature and American Identity
A Cognitive Cultural Study From the Revolution Through the Civil War

Patrick Colm Hogan, University of Connecticut, USA

American Literature and American Identity addresses the crucial issue of identity formation, especially national identity, in influential works of American literature. Hogan uses techniques of cognitive and affective science to examine the complex and often highly ambivalent treatment of American identity in works by Melville, Stowe, Jacobs, Douglass, Hawthorne and Poe. Hogan focuses on the issue of how authors imagined American identity in the face of the nation’s clear and often brutal inequalities of race and sex. Hogan advances our understanding of nationalism in general, American identity in particular, and the widely read literary works he examines.

Literature in English
How and Why

Dominic Rainsford, Aarhus University, Denmark

Literature in English: How and Why is an accessible guide for students. It deals with the fundamental concepts of literary form and genre; the history of English-language literature from the medieval period to the present; relations between the study of literature and other disciplines; literary theory, and writing a paper. The new edition contains a brand new chapter which takes literary theory to another level, using it to link literature to the issues that concern us most, whether in our own lives or in the UN’s Sustainable Development Goals. The book has also been fully updated throughout, with significant additions to the introduction and further reading sections.

A Poetics of Arabic Autobiography
Between Dissociation and Belonging

Ariel M. Sheetrit

This book examines the poetics of autobiographical masterpieces written in Arabic by Leila Abouzeid, Hanan al-Shaykh, Samuel Shimon, Abd-al-Rahman Munif, Salim Barakat, Mohamed Chouki and Hanna Abu Hanna. These literary works articulate the life story of each author in ways that undermine the expectation that the “self”—the “auto” of autobiography—would be the dominant narrative focus. Sheetrit offers in-depth literary studies that expose each text’s distinct strategy for life narrative. Crucial to this book’s approach is the innovative theoretical foundation of relational autobiography that reveals the grounding of the self within the collective—not as symbol of it.

Aesthetic and Philosophical Reflections on Mood
Stimmung and Modernity

Birgit Breidenbach

This study explores the concept of Stimmung in literary and philosophical texts of the modern age. Signifying both ‘mood’ and ‘attunement’, Stimmung speaks to the categories of affective experience and aesthetic design alike. The study locates itself in the nexus between discourses on modernity, existentialism and aesthetics and uncovers the pivotal role of Stimmung in 19th- and 20th-century European narrative fiction and continental philosophy. Through its focus on the concept of Stimmung, this study unveils a fundamental link between existentialist concerns and narrative practice in modern literature.

D. H. Lawrence and Psychoanalysis

John Turner

This book opens out a wholly new field of enquiry within a familiar subject: it offers a detailed – yet eminently readable – historical investigation, of a kind never yet undertaken, of the impact of psychoanalysis (at a crucial moment of its history) on the thinking and writing of D.H. Lawrence.

Delhi: New Literatures on the Megacity

Edited by Alex Tickell, The Open University, UK and Ruvani Ranasinha, King’s College London, UK

This book charts emerging and pressing issues and new forms of literature of Delhi by critics and scholars working on urban South Asia. Incorporating original contributions by Delhi-based commentators and covering significant new genres, this volume provides a better understanding of how contemporary literature has registered the momentous economic and social forces reshaping India’s major cities. It will be of interest to students and researchers in disciplines ranging from postcolonial and global literature to cultural studies, civic history, and South Asian and urban studies. It was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Postcolonial Writing.

Keywords in Western Literary Criticism and Contemporary China

Volume 1
Edited by Yamin Hu, Professor, School of Chinese Language and Literature, Central China Normal University, China and Yanwen Sun

Series: China Perspectives

These two volumes meticulously select and examine nine of the most influential keywords from Western literary theory while identifying the intricate historical sources of these terms and analysing their relevance to other disciplines and ideas. The result shows how these words function as heterogeneous cultural contexts in the complexity of experience, but also how they function within the context of Chinese culture and literature. In this volume, the editors focus on discourse, text, narrative, literariness, and irony; students of literature and languages and especially Chinese literature will benefit from this book.

Jane Austen and Altruism

Magdalien Ki

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth Century Literature

Jane Austen and Altruism identifies a compelling theme, namely, the view that Jane Austen propounds a rigorous, boundary-sensitive model of altruism that counters the human propensity to selfishness and promotes the culture of cooperation. Her days, altruism was commonly known as "benevolence", "charity," or "philanthropy," and these concepts overlap with Auguste Comte’s later definition of altruism as "otherism". This volume argues that Austen’s thinking co-opts the evolutionary idea that altruism is seldom truly pure, egoism cannot be eradicated, and boundless group altruism is not sustainable.

Modernism in the Green

Julia E. Daniel and Margaret Konkol

Series: Routledge Studies in World Literatures and the Environment

Modernism in the Green traces a trans-Atlantic modernist fascination with the creation, use, and representation of the modern green. In its focus on designed and public green zones, Modernism in the Green offers a new perspective on modernism’s overlapping investments in the arts, politics, urbanism, race, class, gender, and the nature-culture divide. This book argues that such greens facilitate modernists’ exploration of how nature can manifest in an era of increasing urbanization and mechanization and what identities and communities the green now enables or prevents.

Hope and Aesthetic Utility in Modernist Literature

Tim DeJong

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Literature

"Hope" and "modernism" are two words that are not commonly linked. Moving from much-discussed negative affects to positive forms of feeling, Hope and Aesthetic Utility in Modernist Literature argues that they should be. This book contends that much of modernist writing and thought reveals a deeply held confidence about the future, one premised on the social power of art itself. In chapters ranging across a diverse array of canonical writers – Henry James, D.W. Griffith, H.D., Melvin Tolson, and Samuel Beckett – this text locates in its works an optimism linked by a common faith in the necessity of artistic practice for cultural survival.

Guido Cavalcanti

Poet of the Rational Animal

Gregory B. Stone

Series: Routledge Studies in Renaissance Literature and Culture

This book features a radically unprecedented interpretation of Guido Cavalcanti, starkly opposed to all previous accounts: far from treating love as a threat to reason that would best be eliminated, the canzone praises loving as the essential operation of rational human flourishing. This study of Cavalcanti serves as a prelude to the formulation of a new paradigm for understanding Dante’s Comedy.

Petrarch and Boccaccio in the First Commentaries on Dante’s Commedia

A Literary Canon Before its Official Birth

Luca Fiorentini, University of Toronto, Canada
Series: Young Feltrinelli Prize in the Moral Sciences

This text proposes a reinterpretation of the history behind the canon of the Tre Corone (“Three Crowns”), which consists of the three great Italian authors of the 14th century - Dante, Petrarch, and Boccaccio. Examining the first commentaries on Dante’s Commedia, the book argues that the elaboration of the canon of the Tre Corone does not date back to the 15th century but instead to the last quarter of the 14th century. The work focuses on the conceptual and poetic continuity between the authors as identified by the first interpreters of the Commedia, proving itself of great interest to scholars of Dante as well as those studying Italian literature.

Reading Transatlantic Girlhood in the Long Nineteenth Century

Edited by Robin L. Cadwallader and LuElla D’Amico
Series: The Nineteenth Century

This collection is the first of its kind to interrogate both literal and metaphorical transatlantic exchanges of culture and ideas in nineteenth-century girls’ fiction. It initiates conversations about how the motif of travel in literature taught nineteenth-century girl audiences to reexamine their own cultural biases.

Shelley’s Poetics of Reticence

Shelley’s Shame

Merrilees Roberts
Series: Routledge Studies in Romanticism

Through new readings of Shelley’s verse, this book engages with the affective, phenomenological and ethical dimensions of shame, as it is made manifest by Shelley’s textual strategies of reticence.

Terror and Counter-Terror in Contemporary British Children’s Literature

Blanka Grzegorczyk
Series: Children’s Literature and Culture

The widespread threat of terrorist and counter-terrorist violence in the twenty-first century has created a globalized context for social interactions, transforming the ways in which young people relate to the world around them and to one another. This is the first study that reads post-9/11 and 7/7 British writing for the young as a response to this contemporary predicament, exploring how children’s writers find the means to express the local conditions and different facets of the global wars around terror.

The Routledge Companion to Crime Fiction

Edited by Janice Allan, Jesper Gulddal, Stewart King and Andrew Pepper
Series: Routledge Companions

The Routledge Companion to Crime Fiction is a comprehensive introduction to crime fiction scholarship. Across 45 original chapters, specialists in the field offer innovative approaches to the classics of the genre as well as mappings of emerging themes and trends. Rigorously argued and engagingly written, the volume is indispensable both to students and scholars of crime fiction.

The Routledge Companion to Literature and Disability

Edited by Alice Hall, University of York, UK
Series: Routledge Companions

The Routledge Companion to Literature and Disability brings together some of the most influential and important contemporary perspectives in this growing field. The book traces the history of the field and locates literary disability studies in the wider context of activism, and theory. It introduces debates about definitions of disability and explores intersectional approaches in which disability is understood in relation to gender, race, class, sexuality, nationality and ethnicity. Divided broadly into sections according to literary genre, this is an important resource for those interested in deepening their knowledge of the field of literature and disability studies.

Verbal-Visual Configurations in Postcolonial Literature

Intermedial Aesthetics

Birgit Neumann and Gabriele Rippl

Series: Routledge Research in Postcolonial Literatures

This book opens up postcolonial and transcultural studies for discussions on visuality, ekphrasis and practices of seeing. It argues that the preoccupation with visual practices in Anglophone postcolonial and transcultural literatures addresses the power of images to regulate cultural visibility. In 12 chapters, the book examines how writers such as Michael Ondaatje, Derek Walcott, Salman Rushdie, David Dabydeen and NoViolet Bulawayo employ word-image relations to explore the historically fraught links between visual practices and modernity in an uneven world.

Innovations and Challenges: Women, Language and Sexism
Edited by Carmen Rosa Caildas-Coulthard
Series: Innovations and Challenges in Applied Linguistics
Gender and language has evolved tremendously in the last decades and research has contributed in many ways to the dissemination of awareness about gender and discourse issues. Innovations and Challenges: Women, Language and Sexism brings together an outstanding collection of internationally recognised researchers to recontextualise some of the first questions raised by feminist thinkers 40 years ago.

Language, Mind, and Power
Why We Need Linguistic Equality
Daniel R. Boisvert and Ralf Thiede
Language is a natural resource: Socio-economic status is associated with access to language just as to food and water. In this new book, a linguist and philosopher illuminate the very real social and political power of language, making the case for linguistic equality – equality among languages and equality in access to/knowledge of language and its use – as a human right and tool to prevent violence and oppression. Students and instructors will find this accessible, interdisciplinary text invaluable for courses that explore how language reflects power structures in linguistics, philosophy/ethics, and cognitive science/psychology.

Questions About Language
What Everyone Should Know About Language in the 21st Century
Edited by Laurie Bauer and Andreea S. Calude
This book sets out to answer, in a readily available format, questions which journalists and members of the public ask linguists all the time. With an introduction by the editors, the twelve chapters are each written by an expert linguist and end with a section on further reading for anyone interested in following up on the topic. This handy guide covers frequently asked questions, from “What makes a language a language?” to “Do people swear because they don’t know enough words?” and provides engaging and informative answers. Essential reading for both students new to language and linguistics and the interested general reader.

Transforming Language and Literacy Education
New Materialism, Posthumanism, and Ontoethics
Edited by Kelleen Toohey, Suzanne Smythe, Diane Dagenais and Magali Forte
In Transforming Language and Literacy Education, editors Kelleen Toohey, Suzanne Smythe, Diane Dagenais and Magali Forte bring together accessible, conceptually rich stones from internationally diverse authors, to guide new practices, new conversations and new thinking among scholars and educators at the forefront of language and literacies learning. The book addresses these concepts for three groups of learners: young children; older learners and youth in institutionalized schooling; and adult learners and community learning settings. Challenging and disruptive, this is a unique and important contribution to language and literacy education.

Understanding Context in Language Use and Teaching
An ELF Perspective
Éva Iléts
This book is a guide to understanding and applying the essential, heretofore elusive notion of context in language study and pedagogy: Éva Iléts offers a new, critical, systematic theoretical framework, then applies that framework to practical interactions and issues in communicative language teaching rooted in English as a Lingua Franca. By linking theory and practice for research and teaching around the world, this book brings a new awareness of how context can be conceptualized and related to language pedagogy to advanced students, teachers, teacher educators, and researchers of language teaching, applied linguistics, and pragmatics.
Undoing the Digital
Sociomaterialism and Literacy Education
Cathy Burnett, University of Sheffield Hallam, UK and Guy Merchant, University of Sheffield Hallam, UK
Series: Literacies
This book introduces the socio-material perspective as a way of providing an alternative analysis of literacy in the context of digital communication. ‘Undoing the digital’ involves rethinking communication and interaction as an emergent intervening of social, material and semiotic resources. This perspective invites literacy research to focus more on the relations mediated through the process of making meaning. Key reading for all advanced students and researchers of literacy and digital media within Education, Applied Linguistics and Media/Communication studies.

Language, Society, and New Media
Sociolinguistics Today
Marcel Danesi, University of Toronto, Canada
This book uses an interdisciplinary approach, integrating frameworks from sociolinguistics and linguistic anthropology and emerging strands of research on language and new media, to demonstrate the relationship between language, society, thought, and culture to students with little to no background in linguistics. Couched in this integrative ‘cultural linguistic’ approach, each chapter covers the significant topics in this area, including language structures, language and cognition, and language variation and change, while also presenting future avenues of study by ending each chapter in a description of how language is evolving in online contexts.

Form, Meaning and Function in Collocation
A Corpus Study on Commercial Chinese-to-English Translation

Haoda Feng, Bohai University, China
Series: Routledge Studies in Empirical Translation and Multilingual Communication
This book shows that examining the use of collocations constitutes an integral part in assessing the naturalness of second language use, and therefore can be a valid measure to make a distinction between translational language and native-speaker language. Nevertheless, the role of collocation has not been given enough attention or discussed systematically in translation studies. In addition, there is a lack of empirical evidence involving Asian languages. This volume attempts to bridge the gap in the literature and constitute an integral part in the research area.

Indigenous Cultural Translation
A Thick Description of Seediq Bale

Darryl Sterk, Lingnan University, Hong Kong
Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies
This book celebrates the translation of the Taiwanese blockbuster Seediq Bale (2011) which was filmed mainly in the endangered indigenous language Seediq. It offers a textual history of the Mandarin screenplay, which was manipulated by the translation team, making it a vehicle for Seediq interpretations of the Musha Rebellion based on the translators’ different understandings of Seediq culture. Their “indigenous cultural translations” should demonstrate to anthropologists how translation may be part of language and culture revitalization projects that articulate alternative indigenous modernities in settler states like Taiwan.

Metaphors of Multilingualism
Changing Attitudes towards Language Diversity in Literature, Linguistics and Philosophy

Rainer Guldin, Università della Svizzera Italiana, Switzerland
Metaphors of Multilingualism explores the changing attitudes towards multilingualism in literature, literary theory and related disciplines. Rainer Guldin uses linguistics, philosophy, anthropology, literature, and media studies to retrace the radical redefinition of multilingualism. Split into three parts, this book considers metaphors of the body, family ties and space with examples taken from German, Japanese, and Brazilian Portuguese. This is ground-breaking reading for scholars and students in the fields of linguistics, literature, philosophy, history and cultural studies.

Postmonolingual Critical Thinking
Internationalising Higher Education Through Students’ Languages and Knowledge

Michael Singh and Si Yi Lu
This ground-breaking work calls into question the predominant position of academic English in international higher education instruction and research. Resisting the perceived pressure to retain English as the language of instruction and publication, this research makes the case for languages such as Zhongwen, academic Chinese, having a place in English-medium universities where international students are completing higher degree research. The authors introduce the concept of postmonolingual critical thinking, with a view to broaden the scope of languages used for knowledge production and dissemination and to highlight the potential of multilingualism.

The Impact of Global English on Cultural Identities in the United Arab Emirates

Sarah Hopkyns
Series: Routledge Studies in Language and Intercultural Communication
This book provides a nuanced portrait of the complexities of the cultural and linguistic landscape in the United Arab Emirates, unpacking the ever-shifting dynamics and attitudes between and about English and Arabic in the region in today’s era of superdiversity. The volume will be of particular interest to students and scholars interested in issues around language and identity, language policy and planning, multilingualism, translanguaging, and language and education.

2nd Edition - NEW EDITION
The Routledge Handbook of Language and Intercultural Communication
Edited by Jane Jackson, Chinese University of Hong Kong
Series: Routledge Handbooks in Applied Linguistics
This book provides a comprehensive historical survey of the study of intercultural communication and a critical assessment of past and present theory, research, practice and an insight into future directions. The second edition offers ten new contributions on a broad range of topics, including reflexivity and criticality, translanguaging and social justice in relation to intercultural communication. With examples from a variety of languages and international settings, this Handbook is an indispensable resource for students and scholars working in the fields of intercultural communication, applied linguistics, TESOL/TEFL and communication studies.

The Routledge Handbook of Translation and Activism
Edited by Rebecca Ruth Gould and Kayvan Tahmasebian
Series: Routledge Handbooks in Translation and Interpreting Studies
This volume brings together scholars to provide a comprehensive overview of the most significant intersections of activism and translation past and present. The contributions will make visible the role of translation in promoting and enabling social change, in promoting equality, in fighting discrimination, in supporting human rights, and in challenging autocracy across the Middle East, Africa, Latin America, and Europe. With a substantial introduction, thirty-one chapters and an extensive bibliography, this Handbook is an indispensable resource for all students and researchers of translation and activism within translation studies and related areas.

Translation and Hegel's Philosophy
A Socio-Narrative Approach to A.V. Miller's 'Cold-War' Retranslations
David Charlston
Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies
This volume engages with translations of philosophy as complex, socially structured narratives bound by emotional, political and philosophical connections, exploring these dynamics at work in A.V. Miller’s Hegel translations and retranslations published between 1969 and 1986. The book contextualises Miller’s lifelong commitment to Hegel and builds on this narrative to lay the foundations for its socio-narrative, Bourdieusian and feminist theoretical frameworks, applied to the texts and paratexts of Miller’s six retranslations. The book will be key reading for scholars in translation studies, German studies, continental and feminist-informed philosophies.

Translation as Actor-Networking
Actors, Agencies, and Networks in the Making of Arthur Waley's English Translation of the Chinese 'Journey to the West'
Wenyuan Luo
Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies
This book employs principles from actor-network theory (ANT) to explore the making of the English translation of a work of Chinese canonical fiction, Journey to the West, demonstrating how ANT, as applied to translation studies, can contribute to a richer understanding of the translation process. The volume builds on previous research to apply ANT theory to translation studies by looking in-depth at a single work, highlighting the unique factors underpinning the making of Monkey, Arthur Waley’s English translation of the Chinese classic Journey to the West, which make the work an ideal candidate for showing ANT theory in practice in translation.

A Frequency Dictionary of German
Core Vocabulary for Learners

Erwin Tschirner and Jupp Möhning
Series: Routledge Frequency Dictionaries

This completely updated edition of the Frequency Dictionary of German will contain the 5,000 most commonly used words of German today, occurring in a 20 million word corpus (compared to a 4.2 million corpus in the first edition). The basis of the frequency list will be a significantly extended version of the Herder/BYU Corpus of Contemporary German. It will contain spoken and written German, and represent different genres, text types, registers, styles, and also regional varieties. The corpus is designed to represent the current German language as it is used in real world. Useful as a reference for students and course designers alike, this will be an important new resource.

Actors and Audiences
Conversations in the Electric Air

Caroline Heim, Queensland University of Technology, Australia

Actors and Audiences explores the exchanges between those on and off the stage that fill the atmosphere with energy and vitality. Caroline Heim utilizes the concept of “electric air” to describe this phenomenon and discuss the charge of emotional electricity that heightens the audience’s senses in the theatre. A fascinating introduction to a unique subject, this text provides a close examination of actor and audience perspectives that is essential reading for students and academics of Theatre, Performance and Audience Studies.

August Wilson’s Joe Turner’s Come and Gone

Ladrica Menson-Furr

Series: The Fourth Wall

This book offers readers an overview of the play from its inception on through its revisions and stagings in regional theatres and Broadway. Readers can also find a close examination of Joe Turner’s Come and Gone’s use of both African American Vernacular genres and 19th century Southern post-Reconstruction history. Through blues music, folk songs, folk tales, and dance, Wilson created a work that enables readers and audiences to recognize the significance of their own “songs” and identities.

Performing Nerves
Four Plays, Four Essays, On Hysteria

Anna Furse

In Performing Nerves, Anna Furse interweaves her artistic and academic practice, drawing on her own performance texts to explore four different versions of debilitating hysterical suffering. Each text is extensively annotated, revealing the dramatical logic and in turn the historical, medical and cultural context behind their protagonists’ illness that is argued as environmentally caused in each case. This unique, reflective insight into a playwright and director’s craft offers not only an account of how mental suffering can manifest in different contexts and times, from the 19th century to today, but also a breadth of access to the ideas that can motivate creative research.

Satire & The State

Sketch Comedy and the Presidency

Matt Fotis, Assistant Professor of Theatre, Albright College

_Satire & The State_ focuses on performance-based satire, most often seen in sketch comedy, from 1960 to the present, and explores how sketch comedy has shaped the way Americans view the president and themselves.

Written for students of Theatre, Performance, Political Science, and Media Studies courses, as well as readers with an interest in political comedy, this book offers a deeper understanding of the relationship between comedy and the presidency, and the ways in which satire becomes a window into the culture, principles, and beliefs of a country.

Stage Fright in the Actor

Linda Brennan

_Stage Fright in the Actor_ explores the phenomena of stage fright – a universal experience which ranges in intensity from a relatively easy to conceal sense of anxiety to an overwhelming feeling of terror - from the actor's perspective, unearthing its social, cultural and personal roots. This book is an essential tool for actors and acting students. Its insight into the many manifestations of stage fright also renders it as valuable reading for Acting/Performing Arts teachers and directors, as well as anyone who fears stepping "onstage."

Acting after Grotowski

Theatre’s Carnal Prayer

Kris Salata, Florida State University, USA

For whom does the actor perform? Addressing this question, Acting after Grotowski focuses on an actor’s work as a self-revelatory deed. Introducing Grotowski’s concept of “carnal prayer,” Kris Salata develops an interdisciplinary theory of acting and spectating, while lending thoughts to theatre as a liturgical performance.

Founded in theatre practice, Salata’s narrative moves through postmodern philosophy, critical theory, theatre, performance, ritual, and religious studies, concluding that the fundamental structure of prayer, which underpins the actor’s deed, can be found in any self-revelatory creative act.

Finding Identity Through Directing Soseh Yekani
This practice-led auto-ethnographical monograph is an in-depth exploration into the field of theatre directing and an individual’s endless creative pursuit for belonging.

This study probes into Soseh Yekani’s incentives as an Iranian born Armenian-Australian actor-turned-director, and then queries the provocations of other theatre directors in a similar predicament. Yekani’s innovative approach to the field of theatre directing addresses cultural effects: relating to individuals who have struggled with ethnic identity and displacement.

Dances of José Limón and Erick Hawkins
James Moreno
Dances of José Limón and Erick Hawkins examine staging’s of masculinity, whiteness, and Latinidad in the work of US modern dance choreographers, José Limón and Erick Hawkins. This book approaches Limón and Hawkins’ training regimes and performing strategies as social practices symbiotically entwined with their geo-political backgrounds. Limón’s queer and Latino heritage is put into dialogue with Hawkins’ straight and European heritage to examine how their embodied social histories worked co-constitutively with their training regimes and performance strategies to produce influential staging’s of masculinity, whiteness, and Latinidad.

Flop Musicals of the Twenty First Century
How They Happened, When They Happened (And What We’ve Learned)

Stephen Purdy

Flop Musicals of the Twenty First Century offers a provocative and revealing historical narrative. A group of musicals that cost millions, were created by world-renowned writers and directors, and that had spectacular potential... but bombed anyway. This is a fascinating book for students and scholars of Musical Theatre that contains thoughtful observations about luck and creative differences to botched adaptations and alienated audiences, all of which can determine the fate of a musical.

Instrumental Music Theory Education

Teaching the Musical and Practical in Harmony

Evan Feldman, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, USA, Ari Contzius, Washingtonville High School, USA; Mitchell Lutich, Central College, USA and Katarzyna Bugaj

Instrumental Music Education: Teaching with the Musical and Practical in Harmony, Third Edition, is intended for college instrumental music education majors studying to be band and orchestra directors at the elementary, middle school, and high school levels. This textbook presents a research-based look at the topics vital to running a successful instrumental music program, while balancing musical, theoretical, and practical approaches. A central theme is the compelling parallel between language and music, including “sound-to-symbol” pedagogies. Understanding this connection improves the teaching of melody, rhythm, composition, and improvisation.

Kwasi Ampene

Asante Court Music and Verbal Arts in Ghana is a comprehensive portrait of Asante court musical arts.

Weaving together historical narratives with analyses of texts performed on drums, ivory trumpets and a cane flute, the book includes a critical assembly of ancient song texts, the poetry of bards (kwadwoh), and referential poetry performed by members of the constabulary (apae). The focus is on the intersections between lived experience, music, and values, and refers to musical examples drawn from court ceremonies, rituals, festivals, as well as casual performances elicited in the course of fieldwork.

Driving Identities

At the Intersection of Popular Music and Automotive Culture

Ken McLeod

Series: Ashgate Popular and Folk Music Series

Driving Identities examines long-standing connections between popular music and the automotive industry and how this relationship has helped to construct and reflect various socio-cultural identities. It also challenges common assumptions regarding the divergences between industry and art and reveals how music and sound are used to suture the putative divide between human and non-human.

Eudaimonia

Perspectives for Music Learning

Edited by Gareth Dylan Smith and Marissa Silverman

Series: Routledge New Directions in Music Education Series

Eudaimonia: Perspectives for Music Learning asserts the fertile applications of eudaimonia—an Aristotelian concept of human flourishing intended to explain the nature of a life well lived—for work in music learning and teaching in the 21st century. Drawing insights from within and beyond the field of music education, contributors reflect on what the “good life” means in music, highlighting issues at the core of the human experience and the heart of schooling and other educational settings. Eudaimonia is a concise compendium on this oft-overlooked concept, providing musicians with an understanding of an ethically-guided and socially-meaningful music-learning paradigm.

Howard Hawks

Music as Communication in Film

Gregory Camp, University of Auckland, New Zealand

Series: Filmmakers and Their Soundtracks

Known for creating classic films including His Girl Friday, The Big Sleep, Bringing Up Baby, and Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, Howard Hawks is one of the best-known Hollywood ‘auteurs’, but the important role that music plays in his films has been generally neglected by film critics and scholars. In this concise study, Gregory Camp demonstrates how Hawks’ use of music and musical treatment of dialogue articulate the group communication that is central to his films. Camp explores how the notion of ‘music in Hawks’ films can be expanded beyond the film score, and the techniques by which Hawks and his collaborators achieve this heightened musicality.

Investigating Musical Performance
Theoretical Models and Intersections
Edited by Gianmario Boro, Giovanni Giuriati, University of Rome, Italy, Alessandro Cecchi, University of Pisa, Italy and Marco Lutzu, University of Cagliari, Italy
Series: Musical Cultures of the Twentieth Century
Investigating Musical Performance is a study of diverse perspectives on musical performance as a cross-disciplinary field, a field that encourages a revision of theoretical and analytical paradigms. Seventeen chapters mirror the multifarious perspectives on musical performance as a global phenomenon, including research projects in Europe and in the United States. Section One is mainly devoted to developing or assessing theoretical models and research methods, while Section Two deals with more specific dimensions of musical performance. A wide-ranging bibliography and analytical index are included.

Jazz on the Line
Improvisation in Practice
Petter Frost Fadnes, University of Stavanger, Norway
Series: Transnational Studies in Jazz
Jazz on the Line: Improvisation in Practice presents an ethnographic reflection on improvisation as performance, examining how musicians think and act when negotiating improvisational frameworks. This multidisciplinary discussion—guided by a focus on recordings, composition, authenticity, and venues—explores the musical choices made by performers, emphasizing how these choices can be logically understood within the context of controlled, musical outputs.

Musicians’ Migratory Patterns: American-Mexican Border Lands
Edited by Mauricio Rodríguez
Series: CMS Cultural Expressions in Music
Musicians’ Migratory Patterns: American-Mexican Border Lands considers the works and ideologies of an array of American-based, immigrant Mexican composers. It asserts their immigrant status as a central force in nourishing, informing, and propelling musical and artistic concerns, uncovering pure and fresh forms of expression that broaden the multicultural map of Mexico. The text guides readers in appreciation of the aesthetic and technical achievements of original works and innovative performances, with artistic and pedagogical implications that frame a vivid picture of the contemporary Mexican as immigrant creator in the United States.

New Approaches in Applied Musicology
A Common Framework for Music Education and Psychology Research
Adam Ockelford and Graham Welch
Series: SEMPRE Studies in The Psychology of Music
This book is essential reading for those working in the fields of music psychology or music education research. A novel approach is applied to the analysis of data enabling musical insights to emerge in a range of real-life contexts. The topics covered include a new study on pattern detection in music, the cognitive processes involved in rehearing pieces, learning strategies used by a musical savant, and many more. The emphasis is on researchers who are new to the field. Each chapter has a concise, reflective epilogue written by an established researcher. This exciting new work will act as a catalyst in the emerging field of empirical musicological research.

Performing Arts in Changing Societies

Edited by Randi M. Selvik, Svein Gladso and Anne Fiskvik
Series: Routledge Research in Music
Performing Arts in Changing Societies is a detailed exploration of genre development within the fields of dance, theatre and opera in selected European countries during the decades before and after 1800. With an introductory chapter outlining the theoretical and ideological background of genre thinking in Europe, the other fourteen chapters cover the performing genres as they developed in Europe. Including a detailed analysis in the light of material, political, and social factors, this is a valuable resource for scholars and researchers in the fields of musicology, opera studies, and theatre and performance studies.

Social Partner Dance

David Kaminsky, University of California, Merced, USA
Social Partner Dance: Body, Sound, and Space is an ethnography of social partner dancing built on participant observations and interviews with instructors of tango, salsa, Lindy hop, blues dance, and various other forms. The work establishes a general analytical language for scholars of these ethnic and world music dances, presenting a microcosm that defines the possibilities of partnership both in terms of physical mechanics and social functions and processes. Social Partner Dance promotes scholarship that understands the social, cultural, and political functions of partner dance through its embodied practice.

Teaching and Evaluating Music Performance at University

Beyond the Conservatory Model
Edited by John Encarnacao, Western Sydney University, Australia and Diana Blom, Western Sydney University, Australia
Series: ISME Global Perspectives in Music Education Series
Fresh perspectives on teaching and evaluating music performance in higher education are offered in this book. Chapters also consider the evolution of the student, play as a medium for learning, reflective essay writing, multimodal performance, interactivity and assessment criteria. The perspectives extend to the challenges of professional development programs and in several chapters incorporate the experiences of students. This volume will provide ideas and spark debate for anyone teaching and evaluating music performance in higher education.

The Indian Drum of the King-god and the Pakhaøj of Nathdwara

Paolo Pacciolla
Series: SOAS Studies in Music Series
The book studies the evolution of the ancient drum mrdanga into the pakhaøj across more than two thousand years of history. While focusing on the Nathdwara school of pakhaøj, the author, joins ethnographic, historical, religious and social perspectives to argue a multifaceted interpretation of the role and function of the pakhaøj in rural courts, temples and contemporary stages; furthermore he offers the first analysis of the visual and narrative contents of its repertoire.

The Music of Pavel Haas

Analytical and Hermeneutical Studies

Martin Curda
Series: Ashgate Studies in Theory and Analysis of Music After 1900
This book is the first attempt to provide a comprehensive (albeit necessarily selective) discussion of Pavel Haas's music since the publication of Lubomir Peduzzi's life and work monograph in 1993. It provides the reader with an enhanced understanding of Haas's music through analytical and hermeneutical interpretation as well as cultural and aesthetic contextualisation, and thus reveal the rich nuances of Haas's multi-faceted work which have not been sufficiently recognised so far.

The Routledge Companion to Interdisciplinary Studies in Singing, Volume I: Development

Edited by Frank Russo, Beatriz Ilari and Annabel J. Cohen
Series: The Routledge Companion to Interdisciplinary Studies in Singing
The Routledge Companion to Interdisciplinary Studies in Singing, Volume I: Development introduces the many voices necessary to better understand the act of singing—a complex human behaviour that emerges without deliberate training. Presenting research from the social sciences and humanities alongside that of the natural sciences and medicine alike, this companion explores the relationship between hearing sensitivity and vocal production, in turn identifying how singing is integrated with sensory and cognitive systems while investigating the ways we test and measure singing ability and development.
The Tragic Odes of Jerry Garcia and The Grateful Dead

Mystery Dances in the Magic Theater

Brent Wood, University of Toronto at Mississauga, Canada
Series: Ashgate Popular and Folk Music Series

The Tragic Odes of Jerry Garcia and the Grateful Dead is a multifaceted study of tragedy in the group’s live performances showing how Garcia brought about catharsis through dance by leading songs of grief, mortality, and ironic fate in a collective theatrical context. It will interest scholars and researchers of Popular Music, Musicology, Cultural Studies and American Studies, as well as to the Grateful Dead’s avid listeners.

Creating an Eco-Friendly Early Years Setting
A Practical Guide

Cheryl Hadland, Hadland Care Group, UK

This book offers a comprehensive guide to becoming a more eco-friendly setting from the small steps that can be taken to reduce waste and improve efficiency to setting up partnerships in the wider community. It covers all aspects of practice including colleague and parental engagement, the environment, routines, resources and teaching and learning to help you to embed a sustainable approach into your day-to-day practice. Drawing on the experiences of real nurseries and including activities and lists of resources, this is an essential read for all settings that want to help make sustainable choices a natural part of young children’s lives.

Routledge
Edited by Zenna Kingdon, Wolverhampton University, UK

Series: Towards an Ethical Praxis in Early Childhood

Contributors to this book show how central role-play is in the physical, social, emotional and cognitive development of young children. They seek to look beyond ‘home-corners’ and consider how children can be observed engaging in role-play in many different contexts. Framed in a Vygotskian perspective in which play is considered to be socio-constructivist, the contributors use vignettes to exemplify a range of behaviours identified as play including; sensorimotor play, language play, social contingency play, exercise play, fantasy and object play to name a few. The book takes a praxeological approach, drawing on participatory, ethical research, yet underpinned by theory throughout.

Outdoor Learning through the Seasons
An Essential Guide for the Early Years

Ann Watts, Early Years Consultant, UK

Outdoor learning and play experiences are an essential part of young children’s development. The importance of offering children first-hand experience of the natural world becomes more urgent as research evidence demonstrates the benefits of becoming physically and emotionally involved with the natural world. Outdoor Learning through the Seasons shows how we can encourage young children to engage with nature on a daily basis throughout the year.

Collaborative Pathways to Friendship in Early Childhood
A Cultural-historical Perspective

Megan Adams and Gloria Quinones

Series: Routledge Research in Early Childhood Education

Presenting a holistic conception of friendship, this book focuses on the development of relationships amongst young children. Foregrounding the supporting role that parents and teachers take, it interrogates the various conceptualisations of children’s friendships that parents and teachers hold, and explores how a child’s agency changes in different settings. Drawing together cultural-historical theory, primary research from international settings including Australia, Malaysia and Mexico, and a broad range of case studies, this book provides an illuminating insight into the development of friendships across home and educational settings.

Putting Storytelling at the Heart of Early Childhood Practice
A Reflective Guide for Early Years Practitioners
Edited by Tina Bruce, Lynn McNair and Jane Whinnett

Storytelling is part of being human across all of time, space and cultures. This book gives early years practitioners accessible ways of making stories an essential part of their practice, showing why stories are important and how they work. Contributors explore ways in which young children from babyyhood, start communicating with others, developing a language of storytelling which spills into literature and non-fiction, enabling them to engage with the process of becoming literate. Making links with recent research on storytelling through critical examination, this book will help create an environment that puts communication, language and literacy at the very centre of learning.

Researching Early Childhood Education for Sustainability Challenging Assumptions and Orthodoxies
Edited by Sue Elliott, Eva Ärlemalm-Hagsér, Mälardalen University, Sweden and Julie Davis

Sustainability is a global issue that urgently needs addressing, and the most serious consequences are for children and future generations. This book captures the now burgeoning ECEIS research from an ever-widening and diverse pool of researchers. With contributions from around the world, the text engages with perspectives that challenge dominant, Western worldviews about sustainability, nature and children with global standpoints. The editors promote and explain the latest ECEIS research from researchers who share ethically-reimagined worldviews in a time of urgent need for change driven by humanity’s shared sustainability challenges and current UN global policy.

The Sciences of Early Childhood Education
From Diverse Perspectives to Common Practice
Edited by Dominic F. Gullo and M. Elizabeth Graue

The Sciences of Early Childhood Education offers a new framework for examining the diverse scientific perspectives that shape early childhood education. As the field takes on an increasing role in addressing children’s educational, developmental, and environmental needs, it is critical to more fully understand and appreciate the diverse scientific roots of contemporary early childhood education. This edited collection brings together leading researchers to explain and unpack perspectives that are not often associated with early childhood education, yet have made significant contributions to its development and evolution.

Meeting the Needs of Young Children with EAL
Research Informed Practice
Edited by Wilfried Smidt, University of Innsbruck, Austria and Simone Lehrl

How children’s development is shaped by Early Childhood Education and Care (ECE) classrooms and especially by teacher–child interactions in those settings, is a major issue in research and politics, which has been researched for several decades. This book investigates this important topic by raising three overarching questions:

(1) What are ‘good’ teacher–child interactions and how they can be measured?
(2) Which individual and/or contextual aspects are associated with teacher–child interactions?
(3) What is the impact of teacher–child interactions on the development of children’s competencies?

3rd Edition - NEW EDITION
What Great Teachers Do Differently
Nineteen Things That Matter Most

Edited by Jen Jones from Hello Literacy and Michelle Ferré from Pocketful of Primary

In this internationally renowned bestseller, Todd Whitaker reveals what great teachers do differently. What are the beliefs and behaviors that set great teachers apart? Is this something that can be taught or is it something inherent in each individual? In response to these questions, Todd explores three sets of attributes: who great teachers are, what great teachers do, and how great teachers do it. Understanding these components will equip you with the information you need to become a more effective teacher. Filled with guided conversations, practical lessons and activities, this revised edition of What Great Teachers Do Differently encourages practitioners to become the teachers they want to be.

Managing Classroom Assessment to Enhance Student Learning

Nicolle Barnes and Helenrose Fives, Montclair State University, New Jersey, USA
Series: Student Assessment for Educators

As teachers are required to integrate an increasing number of assessment practices in the classroom, it is crucial that they have effective routines for organizing and evaluating these data. Managing Classroom Assessment to Enhance Student Learning introduces pre- and in-service teachers to the major categories of assessment management and provides empirical and theoretical support for their effectiveness. In-depth chapters consider management in the context of assigning and collecting work, interpreting and organizing assessment results, and providing students with feedback.

12 Characteristics of Deliberate Homework
Erik Youngman
Learn how to assign homework that truly enhances learning and isn’t just busywork. This important book defines what deliberate homework looks like and provides relevant, actionable suggestions to guide your homework decisions. For each feature, the author includes strategies and tools appropriate for all grade levels. The book also includes self-assessments and reflective questions so you can work on the book independently or with colleagues in professional development sessions.

A Focus on Ratios and Proportions
Bringing Mathematics Education Research to the Classroom
Marjorie M. Petit, Vermont Mathematics Partnership Ongoing Assessment Project, USA; Robert E. Laird; Matthew F. Wynenek; Frances R. Hunttoo, Mary D. Ablee-Austin and Jean D. Sequeira Series: Studies in Mathematical Thinking and Learning Series
This resource offers a groundbreaking effort to make mathematics education research on ratios & proportions readily accessible and understandable to pre-service and in-service teachers of grades 6-8. Using extensive annotated samples of student work and based on research gathered in the Ongoing Assessment Project (OGAP), this engaging, easy-to-use book teaches readers how students develop understanding and fluency involving ratio and proportion concepts. Each chapter includes student work samples to illuminate the research, guidance on CCSSM standards, end of chapter Looking Back questions, and Instructional Links that help teachers relate concepts back to their own materials.

Advocacy for Early Childhood Educators
Speaking Up for Your Students, Your Colleagues, and Yourself
Colleen Schmit
Become a better advocate—for your students, for your coworkers, and for yourself—with the valuable strategies in this accessible guidebook. Written with a candid and humorous style, this toolkit reinforces why effective early childhood education matters and the positive impact an effective advocate can have on a child’s classroom experience. Equipping readers with practical takeaways and everyday examples of what advocacy in early childhood education actually looks like, this book is perfect for teachers, coaches, and anyone seeking effective strategies to become a relentless advocate for their students, for each other, and for themselves.

Classroom Observation
A Guide to the Effective Observation of Teaching and Learning
Matt O’Leary, University of Wolverhampton, UK
Classroom Observation explores the pivotal role of lesson observation in the training, assessment and development of new and experienced teachers. Building on recent changes and debates surrounding the use of observation, the book offers practical guidance on an aspect of training that is often a source of anxiety, with key suggestions on how to work with observation as a tool to promote sustainable teacher learning and collaboration. It contains brand new chapters exploring peer-based models of observation, and how to use digital technology to inform learning.

Closing the Reading Gap
Alex Quigley
Despite universal acceptance of the vital importance of reading, the reading gap in our classrooms remains. To close this gap, we need to ensure that every teacher has the knowledge and skill to teach reading with confidence. Closing the Reading Gap explores the science of reading, whilst tackling issues such as dyslexia and the role of technology in reading. It offers practical strategies for teachers at every stage and addresses crucial topics, such as identifying and addressing barriers to reading, as well as creating a rich, reading culture.

Teach Smarter
Efficient and Effective Strategies for Early Career Teachers
Adam Riches
Teach Smarter is an essential guide to help early career teachers reduce unnecessary workload. It includes practical strategies, founded in proven research and tested over time, as well as guidance for teachers to reflect on their practices and make these more efficient, effective and streamlined. The chapters contain useful information on preparing the learning space, lesson planning, managing behaviour and setting expectations, feeding back and the art of questioning. Written by an experienced teacher, coach and mentor, this book will be an invaluable resource for trainee teachers, NQTs and RQTs.
Augmentative and Assistive Communication with Children
A Protocol and Intervention Plan to Support Children with Complex Communication Profiles

Lesley Mayne and Sharon Rogers
This practical resource is designed to help the families and professionals who support children who use augmentative and assistive communication to interact with the world around them. The research based Hear Me into Voice protocol provides communication partners with a functional knowledge of the child’s communication skills and a practical intervention plan to carry forward. Through this protocol and intervention plan, communication partners can engage with the child’s personal voice, through their varying multimodal forms of communication; the child is given the space to grow into a competent and confident communicator.

Safe, Supportive, and Inclusive Learning Environments for Young People in Crisis and Trauma
Plaiting the Rope
Edited by Patty Towl and Sheryl A. Hemphill
This book provides valuable research and recommendations on the ways schools can improve the inclusion of students from minority communities. The book argues that at-risk students are more likely to be excluded from school, whether formally for disciplinary reasons, or self-initiated exclusion, and outlines how this exclusion affects their wellbeing and future socio-economic outcomes. Using a combination of quantitative and qualitative research data, as well as case studies documenting promising approaches being used in schools, the book explores ways in which at-risk students can be included in school communities, complete school and enjoy a more positive future.

Therapeutic Trampolining for Children and Young People with Special Educational Needs
A Practical Guide to Supporting Emotional and Physical Wellbeing

Ange Anderson

This practical resource explores the benefits of therapeutic trampolining on children and young people with special educational needs. It supports practitioners as they introduce the trampoline into their own therapeutic settings. Trampolining is known to improve balance, co-ordination and motor skills; it can improve bone-density and benefit the lymphatic and cardiovascular systems. It has even shown to encourage communication in children with autism and PMLD. This is an invaluable resource for anybody looking to enhance the physical and emotional wellbeing of children and young people with special educational needs.

Developing Excellence in Autism Practice
Making a Difference in Education

Karen Guldberg

Written for anyone who wants to make a difference to the lives of autistic pupils, this book is an essential resource for educators working to support them. Drawing on global pedagogic practice and research, it is a comprehensive guide to good autism practice in education. Guldberg challenges dominant discourses about evidence based practice, and in response, puts forward a model for bringing research and practice together in a transformative way. Bridging gaps between research and practice, between theory and lived experience, between therapeutic and educational approaches, the book provides tools for best practices and shows how to draw on these to implement change in the classroom.

Measurements in Evaluating Science Education
A Compendium of Instruments, Scales, and Tests

Amy J. Catalano, Hofstra University, USA and Michael A. Marino

Measurements in Evaluating Science Education is a comprehensive, intuitive guide to many of the key instruments created to assess science education environments, learning, and instruction. Nearly 70 different surveys, tests, scales, and other metrics are organized according to the qualities the measures attempt to gauge, such as attitudes toward science, beliefs and misconceptions, self-efficacy, and content knowledge. Summaries of each instrument, usage information, developmental history and validation, and reported psychometric properties make this an essential reference for anyone interested in understanding science education assessment.
Critical Autoethnography and Intercultural Learning Emerging Voices

Edited by Phiona Stanley

Qualitative Research and Intercultural Learning shows how critical autoethnographic writing in a field such as intercultural education can help inform and change existing research paradigms. Engaging story-telling and insightful analysis from emerging scholars of diverse backgrounds and communities shows the impact of lived experience on teaching and learning. Critical Youth Research in Education: Methodologies of Praxis and Care
Arshad Imtiaz Ali and Teresa L. McCarty
This volume adds to the current conversation on critical studies of youth in educational research, addressing methodological lessons learned in the field. Focusing on ‘the doing’ of critical youth studies, the volume showcases scholars’ research and reflection on the practical strategies used to operationalize their conceptions of knowledge and research projects with youth. By addressing research features, challenges, tensions, and debates of the projects; engagement with communities; and relationality, reciprocity, and responsibility to participants, this volume focuses on qualitative approaches that are humanizing, anti-colonial, and transformative.

Educating for Civic Dialogue in an Age of Uncivil Discourse
Dennis Gunn
As an invitation to ongoing civil dialogue with diverse voices in the classroom, the book aims to foster the skills of democratic and global citizenship that allow students to find their voice as local, national, and global citizens outside of the classroom. It suggests practical ways that teachers can promote the skills of attentive listening, intelligent questioning, reasonable positioning, and responsible dialogue in order to encourage authentic civic discourse. It also outlines specific pedagogical strategies designed to foster students’ cosmopolitan competencies as democratic and global citizens.

Getting Evidence into Education: Evaluating the Routes to Policy and Practice
Edited by Stephen Gorard
Examing what can be done to improve the take-up of suitable research evidence so that it can inform the public service of education, this book studies how to get evidence into use. Considering practical and ethical implications it builds towards key recommendations for the research community, practitioner bodies, and policy-makers and advisors, on how to communicate better with each other for the benefit of everyone. With a variety of case studies that examine how best to get good evidence into real-life use in education, this book is suitable for students studying the effects of education policy as well as policy-makers and academics.

Integrating Timing Considerations to Improve Testing Practices
Edited by Melissa J. Margolis and Richard A. Feinberg
In this comprehensive volume, experts in the field discuss the impact of timing considerations, constraints, and policies on valid score interpretations; administrative accommodations; test construction; and examinees’ experiences and behaviors; and how to implement the findings into practice. These twelve chapters provide invaluable resources for testing professionals to better understand the inextricable links between effective time allocation and the purposes of high-stakes testing.

The Metrics of Teacher Effectiveness and Teacher Quality Research: Sideling the Issues that Really Count
Andrew Skourdoumbis, Deakin University, Australia and Shaun Rawolle
This book explores how accountability metrics that privilege ‘teacher effectiveness’ and ‘teacher quality’ distort analyses of student achievement, sideline broader contextual and systemic influences on learning, reinforce input-output analysis of schooling, and thereby skew the educational debate to camouflage basic school system and economic inequities. Focusing on recent phases of school education reform, it examines why and how issues of teacher effectiveness and teacher quality figure so prominently in their formation, why pressing matters of school funding are downplayed and how teachers can develop their role as pedagogic experts in a highly scrutinized environment.

Governing the School under Three Decades of Neoliberal Reform
Richard Munch
Series: Routledge Research in Education Policy and Politics
This book provides a critical analysis of the neoliberal reform agenda of the economic governance of schools. Focusing on the role of the USA in this process, it explores the transformation of schools in this agenda from educational establishments to enterprises in a competitive education market. The book will be of great interest for academics, post - graduate students, administrators and politicians in the field of education policy, the governance of school systems and schools. The book also has an international appeal as it studies a global transformation of the field of education.
Politics and the Mediatization of School Educational Policy

The Dog-Whistle Dynamic

Grant Rodwell, University of Newcastle, Australia

This book examines the emergence and current impact of dog-whistle politics and journalism on education policy in Australia, the US and UK. The author tracks the increasing prevalence of this messaging and its influence on education over the past three decades, attributing this to the sector’s perceived movement towards neoliberal and globalist agendas. Exploring common targets for dog-whistling, such as teaching standards, teacher quality and specific curriculum areas including history, sex and health education the book also considers the broader social issues of xenophobia and racism, as well as the decline of print media and rise of digital news sources in its place.

The Australian Government Muscling in on School Education

A History (1901–2018)

Grant Rodwell, University of Newcastle, Australia

This book provides a historical account of government involvement in Australian education from Federation to the present day. Arguing that education has become an arena for competing political forces, Grant Rodwell examines the powerful influence of the Commonwealth over education and the political motives behind it. The work explores how politics influence aspects of the curriculum, teaching standards, assessment and reporting, funding, teacher selection and policy. Questioning whether this influence is in the interests of the members of the community who depend on education, the book holds government engagement in education to account.

Kenneth Teitelbaum

Focusing on a wide range of critical issues, this book provides a comprehensive analysis of the linkage of different educational ideas, policies, and practices to a commitment for democratic schooling. Informed by significant, interdisciplinary research, as well as his own extensive professional experiences as a teacher, professor, department chair, and dean, Teitelbaum examines contemporary concerns related to three broad areas: teaching and teacher education, curriculum studies, and multiculturalism and social justice.

Education in Movement Spaces

Standing Rock to Chicago Freedom Square
Edited by Alyama Eagle Shield, Django Paris, Rae Paris and Timothy San Pedro

Series: Indigenous and Decolonizing Studies in Education

This book amplifies the distinct, intersecting, and coalitional possibilities of education in the spaces of ongoing movements for Native and Black liberation. Contributors highlight the importance of activist-oriented teaching and learning in community encampments and other movement spaces for the preservation and expansion of resistance education. With chapters from scholars, educators, and organizers, this volume offers lessons taken from these experiences for nation-state schools, classrooms, and spaces of teaching and learning that are most commonly experienced by Native and Black children and educators.

The Purposes of Education

A Conversation Between John Hattie and Steen Nepper Larsen
John Hattie, University of Melbourne, Australia and Steen Nepper Larsen

What is the purpose of education and what is the relationship between educational research and policy? Using the twin lenses of Visible Learning and educational philosophy these are among the many fascinating topics discussed in extended conversations between John Hattie and Steen Larsen. This wide-ranging, entertaining and informative book uses the framework of Hattie’s world famous research to explore the vital questions around education and the development of students in a learning society. Complete with informative cartoons, summary boxes and annotated reading lists, it will inspire teachers, students and parents at all levels of the educational system.

Handbook of the Cultural Foundations of Learning

Edited by Na’ilih Suad Nasir, Carol Lee and Roy Pea

Edited by a diverse group of expert collaborators, the Handbook of the Cultural Foundations of Learning is a landmark volume that brings together cutting-edge research examining learning as an inherently cultural process. Conceptualizing culture as both a set of social practices and connected to learner identities, the chapters synthesize contemporary research in elaborating a new vision of the cultural nature of learning, moving beyond summary to reshape the field towards studies that situate culture in the learning sciences alongside equity of educational processes and outcomes.

Teachers’ Goals, Beliefs, Emotions, and Identity Development

Investigating Complexities in the Profession
Paul A. Schutz, University of Texas at San Antonio, Ji Hong and Dione Cross Francis

Teachers’ Goals, Beliefs, Emotions, and Identity Development discusses the nonlinear, multifaceted processes of teacher development by foregrounding constructed relations to wellbeing and professional standards. Teachers lead full, complex lives that are set in both immediate and social-historical realities that significantly shape their ongoing successes and challenges.

Behavior Analysis for Effective Teaching

Julie S. Vargas, B.F. Skinner Foundation, USA

Behavior Analysis for Effective Teaching is a clear, comprehensive book on the integration of non-aversive behavior analysis principles into classrooms and other school settings. Carefully revised and updated throughout, this third edition includes new content on precision teaching and a new chapter on how teachers can provide appropriate education for students with special disabilities who are included in their classrooms. The book is an ideal primary resource for undergraduate and graduate courses in teacher education, special education, school psychology, and school counseling, as well as for preparation toward the BACB Credentialing Exam.

Psychoeducational Assessment of Preschool Children

Vincent C. Alfonso, Bruce A. Bracken and Richard J. Nagle, Appalachian State University

The fifth edition continues the mission of its predecessors—to provide academics and school-based psychology practitioners with a current guide to the assessment of young children. Long recognized as the standard text and reference in its field, this comprehensive, skill-building overview is organized into four sections: foundations, ecological assessment, assessment of developmental domains, and special considerations. Chapters written by recognized scholars in the field cover theory, research, and application. This thoroughly revised edition addresses recent developments in early childhood assessment, new policies, and students/family/patient population demographics.

Bakhtin in the Fullness of Time

Bakhtinian Theory and the Process of Social Education

Edited by Craig Brandist, Michael E. Gardiner, University of Western Ontario, Canada, E Jayne White and Carl Mika, University of Waikato, New Zealand

This book takes the works of Mikhail Bakhtin as its inspiration in the contemplation of the potential of dialogic scholarship for philosophy of education. The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal, Educational Philosophy and Theory. Selected works on the Limits and Perspectives of Mikhail Bakhtin are presented in book. In doing so, the contributors seek to interpret the work of the Bakhtin Circle in a complex, contemporary world. Each chapter offers a different dimension of thought concerning issues facing societies remote (or perhaps not so remote) from the world of post-revolutionary Russia.

Decolonising Lifelong Learning in the Age of Transnational Migration

Edited by Shibao Guo and Srabani Maitra

Decolonising Lifelong Learning in the Age of Transnational Migration examines how colonialism has shaped migration and migrants’ transnational learning experiences. With the development of modern transportation and advanced communication technologies, migration has shifted from international to transnational, characterised by the multiple and circular movement of scholars working across multiple disciplines; some of the most dynamic and challenging CRT takes place in Education. This collection brings together some of the most exciting and influential CRT in Education. Of interest to academics, students and policymakers, this collection shows how racism operates in numerous hidden ways and demonstrates how CRT challenges the taken-for-granted assumptions that shape educational policy and practice.

Critical Race Theory in Education

Edited by Laurence Parker, University of Utah, USA and David Gillborn, University of Birmingham, UK

Series: Routledge International Studies in the Philosophy of Education

Critical Race Theory (CRT) has grown to become an international movement of scholars working across multiple disciplines; some of the most dynamic and challenging CRT takes place in Education. This collection brings together some of the most exciting and influential CRT in Education. Of interest to academics, students and policymakers, this collection shows how racism operates in numerous hidden ways and demonstrates how CRT challenges the taken-for-granted assumptions that shape educational policy and practice.

A Democratic Theory of Educational Accountability

From Test-Based Assessment to Interpersonal Responsibility

Derek Gottlieb, University of Basel, Switzerland

Series: Routledge International Studies in the Philosophy of Education

This insightful text offers a detailed account of the historical development of educational accountability in the US public education system. In doing so, it diagnoses the unforeseen consequences arising from a centralised, technocratic implementation of the concept, and calls for a radical re-thinking in how our democratic responsibilities translate into the provision, measurement, and conceptualization of education. This text will be of great interest to graduate and postgraduate students, researchers, academics, and libraries in the field of philosophy of education, educational policy, assessment & testing and democratic theory.

British Scholars of Comparative Education

Examining the Work and Influence of Notable 19th and 20th Century Comparativists

Edited by David Phillips, University of Oxford, UK

Series: Oxford Studies in Comparative Education

This book brings together studies of significant British scholars of comparative education from the 19th and 20th centuries. Providing a unique and detailed examination of the work of the founding British scholars of research in comparative education, British Scholars of Comparative Education considers the legacy of these key figures and emphasises the importance of understanding their achievements. With contributions from leading scholars in the field, this volume will be of great interest to researchers, academics and scholars in comparative and international education.

Design, Education and Pedagogy
Edited by Leon Benade and Mark Jackson
This book explores the increasing emergence within educational institutions, such as schools and universities, of large, flexible spaces whose design is underpinned by cutting-edge principles and technologies. Questions must also be raised about the links between conception, design intention and spatial practice. Underlying these questions are competing views on the design of education facilities. This volume gathers a range of international authors who theorise these questions at the intersection of building design, pedagogy and educational policy. The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal, Educational Philosophy and Theory.

Education for Democracy in England in World War II
Hsiao-Yuh Ku, National Taiwan Normal University, Taiwan
Series: Routledge Research in Language Education
This volume examines the educational discourse and involvement in educational reforms of five key figures, Fred Clarke, R. H. Tawney, Shena Simon, H. C. Dent, and Earnest Simon, in England during World War II. These figures campaigned for educational reforms through their books, publishing articles in newspapers, delivering speeches at schools and conferences, and by organizing pressure groups. Displaying a variety of democratic forums for debates about education beyond parliament, the book re-interprets wartime educational reforms from a different perspective and illustrates the agreements and contradictions in the educational discourse itself.

Educational ILLs and the (Im)possibility of Utopia
Edited by Joff Bradley
Series: Educational Philosophy and Theory
As a bold provocation to reimagine what the philosophy of education might mean in the 21st century, this book responds to the exhaustion of present theoretical models and indeed the degradation of fabulative thought in its current prospectus. The contributors, from Asia, the Americas, and Europe raise the timely question of the return of utopia as a fitting, desperate and indeed necessary response to the ecological, existential and pedagogical crises spreading across the planet. Originally published as a special issue of the journal, Educational Philosophy and Theory, this book offers singularly unique perspectives regarding the possibility/impossibility of utopia

What Comes After Postmodernism in Educational Theory?
Edited by Michael A. Peters, Marek Tesar, Liz Jackson, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong and Tina Besley
Series: Educational Philosophy and Theory

This book brings together the work of over two-hundred international scholars, who seek to address the question, "What happened to postmodernism in educational theory after its alleged demise?". Scholars in various disciplines have suggested that, if anything, postmodernism is at an end and has been dead and buried for some time. An age dominated by playfulness, hybridity, relativism, and the fragmentary self has given way to something else— as yet undefined. This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal, Educational Philosophy and Theory.
Educational Design in Six Steps
A Strategic and Practical Scaffold

Yoram Harpaz

Educational Design in Six Steps addresses the urgent need for a theoretical and practical framework for redesigning and revolutionising any educational environment, including primary, secondary and tertiary. It provides an understandable typology for setting goals, customising and adapting educational environments, and aligning classroom practice with educational theory and organisational design. Offering concrete examples and probing discussion questions, the book is an essential guide for school leaders, administrators, postgraduate students and anyone working to create or reimagine their distinctive educational environments.

Theorising Identity and Subjectivity in Educational Leadership Research

Edited by Richard Niesche, University of New South Wales, Australia and Amanda Heffernan

Series: Critical Studies in Educational Leadership, Management and Administration

Theorising Identity and Subjectivity in Educational Leadership Research brings together a range of international scholars to examine identity and subjectivities in educational leadership in new and original ways. This book will appeal to researchers, students, and professionals working in the fields of educational leadership and sociology, and the chapters within offer readers new perspectives in understanding educational leaders, their work, and their identities.

What Great Principals Do Differently
Twenty Things That Matter Most

Todd Whitaker, Indiana State University, USA

This essential third edition features helpful new strategies for recruiting talent through better interview and reference questions, as well as tips for retaining talent. It also offers a new section on how leadership is not an event, but rather requires a consistent approach to affect the climate and eventually shape the culture of your school. Perfect for new and experienced principals, for independent professional reading or for leadership courses, this practical book will leave you feeling inspired and ready to do the things that matter most for the people who ultimately matter most—the students.

Storytelling for Sustainability in Higher Education
An Educator’s Handbook

Edited by Petra Molthan-Hill, Heather Luna, Tony Wall, Helen Puntha and Denise Baden

Written by academics and storytellers, the book is based on the authors’ own experiences of using stories within teaching, from a story of “the Ecology of Law” to the exploration of sustainability in Accounting and Finance via contemporary cinema. Practical advice in each chapter ensures that ideas may be put into practice with ease.
Game Science in Hybrid Learning Spaces
Sylvester Arnab
Series: Digital Games, Simulations, and Learning
Game Science in Hybrid Learning Spaces explores the potential, implications, and impact of game-based approaches and interventions in response to the blurring of boundaries between digital and physical as well as formal and informal learning spaces and contexts. The book delves into the concept, opportunities, and challenges of hybrid learning, which aims to reduce the barriers of time and physical space in teaching and learning practices, fostering seamless, sustained, and measurable learning experience and outcomes beyond the barriers of formal education and physical learning contexts.

Transforming Universities with Digital Distance Education
The Future of Formal Learning
Mark Nichols
Transforming Universities with Digital Distance Education explores the ways in which higher education stakeholders can apply and leverage the benefits of online learning. Systems-wide access, scale, and quality are achievable goals but require forms of teamwork and financial modelling beyond those at the instructor or program level. This book’s organizational view tackles the systems and practices that will help senior managers and decision-makers guide an entire institution away from dysfunction—incremental progress, insufficient capacity, high fixed costs, and suboptimal productivity—and toward the macro-level implementation and operations of effective online pedagogies.

Integrating Computer Science Across the Core Strategies for K-12 Districts
Tom Liam Lynch, Assistant Professor, Educational Technology at Pace University, USA, Gerald Ardito and Pamela Amendola
Integrating Computer Science Across the Core is a guide to systematizing computer science and computational thinking practices in your school. While most books explain how to teach computer science as a standalone discipline, this innovative approach will help you leverage your existing curriculum to deepen and expand students’ learning experiences in all content areas. Effective, equitable, and sustainable, this blueprint provides principals, curriculum directors, directors of technology, and other members of your school or district leadership team with suggested organizational structures, tips for professional learning, and key resources like planning instruments.

Virtual Reality in Curriculum and Pedagogy Evidence from Secondary Classrooms
Erica Southgate
Virtual Reality in Curriculum and Pedagogy explores the instructional, ethical, practical, and technical issues related to the integration of immersive VR in school classrooms. The book’s original pedagogical framework is informed by qualitative and quantitative data collected from the first-ever study to embed immersive VR in secondary school science, ICT, and drama classrooms. Students and scholars of technology-enhanced learning, curriculum design, and teacher education alike will find key pedagogical insights into leveraging the unique properties of virtual reality for authentic, metacognitive and creative learning.

Making Technology Work in Schools How PK-12 Educators Can Foster Digital-Age Learning
Tim D. Green, California State University, Fullerton, USA, Loretta C. Donovan and Jody Peerless Green, K-12 Consultant, USA
School systems are increasingly adopting ambitious new educational technologies, but how do you make sure they are yielding effective teaching and learning experiences? The authors’ proven, intuitive practices speak directly to academic coaches, school technology leads, district technology directors, and teachers on special assignment who are responsible for introducing new tools and programs. After reading this book, you will be able to better prepare the educators you serve to empower their learners, whether digitally savvy or not, to be engaged, collaborative, and better prepared for college and careers.

New Models for Lifelong Learning in the Digital Economy
Edited by Christopher J. Dede and John Richards
The 60-Year Curriculum explores models and strategies for lifelong learning in an era of profound economic disruption and reinvention. This cutting-edge book describes the evolution of new models—covering computer science, inclusive design, critical thinking, civics, and more—by which universities can increase learners’ trajectories across multiple careers from mid-adolescence to retirement. Stakeholders in workforce development, curriculum and instructional design, lifelong learning, and higher and continuing education will find a unique synthesis offering valuable insights and actionable next steps.

Linguistic Justice

Black Language, Literacy, Identity, and Pedagogy

April Baker-Bell

Series: NCTE-Routledge Research Series

Offering a research-based approach to teaching that supports the healthy linguistic, racial, and cultural identity of African American youth, Baker-Bell demonstrates how the U.S. education system has historically positioned African American youth as linguistically deficient. Extending and applying critical language pedagogy to the classroom, she argues that the responsibility falls to teachers to support African American youth in constructing positive and transformative understandings of their language and racial identities related to language and learning.

Reclaiming Literacies as Meaning Making

Manifestations of Values, Identities, Relationships, and Knowledge

Edited by Kathryn Whitmore and Richard Meyer

In this edited volume, Whitmore and Meyer bring together top literacy scholars from around the world to discuss the role of literacy as a manifestation of meaning-making in reading, writing, drawing, speaking, and playing. Emerging from a rich, progressive scholarship, the volume lays out a clear discourse of meaning-making in literacies, and shifts the conversation away from treating literacies as commodities and towards an understanding of literacies as an active, engaged process by which learners compose and develop their own expressions of agency. Organized by five pillars of literacy, each section covers critical and cutting-edge topics.

Teaching Literature Using Dialogic Literary Argumentation in Secondary Schools

Matthew Seymour, Theresa Thanos, George E. Newell and David Bloome

Introducing a new framework for teaching and learning literature in secondary schools, this book presents Dialogic Literary Argumentation as an inquiry-based approach to engage students in communicating and exploring ideas about literature. Ideal for preservice teachers in literacy methods courses, this book covers the theoretical foundation and application of this method, features real-world cases, discussions of the principles presented, and conversation starters for students. The authors demonstrate how to apply this method to teach literature in a way that foregrounds dialogue, learning through inquiry, diverse views, listening to others, and engagement with our communities.

Toward Culturally Sustaining Teaching
Early Childhood Educators Honor Children with Practices for Equity and Change

Edited by Kindel Turner Nash, University of Maryland, Baltimore County, USA, Crystal Polite Glover, Winthrop University, USA and Bilal Polson, Northern Parkway School, NY, USA

Series: NCTE-Routledge Research Series

Demonstrating new strategies for effective teaching and learning on topics such as translanguaging, literacy assessment, and arts integration, this book reveals how 2-person teacher partnerships can implement, facilitate, and maintain culturally relevant and responsive early literacy teaching in diverse contexts. This book shares the story of five teacher dyads who worked across university-school contexts to generate and evaluate culturally sustaining literacy practices in early childhood classrooms. Insightful and instructive, the narratives in this collection model how to create positive and mutually beneficial dynamics among teachers, students, and their families and communities.

Linguistics for Language Teachers
Lessons for Classroom Practice

Sarah J. Shin, University of Maryland, Baltimore County, USA and Sunny Park-Johnson

This book is an introduction to linguistics specifically tailored for teachers of second, heritage, bilingual, and world language education. The book provides language teacher candidates with enough familiarity with the major aspects of language structure and function to see how they figure in the analyses of language and language learning, as well as to explore issues related to language in society, multilingualism, and language policy. This book trains language teachers to be linguists by guiding them stepwise through the components of language, making linguistics accessible to language teachers, and focusing on the areas of linguistics that is most pertinent for teaching.

Contested Multilateralism 2.0 and Asian Security Dynamics

Edited by Kai He, Griffith University, Australia
Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics
In the 1990s there was a wave of multilateralism in the Asia Pacific, which was led primarily by ASEAN. Kai He and his contributors debate the reasons for this contested multilateralism and the impacts it will have on the region’s security and political challenges. Will the “Indo-Pacific turn” be a blessing or a curse for regional stability and prosperity? Using a diverse range of theoretical and empirical perspectives, these leading scholars contribute their views on this question and on the diverse strategies of the great and middle powers in the region.

Cultural Competency for Emergency and Crisis Management

Concepts, Theories and Case Studies

Edited by Claire Connolly Knox, University of Central Florida, USA and Brittany “Brie” Haupt, University of Central Florida, USA
Disasters are complex and dynamic events that test emergency and crisis professionals and leaders—even the most ethical ones. Within all phases of emergency management, disasters highlight social vulnerabilities that require culturally competent practices. The lack of culturally respectable responses to diverse populations underscores the critical need for cultural competency education and training in higher education and practice. Using a case study approach that is both adaptable and practical, this textbook is an accessible and essential guide on what makes teaching effective in emergency and crisis management.

International Toleration

A Theory

Pietro Maffettone, University of Napoli Federico II, Italy
Series: Ethics, Human Rights and Global Political Thought
This book proposes a theory of toleration wherein liberal democracies peacefully co-exist with non-democratic societies. It conceptualises international toleration in a way that is both faithful to the liberal tradition and at the same time explains why we should accept some non-liberal and non-democratic political communities as members in good standing of international society. A major intervention in political and legal philosophy, this book will be indispensable to students and teachers of political theory, international relations, peace and conflict studies, international law and human rights. It will also be of interest to government think tanks and civil servants.

Listening to the American Voter

David E. RePass
This book explains why elections from 1960 to 2016 came out the way they did. Why did voters choose one candidate over the other and what issues were they concerned with? The answer comes from talking to thousands of voters and analyzing their verbatim responses. Appropriate for students of American government and informed citizens as well, this book is a revolution in the study of electoral behavior.

Minilateralism in the Indo-Pacific

The Quadrilateral Security Dialogue, Lancang-Mekong Cooperation Mechanism, and ASEAN

Edited by Bhubhindar Singh, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore and Sarah Teo, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore
Both China and the US have contributed to minilateral initiatives in the Indo-Pacific. In the case of the former, there is the Lancang-Mekong Cooperation mechanism—including China, Cambodia, Laos, Myanmar, Thailand and Vietnam—established in 2015. In the case of the latter, there has been a revival of the Quadrilateral Security Dialogue in 2017— involving the US, Australia, Japan and India. This book examines the rise of these arrangements, their challenges and opportunities, as well as their impact on the extant regional security architecture, including on the ASEAN-led multilateral order.

Christopher T. Husbands
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right
Comprised of eight previously published articles or book chapters and two hitherto unpublished studies, this book gives extended accounts of the major extreme right political parties or movements in a number of west European countries, looking both at their antecedents and at their support and significance in the 1990s and early 1990s. The book will be of particular interest to researchers on the contemporary politics of the extreme right in Europe, as well as a valuable resource for those teaching courses on this topic or on general political sociology.

Social Class and Voting Behavior in Contemporary America

Charles Prysby

This book examines the changing relationship between social class and voting behavior in contemporary America. At the end of the 20th century, working-class white voters were significantly more Democratic than their middle-class counterparts. By the second decade of the 21st century, that relationship had reversed. While Trump accentuated this trend, the change began before 2016, something that has not been fully appreciated or understood. In this study, Charles L. Prysby describes and explains the underlying causes of the change that has taken place over the past two decades, identifying how social class is directly related to partisan choice.

The Administrative Presidency and the Environment
Policy Leadership and Retrenchment from Clinton to Trump

David M. Shafie, Chapman University, USA

In The Administrative Presidency and the Environment, David M. Shafie combines qualitative analysis and topical case studies to offer advanced undergraduate students and researchers alike important insights for understanding the interactions between environmental groups and the executive branch as well as implications for future policymaking. Drawing upon staff communications, speeches and other primary sources, key features in this book include detailed case studies in public land management, water quality, toxics, and climate policy, with particular attention to the role of science in decisionmaking.

Sheldon Wolin and Democracy
Seeing Through Loss

Lucy Cane

Lucy Cane presents the first full-length study of Sheldon Wolin (1922-2015), an influential theorist of democracy and prescient critic of “inverted totalitarianism” in the United States. She traces the development of Wolin’s thinking over sixty years by offering an overarching interpretation of his central preoccupations and themes of loss and mourning; this is not only an intellectual biography, but also a critical engagement of Wolin’s work with democratic theory and more broadly an assessment of its value for addressing contemporary crises of democracy.

Supranational Governance at Stake
The EU’s External Competences caught between Complexity and Fragmentation

Edited by Anne Weyymbergh, Université Libre de Bruxelles, Belgium and Mario Télò

Series: Globalisation, Europe, and Multilateralism

This book examines the varied competences of the European Union (EU) in relation to its capacity to externalize its policy preferences. Specifically, it explores the continued resilience within the EU’s policy toolbox of supranational modes of governance beyond the State.

Why Human Rights Still Matter in Contemporary Global Affairs

Edited by Mahmood Monshipouri, San Francisco State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Human Rights

This book elucidates why human rights still matter in contemporary global affairs, and what can lead to better protection of international human rights in a post-liberal order. It blends theoretical, empirical, and normative perspectives, while providing much-needed analysis in light of the perils of populism, authoritarianism, and toxic nationalism as well as the hopes with which people around the world view human rights in the new millennium.

International Human Rights

Jack Donnelly, University of Denver, USA and Daniel J. Whelan, Hendrix College, USA

Fully updated, the sixth edition of this book examines the ways in which states and other international actors have addressed human rights since the end of World War II. It features substantial attention to theory, history, international and regional institutions, and the role of transnational actors in the protection and promotion of human rights. It has been substantially revised throughout, including new material on LGBTQ rights in Africa, Indigenous peoples’ rights in Guatemala, the Rohingya crisis in Myanmar, and a new chapter on human rights and development.

International Relations from the Global South

Worlds of Difference

Edited by Arlene B. Tickner, Universidad del Rosario, Bogotá, Colombia and Karen Smith, Leiden University, Netherlands

Series: Worlding Beyond the West

This exciting new textbook challenges the implicit notions inherent in most existing International Relations (IR) scholarship and instead presents the subject as seen from different vantage points in the global South.

This book encourages professors and students in both the global North and the global South envision the world differently. In addition to general, introductory IR courses at both the undergraduate and graduate levels it will appeal to courses on sociology and historiography of knowledge, globalization, neoliberalism, security, the state, imperialism and international political economy.

Is Voting for Young People?

Martin P. Wattenberg, University of California, Irvine, USA

This book explores the reasons why young people are less likely to follow politics and vote in the United States (as well as in many other established democracies) no matter who the candidates are, or what the issues may be. This brief, accessible, and provocative book suggests ways of changing that. For the first time since its original publication in 2006, each chapter has been thoroughly updated to reflect the most recent available data. A new chapter has also been added on the Young People and Politics in the Trump Era.

New Directions in Congressional Politics

Edited by Jamie L. Carson, University of Georgia, USA and Michael S. Lynch, University of Georgia, USA

Series: New Directions in American Politics

This second edition offers an accessible overview of the current developments in our understanding of America’s legislative branch. The authors help students bridge the gap between roles, rules, and outcomes by focusing on a variety of thematic issues: the importance of electoral considerations, legislators’ strategic behavior to accomplish objectives, the unique challenges of Congress as a bicameral institution in a polarized environment, and the often-overlooked policy outputs of the institution. New features include women in Congress, a first look at Congressional-executive relations in the Trump era, and updated data through the 2018 Midterm elections.

Race and Public Administration

Edited by Amanda Rutherford and Kenneth J. Meier

Issues of race permeate virtually every corner of policy creation and implementation in the United States, yet theoretically driven research on interactions of policy, race, and ethnicity rarely offers practical tools that can be readily applied by current and future civil servants, private contractors, or nonprofit boards. Arguing that scholarship can and should inform practice to address issues of equity in public affairs, rather than overlook, ignore, or deny them, Race and Public Administration offers a much-needed and accessible exploration of current and cutting-edge research on race and policy.

Asian Pacific American Politics
Celebrating the Scholarly Legacy of Don T. Nakanishi
Edited by Andrew Aoki, Augsburg University, USA and Pei-te Lien, University of California, Santa Barbara, USA
This volume presents some of the most recent research on Asian American politics, including both qualitative and quantitative examinations of the role of Asian and Pacific Islander Americans in some of today’s major political controversies. It examines questions such as Asian American support for #BlackLivesMatter, responses to racially-charged attacks, and the differences in the political socialization, politicization, and community-based activism within the Asian American population. It also investigates issues such as the Native Hawaiian sovereignty movement, political incorporation of Filipino Americans, and the struggle to establish “comfort women” memorials in the US.

African Foreign Policies
Selecting Signifiers to Explain Agency
Edited by Paul-Henri Bischoff, Rhodes University, South Africa.
Series: Routledge Studies in African Politics and International Relations
This book explores, at a time when several powers have become serious players on the continent, aspects of African agency, past and present, by African writers on foreign policy, representative of geography, language and state size. In the past, African foreign policy has largely been considered within the context of reactions to the international or global ‘external factor.’ This ground-breaking book, however, looks at how foreign policy has been crafted and used in response not just to external, but also, mainly, domestic imperatives or (theoretical) signifiers.

Brokering Circular Labour Migration

A Mobile Ethnography of Migrant Care Workers’ Journey to Switzerland

Huey Shy Chau, University of Zurich, Switzerland

Series: Routledge International Studies in Women and Place

This book examines the commercialisation of domestic and care work through private agencies organising transnational care arrangements by brokering migrant workers. Brokering Circular Labour Migration offers an understanding of new migration patterns and highlights fundamental changes in migration control with the extension of free movement of workers in Switzerland to lower-wage countries in Eastern Europe. It will be an invaluable resource for academics and scholars of geography, anthropology, sociology, and gender and migration.

Cultures of Violence

Visual Arts and Political Violence

Edited by Ruth Kinna, Loughborough University, UK and Gillian Whiteley, Loughborough University, UK

Series: Interventions

Investigating art practitioners’ responses to violence, this book considers how artists have used art practices to rethink concepts of violence and non-violence. It explores the strategies that artists have deployed to expose physical and symbolic violence through representational, performative and interventionist means. Asking how public debates can be shaped through the visual and performing arts and setting taboos about violence to one side, the volume provides an innovative approach to a perennial issue of interest to scholars of international politics, art and cultural studies.

Gender and Island Communities
Edited by Firouz Gaini, University of the Faroe Island, Faroe Islands and Helene Pristed Nielsen, Aalborg University, Denmark
Series: Gender in a Global/Loca World
This book takes an explicitly feminist approach to studying gender and social inequalities in island settings whilst deliberating on ‘islandness’ as part of the intersectional analysis. This text will be of key interest to students and scholars of gender and feminist studies, cultural studies, island studies, anthropology and more broadly to sociology, geography, diversity and social justice studies, global democracy and international relations.

Global Studies
Volume 1: Globalization and Globality
Edited by Tuo Cai, Zhenye Liu and Zhao Xin
Series: China Perspectives
This volume introduces core concepts and critical issues surrounding globalization, an increasingly irresistible trend and one that has exerted a tremendous impact on the political, economic, military, environmental, and social fortunes of mankind. Deploying an innovative theoretical framework, the editors redefine concepts of politics, economics, law, and globality. This volume is an essential reference for scholars in politics, economics, and law.

Volume 2: Process and Governance
Series: China Perspectives
This volume discusses globalization on the supranational level. The editors reveal the complexity of global studies by examining the multi-level and multi-dimensional nature of globalization, analysing processes and systems of global society against the backdrop of globalization, and explore the construction of a stable and rational global order. The two volumes of global studies are an essential reference for scholars and students in politics, economics, and law.

International Law and Transitional Governance
Critical Perspectives
Edited by Emmanuel H. D. De Groof and Micha Wiebusch
Series: Law, Conflict and International Relations
This volume examines the role of international law in shaping and regulating transitional contexts, including the institutions, policies and procedures that have been developed to steer constitutional regime changes in countries affected by catalytic events. This book will be of much interest to practitioners and students of international law, diplomacy, mediation, security studies and International Relations.

Just War Theory and Non-State Actors
Using an Historical Body of Knowledge in Modern Circumstances
Edited by Eric E. Smith
Series: Justice, International Law and Global Security
This book uses a historical body of knowledge, Just War Theory, as the basis for analyzing modern conflicts involving Armed Non-State Actors who employ force against states. As the global community faces the challenges of globalization, terrorism, 24-hour international news coverage, super power collapse, weapons of mass destruction, and failed states, the author explores whether the historic bodies of knowledge governing decision makers during conflict remain relevant. This book will be of great interest to those researching and studying in the fields of political theory, security studies, international relations, war and conflict studies and public ethics.

Local Disaster Management
Edited by Gina Yannitell Reinhardt, University of Essex, UK and Lex Drennan, Griffith University, Australia
This volume explores what resilience means for local communities and local governments on the front line of responding to disasters and emergencies, and looks at fundamental issues of disaster and emergency management at the local level. How do local governments adapt through their experiences of disasters and how do they recover from catastrophic experiences? Top scholars explore these issues, drawing out lessons for local government officials and disaster managers seeking to build community resilience, prepare their communities for a changing environment, and facilitate recovery after disasters.
Mexico’s Drug War and Criminal Networks

The Dark Side of Social Media

Nilda M. García

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

This book examines the effects of technology on three criminal organizations: the Sinaloa cartel, the Zetas, and the Caballeros Templarios. Using social network analysis, and analyzing the use of web platforms Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube, Nilda M. García provides fresh insights on the organizational network, the central nodes, and the channels through which information flows in these three criminal organizations. In doing so, she demonstrates that some drug cartels in Mexico have adapted the usage of social media into their strategies, often pursuing different tactics in the search for new ways to dominate.

Political Representation in Southern Europe and Latin America

Transformation following the Great Recession?

Edited by André Freire, Lisbon University Institute, Portugal, Mélany Barragán, University of Salamanca, Spain, Xavier Coller, Universidad Nacional de Educación a Distancia, Spain, Marco Lisi, New University of Lisbon, Portugal and Emmanouil Tsatsanis, University Institute of Lisbon (ISCTE-IUL), Portugal

Series: Routledge Research on Social and Political Elites

This collective volume - with contributions from experts on these regions - examines broader questions about the current crises (The Great Recession and The Commodity Crisis) and the associated changes in political representation in both regions. It provides a general overview of political representation studies in Southern Europe and Latin America and builds bridges between the two traditions of political representation studies, affording greater understanding of developments in each region and promote future research collaboration between Southern Europe and Latin America.

Public Administration in Central Europe

Ideas as Causes of Reforms

Edited by Stanislaw Mazur, Cracow University of Economics, Poland

Series: Routledge Studies in Governance and Public Policy

This book examines the extent to which recent transformations of administrative systems and public management mechanisms in Central European (CE) countries serve the purpose of providing effective and efficient public institutions, high quality of public services, respect for the rule of law, and the citizens’ trust in the state. It details the reasons behind the major differences in the modernization pathways followed and their attendant inconsistencies and how, despite the adoption of values and solutions prevailing in the EU upon accession, these countries are shifting, to varying degrees, towards institutional design reminiscent of illiberal democracies.

Reconceiving Civil Society and Transitional Justice
Lessons from Asia and the Pacific
Edited by Joanne Wallis, Australian National University, Australia and Lia Kent, The Australian National University, Australia
This volume examines the role of civil society in transitional justice, exploring the forms of civil society that are enabled or disabled by transitional justice processes and the forms of transitional justice activity that are enabled and disabled by civil society actors. The contributions to this volume demonstrate that civil society can – and does – play important roles in enabling formal transitional justice processes, but it can also disrupt them. Informed by detailed fieldwork across Asia and the Pacific Islands, the contributions demonstrate that neither transitional justice or civil society should be treated as taken-for-granted concepts.

Social Standards in EU and US Trade Agreements
Evgeny Postnikov, University of Melbourne, Australia
Series: The International Political Economy of New Regionalisms
This book examines the causes and consequences of social standards in US and EU preferential trade agreements (PTAs). PTAs are the new reality of the global trading system. Using principal-agent theory to explore why US PTAs have stricter social standards than those signed by the EU, Postnikov argues that the level of institutional insulation of trade policy executives from interest groups and legislators determines the design of social standards. This book will be of interest to all scholars and students working in the fields of International Political Economy and EU and US trade policy.

Reconciliation, Transitional and Indigenous Justice
Edited by Krushil Watene, Massey University, New Zealand and Eric Palmer, Allegheny College, Meadville, Pennsylvania, USA
This volume presents fifteen reflections upon justice twenty years after the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of South Africa. It considers processes of political reconciliation, appraising the results of South Africa’s Commission, of the recently concluded Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada, and of the on-going process of the Waitangi Tribunal of Aotearoa New Zealand. Indigenous and non-indigenous voices from four regions of the world are represented in this critical assessment of the prospects for political reconciliation, for transitional justice, and for alternative, nascent conceptions of just politics.

The Difficult Construction of European Banking Union
Edited by David Howarth, University of Luxembourg and Joachim Schild, Universität Trier, Germany
This volume examines the political, legal and economic issues surrounding the lacunae and design faults of European Banking Union (BU) and its operation. It brings together scholars focused on the debates surrounding the construction and operation of BU and its reform. It is is located at the intersection of the first phase of research - the economic rationale underpinning the supranationalisation of control over banking and the political dynamics and legal issues that shaped the design of the BU - and a second stage which analyses the functioning of the different elements of BU, identifying potentially dangerous lacunae and contribute to reform debates.

The BRICS Studies
Theories and Issues
Edited by Xu Xiujuan and Yanwen Sun
Series: China Perspectives
This volume offers a panoramic view of the cooperation between the BRICS countries, faced as they are with a series of economic and geopolitical challenges. The editors reveal that policy coordination has been strengthened, bringing into play complementary advantages as viable ways for promoting robust, sustainable, and balanced growth in the world economy. The experience gained, and lessons learned in the development of and cooperation between the BRICS countries has offered a positive role model for cooperation between other countries. Students and scholars in international relations and politics will benefit from this volume.

Routledge International Handbook on Electoral Debates
Edited by Julio Juárez-Gámiz, Dr Christina Holtz-Bacha and Alan Schroeder
This Handbook is the first major work to comprehensively map scholarship on electoral debates in comparative perspective. Featuring case studies from six continents, leading scholars and practitioners introduce a theoretical and conceptual framework to understand this phenomenon and point to new directions for research on the evolution of electoral debates and the practical considerations that different country-level experiences can offer. Three indicators of analysis inform the chapters: the level of experience of each country in the realization of electoral debates; geopolitical characteristics linked to political influence; and democratic stability and electoral competitiveness.

The Orbán Regime
Plebiscitary Leader Democracy in the Making

András Kőrisényi, Corvinus University of Budapest, Hungary, Gábor Illes, Eotvos Loránd University, Hungary and Attila Gyulai, Hungarian Academy of Sciences, Hungary

Series: Routledge Advances in European Politics

This book gives the first comprehensive and theoretically substantiated political science account of the Orbán regime in English. It argues that Viktor Orbán’s regime-building and reconstructive leadership is more than just an example of hybridisation, a successful populist appeal or a backlash against the earlier neoliberal hegemony in Central Europe. It unfolds the major traits of the Orbán regime and argues that it provides a paradigmatic case of the Weberian model of plebiscitary leader democracy (PLD).

The European Parliament in the Contested Union
Power and Influence Post-Lisbon

Edited by Edoardo Bressanelli, Sant’Anna School of Advanced Studies, Italy and Nicola Cheleton, Loughborough University London, UK

Series: Journal of European Integration Special Issues

The European Parliament in the Contested Union provides a systematic assessment of the real influence of the European Parliament (EP) in policy-making. The book challenges and qualifies the conventional view that the EP has become more influential after Lisbon. It shows that the influence of the EP is conditional on the salience of the negotiated policy for the Member States and provides fresh light on the impact of the EP and its role in a more contested and politicised European Union. Bringing together an international team of top-scholars and analysing a wealth of new evidence, it challenges conventional explanations on the role of the EP.

Theorising Noumenal Power
Rainer Forst and his Critics

Edited by Mark Haugaard, National University of Ireland, Galway, Ireland and Matthias Kettner, Universität Witten/Herdecke, Germany

Theorising Noumenal Power is a critical engagement with Rainer Forst’s theory of what he calls “noumenal power.” Forst is the most significant younger generation critical theorist of the Frankfurt School, and his critics include several of the most influential contemporary political power theorists. The debate constitutes an exciting new way of rethinking the foundations of ideology, political power, democracy and justice. Providing a state-of-the-art discussion concerning the relationship between political power and justification it is essential for students and scholars interested in the theoretical foundations of political power, democracy and justice.

Theory as Ideology in International Relations
The Politics of Knowledge

Edited by Benjamin Martill and Sebastian Schindler
Series: Worlding Beyond the West

New global lines of political conflict have brought into view fundamentally different conceptions of international politics, and the neutrality of academic expertise has itself come to be questioned by political actors. The political crisis of liberal world order and the academic crisis of critical theory are the subject of this book.

This edited volume is a must-read for all those interested in the contemporary political crisis and its relation to theories of International Relations.

When States Take Rights Back
Citizenship Revocation and Its Discontents

Edited by Emilien Fargues, European University Institute, Italy, Elke Winter, Harvard University, USA and Matthew J Gibney, Oxford University, UK

When States Take Rights Back draws on contributions by international experts in history, law, political science, and sociology, offering an interdisciplinary and comparative examination of citizenship revocation in five countries, revealing hidden government rationales and unintended consequences. Contributors scrutinize the positions of stakeholders and their rationales for citizenship revocation. They uncover the variety of tools that governments have at their disposition to change existing laws and policies, and the constraints that they are faced with to implement revocation. Finally, they underscore the severity of sanctions implied by citizenship revocation.

The Spatiality of Violence in Post-war Cities
Edited by Emma Elfversson, Uppsala University, Sweden, Ivan Gusic, Lund University, Sweden and Kristine Höglund, Uppsala University, Sweden
Series: Third Worlds
The Spatiality of Violence in Post-war Cities analyses violence in post-war cities from different perspectives and in different parts of the world, with a shared attention to space and how it affects violent dynamics. It addresses why such violence happens, where and how it manifests, and how it can be prevented. It includes contributions that are informed by both post-war logics and urban particularities, that take intra-city dynamics into account, and that adopt a spatial analysis of the city. They focus on cases around the world, providing novel insights into the causes and dynamics of violence in post-war cities, and challenges and opportunities for violence reduction.

Partition Literature and Cinema
A Critical Introduction
Edited by Jaydip Sarkar and Rupayan Mukherjee, Teaching Assistant, Department of English, University B.T. & Evening College, West Bengal, India.

This book studies literary and cinematic representations of the Partition of India. It discusses Partition as not just an immediate historical catastrophe but as a lingering cultural presence and consequently a potent trope in literary and visual representations. The volume features essays on key texts — written and visual — including Train to Pakistan, Tobu Tek Singh, Basti, Garm Hava, Pinjar, among others. It will be indispensable introductory reading for students and researchers of modern Indian history, Partition studies, literature, film studies, media and cultural studies, postcolonial studies, and South Asian studies.

Population Geography
A Systematic Exposition
Mohammad Izhar Hassan

This book studies the origins and development of population geography as a discipline. It explores the key concepts, tools, and statistical and demographic techniques that are widely employed in the analysis of population. It provides a comprehensive geographical account of population attributes in the world, with a particular focus on India. Further, it studies the three major components of population change — fertility, mortality, and migration — that have remained somewhat neglected in the study of human geography so far, as well as the salient social, demographic, and economic characteristics of population.

The Yogasūtra of Patañjali
A New Introduction to the Buddhist Roots of the Yoga System
Pradeep P. Gokhale, Departments of Philosophy and Pali, Savitribai Phule Pune University, Pune, India

This book offers a systematic and radical introduction to the Buddhist roots of Pāññājñayogā or the Yoga system of Patañjali. By examining each of 195 aphorisms (sūtras) of the Yogasūtra, it shows that Patañjali’s Yoga contains elements rooted in both orthodox as well as heterodox philosophical traditions. With a fresh translation and a detailed commentary on the Yogasūtra, the author unearths how several terms, concepts, and doctrines of Patañjali’s Yoga can be traced to Buddhism, particularly the Abhidharma Buddhism of Vasubandhu and the early Yogācāra of Asaṅga.

What is Pluralism?
Edited by Volker Kaul and Ingrid Salvatore

Series: Ethics, Human Rights and Global Political Thought
This book traces the origins of pluralism in contemporary political thought, and presents new, original interpretations of the idea by contemporary philosophers. The essays in the volume bring clarity into an ongoing fractious debate and reveal the underlying roots and fissures in our understanding of a dynamic and contested idea. A key text, this volume will be essential reading for scholars and researchers of politics, political theory and philosophy, and social theory.

European Societies Today
Inequality, Diversity, Divergence
James Wickham, Fellow Emeritus, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland.

This accessible new text introduces students to contemporary European societies by examining structures of inequality, making sense of the empirical and historical contexts. Focusing on seven differing European societies (France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Poland, Sweden and the UK), it examines the different ways in which sociology and political economy understand the social structure of contemporary Europe.

China’s ‘Singapore Model’ and Authoritarian Learning
Edited by Stephan Ortmann, Friedrich-Alexander University Erlangen-Nuremberg, Germany and Mark R. Thompson, City University of Hong Kong
Series: Routledge/City University of Hong Kong Southeast Asia Series
This book explores to what extent China has drawn lessons from Singapore, both in terms of its ruling ideology and through the policy-specific learning process. In so doing, it provides insights into the opportunities but also the challenges of this long-term learning process, focusing attention to how non-democratic regimes deal with modernization. The stellar line-up of international contributors, from China, Singapore, Europe, and the U.S., offer a variety of perspectives on Singapore as a model of “authoritarian modernism” for China.

Basics of Electromagnetics and Transmission Lines
G. Jagadeeswar Reddy and T. Jayachandra Prasad

Various concepts from fundamentals to advanced topics are presented and discussed adequately. The book’s bottom-up approach ensures that students understand all the basic building blocks before the development of a real-life system. Numerical problems and day-to-day examples, practical situations that occur in industries & daily life are also presented.

China, Korea & Japan at War, 1592–1598
Eyewitness Accounts
J. Marshall Craig
Series: Asian States and Empires
The East Asian War of 1592 to 1598 was the only extended war before modern times to involve Japan, Korea, and China. It devasted huge swathes of Korea and led to large population movements across borders. This book draws on surviving letters and diaries to recount the personal experiences of five individuals from different backgrounds who lived through the war and experienced its devastating effects: a Chinese doctor who became a spy; a Japanese samurai on his first foreign expedition; a Korean gentleman turned refugee; a Korean scholar-diplomat, and a Japanese Buddhist monk involved in the atrocities of the invasion.
China’s Commercial Health Insurance
China Development Research Foundation
Series: Routledge Studies on the Chinese Economy
This book examines the financing of China’s health system, argues that present arrangements are not adequate and proposes an increased role for commercial health insurance as a way of overcoming the difficulties. The book highlights that China’s present social medical insurance system can only cover basic medical services, with the results that many Chinese people with higher income are going abroad for high-quality medical services and that doctors are not bringing in the salaries and obtaining the social status they expect.

China’s Sustainable Use of Natural Resources
China Development Research Foundation
Series: Routledge Studies on the Chinese Economy
This book examines the financing of China’s health system, argues that present arrangements are not adequate and proposes an increased role for commercial health insurance as a way of overcoming the difficulties. The book suggests that commercial health insurance offers a possible solution, in that it can help meet the demand of higher-income groups for better healthcare services while at the same time increasing the income of more competent medical professionals. The book goes on to consider the current state of China’s commercial insurance industry, outlining the various challenges that the industry needs to overcome if it is to fulfil an increased role.

Cities and Local Governments in Central Asia
Administrative, Fiscal, and Political Urban Battles
Madina Junussova
Series: Routledge Advances in Central Asian Studies
This book presents the changing roles of urban governments and how local governments struggle to gain administrative, fiscal, and political power to combat current urban challenges in Kazakhstan. Focusing on the cities and regions selected by the national government of Kazakhstan to be the drivers of national economic development, the author analyses the impact of decentralization on the role of local governments. The book examines the practical experiences of city and regional governments with an emphasis on urban planning, public investment in national projects, and management of urban transport.

Czech Democracy in the New Millennium
Andrew L. Roberts
Series: Routledge Contemporary Russia and Eastern Europe Series
This book assesses the quality of Czech democracy relative to both its post-communist peers and older EU members. Motivated by the authoritarian tendencies and illiberal outcomes in the post-communist region, this book explores the extent to which the Czech Republic is genuinely an outlier within the region and why. The book will appeal to those interested in the politics of Eastern Europe and new democracies, those working in the rapidly growing fields of democratic quality and populism, and NGOs concerned with the development of new democracies around the world.

Infrastructure of Injustice
State and Politics in Manipur and Northeast India
Raiile Rocky Zipiaa, The Lakshmi Mittal South Asia Institute, Harvard University, USA
This book examines the dynamics of infrastructure development in Northeast India, especially Manipur, from a socio-anthropological perspective. It looks at the pattern and distribution of infrastructure in the region to analyse the impact of education, roads, and healthcare on the livelihoods, ecosystems, governance, and social futures of communities. Looking at the discourse around development in the Northeast, this volume also brings to light the structural inequality in Manipur and other states. It will be useful for researchers and scholars of development studies, economics, social anthropology, sociology, and public policy; particularly those interested in India’s Northeast.

International Studies in the Philippines
Mapping New Frontiers in Theory and Practice
Edited by Frances Antoinette Cruz, University of the Philippines, Diliman and Nassef Manabilang Adiong, University of the Philippines-Diliman, Philippines
Series: International Relations in Southeast Asia
The Philippines makes a fascinating case study of a medium-sized, developing, post-colonial, multi-ethnic and multi-cultural state in Southeast Asia. Cruz, Adiong and their contributors map horizons of non-Western approaches in Philippine experiences of IR, rooted in the Global South, and in local customs and practice. Examining both theory and praxis, they explore issues as diverse as pre-colonial history, diplomacy, religion, agrarian reform and the Philippines’ relationship with key regions in the Global South.

Islam and Chinese Society
Genealogies, Lineage and Local Communities
Edited by Jianxiong Ma, Oded Abt and Jide Yao
Series: The Historical Anthropology of Chinese Society Series
This book explores the long history in China of Chinese Muslims, known as the Hui people, and regarded as a minority, though in fact they are distinguished by religion rather than ethnicity. It shows how over time Chinese Muslims adopted Chinese practices as these evolved in wider Chinese society, practices such as constructing and recording patrilinear lineages, spreading genealogies, and propagating education and Confucian teaching, in the case of the Hui through the use of Chinese texts in the teaching of Islam at mosques.

Masculinity and Body Weight in Japan
Grappling with Metabolic Syndrome
Genaro Castro-Vázquez, Kansai Gaidai University, Japan
Series: Routledge Contemporary Japan Series
Drawing on the concept of the somatic self, Castro-Vázquez explores how Japanese men think about, express and interpret their experiences concerning bodyweight control. Based on an extensive ethnographic investigation, this book offers a compelling analysis of male obesity and overweight in Japan from a symbolic interactionism perspective to delve into structure, meaning, practice and subjectivity underpinning the experiences of a group of middle-aged, Japanese men grappling with body weight control. Castro-Vázquez frames obesity and overweight within historical and current global and sociological debates that help to highlight the significance of the Japanese case.

Making Global Knowledge in Local Contexts
The Politics of International Relations and Policy Advice in Russia
Katarzyna Kaczmarska
Series: Worlding Beyond the West

This text will be of interest to scholars and students in International Relations, Russian and Post-Soviet Studies, the Sociology of Knowledge, Science and Technology Studies and Higher Education Studies. It will appeal to those researching the knowledge-policy nexus and knowledge production practices.

New Frontiers in Japanese Studies
Edited by Akihiro Ogawa, University of Melbourne, Australia and Philip Seaton, Hokkaido University, Japan
Series: Routledge Contemporary Japan Series
Over the last 70 years, Japanese Studies scholarship has gone through several dominant paradigms, from ‘demystifying the Japanese’, to analysis of Japanese economic strength, to discussion of global interest in Japanese popular culture. This book assesses this literature, considering future directions for research into the 2020s and beyond. With chapters from an international team of contributors, including significant representation from the Asia-Pacific region, this book enacts Yoshio Sugimoto’s notion of ‘cosmopolitan methodology’ to discuss Japan in an interdisciplinary and transnational context.
Reimagining Indian Ocean Worlds

Edited by Smriti Srivasi, Bettina Ng’Weno and Neelima Jeychandran

Series: Routledge Series on the Indian Ocean and Trans-Asia

This book breaks new ground by bringing together multidisciplinary approaches to examine contemporary Indian Ocean worlds. It reconfigures the Indian Ocean as a space for conceptual and theoretical relationality based on social science and humanities scholarship, thus moving away from an area-based and geographical approach to Indian Ocean studies. Contributors from a variety of disciplines focus on keywords such as relationality, space/place, quotation practices, and new networks of memory and maps to offer original insights to reimagine the Indian Ocean.

The Paradox of Myanmar's Regime Change

Roger Lee Huang

Series: Routledge/City University of Hong Kong Southeast Asia Series

This book analyses Myanmar’s contemporary political history, arguing that Myanmar’s so-called “democratization” has always been a calculated regime transition, planned by the military, with every intention for the military to remain the key permanent political actor in Myanmar’s political regime. Using Myanmar’s regime change since 2011 as an extended case study, the book offers an original theory of regime transition.

Violence and Resistance in Sikh Gendered Identity

Jaspal Kaur Singh, Northern Michigan University, Marquette, Michigan, USA

This book examines the constructions and representations of male and female Sikhs in Indian and diasporic literature and culture through the consideration of the role of violence as constitutive of Sikh identity. How do Sikh men and women construct empowering identities within the Indian nation-state and in the diaspora? It looks at the role of violence during the critical moments and periods in Sikh history, such as Mughal rule, the colonial period, the 1984 riots and the terror of 9/11. The author analyzes how violence reconstitutes gender roles within various cultural and national spaces.

Islam, Jews and the Temple Mount
The Rock of Our/Their Existence
Yitzhak Reiter and Dvir Dimant

This study presents the first comprehensive survey of the abundant early Islamic sources that recognize the historical Jewish bond to the Temple Mount (Masjid al-Aqsa) and Jerusalem. Identifying and presenting the Jewish sources in the Bible, Babylonian Talmud and exegesis on which these Islamic traditions are based, this volume is a key resource for readers interested in Islam, Judaism, religion and political science and history in the Middle East.

Routledge Handbook of Persian Gulf Politics
Edited by Mehran Kamrava, Georgetown University in Qatar

The volume begins its examination of Ottoman rule in the Arabian Peninsula, exploring other dimensions of the region’s history up until and after independence in 1970. Featuring scholars from a range of disciplines, the book demonstrates how the Persian Gulf’s current, complex politics is a product of interwoven dynamics rooted in historical developments and memories, profound social, cultural, and economic changes over the 1980s and the 1990s, and inter-state and international relations among both regional actors and between them and the rest of the world.

The Holocaust in Thessaloniki
Reactions to the Anti-Jewish Persecution, 1942–1943
Leon Saltiel

Series: Routledge Jewish Studies Series

The book narrates the last days of the once prominent Jewish community of Thessaloniki which, in 1943, was transported to the Nazi death camp of Auschwitz. Focusing on the Holocaust of the Jews of Thessaloniki, it maps the reactions of the authorities, the Church and the civil society as events unfolded. Utilizing new sources and interpretation schemes, this book will be a great contribution to the local efforts underway, seeking to reconcile Thessaloniki with its Jewish past and honour the victims of the Holocaust.

Tunisian Civil Society
Political Culture and Democratic Function Since 2011
Alexander P. Martin

Series: Routledge Studies in Middle Eastern Democratization and Government

Investigating the political transition after the 2011 Tunisian revolution, this book explores whether civil society is fulfilling its democratic functions. Examining the existence of a civil political culture, that is identified through the presence of the six criteria of Freedom, Equality, Pluralism, Tolerance, Trust and Transparency. Presenting both critical theoretical arguments and extensive empirical evidence to demonstrate why Tunisia is such an important case, this book will be of interest to students and researchers interested in political culture, civil society and Middle East and North African studies.

Turkey, the EU and the Middle East
Foreign Policy Cooperation and the Arab Uprisings

Buğra Süsler, Post-doctoral Fellow, LSE IDEAS, London
School of Economics and Political Science
Series: Routledge Studies in Foreign Policy Analysis

This book focuses on the dynamics of Turkey’s relationship with Europe in the context of the ‘Arab Spring’ and analyses Turkish behaviour vis-à-vis foreign policy cooperation with the EU. Based on interviews with diplomats and policy makers and extensive documentary research, this book will be of interest to political scientists, students, policy makers and researchers focusing on Turkish foreign policy and Turkey-EU relations. This book is also about exploring inventive ways of maintaining a complex working partnership with the EU and will be of interest to scholars working on the EU’s relationship with ‘outsiders’.

Foreign Policy in North Africa
Navigating Global, Regional and Domestic Transformations
Edited by Irene Fernandez Molina, University of Exeter, UK and Miguel Hernando de Larramendi, Universidad de Castilla-La Mancha, Spain
This volume explores how the foreign policies of North African states have responded to the constraints and opportunities stemming from multi-level transformations in the 2010s. Building on existing scholarship and the impact of the 2011 Arab uprisings, case studies include Tunisia's financial predicaments and foreign debt negotiations; Egypt's relationship with Saudi Arabia; Algeria's policies towards the conflicts in Libya and Mali; Morocco's power balance between the monarchy and the Islamist-led government; Libya's state weakness and internal competition among proliferating actors. The volume concludes by examining post-2011 developments in the Algerian-Moroccan rivalry.

Health and Care in Old Age in Africa
Edited by Pranitha Maharaj, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa
Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa
This book explores health and care of the older population in Africa, focusing on policy and programmatic responses, gaps and future challenges related to health and care. Identifying lessons regarding African-centric models of care, it will be of interest to scholars of health and social care of the elderly. Part 1 profiles the demographic and health situation of the elderly in Africa and provides an overview of the various models of care. Part 2 provides case studies from across the continent to explore forms of elder care and the health challenges facing the elderly in the different contexts. The final part considers older people’s experience of social pensions.

Politics and Religion in Zimbabwe
The Deification of Robert G. Mugabe
Edited by Ezra Chitando, University of Zimbabwe
Series: Routledge Studies on Religion in Africa and the Diaspora
This book illustrates how religion and ideology were used by Robert Mugabe to ward off opposition within his own party, in Zimbabwe and from the West. An interdisciplinary line up of co-initiators argue that Mugabe used a calculated narrative of deification – presenting himself as a divine figure who had the task of delivering land, freedom and confidence to black people across the world - to remain in power in Zimbabwe. Politics and Religion in Zimbabwe will be of interest to scholar of religion and politics, Southern Africa and African politics.

Religion in War and Peace in Africa
Edited by Margée Ensign, Dickinson’s College, USA and Jean-Pierre Karegeye, Dickinson College, USA
Religion in War and Peace in Africa shows how “Religious extremism” transcends the realm of belief, analysing current armed conflicts in Africa with perpetrators claiming to act in accord with their religion and moral values. Scholars, peacekeepers, Religious leaders, and Military officers explore peace initiatives and security managements, with contributions spanning the spectrum from the prevention of violence through peace initiatives and the analyses of the many complex historical, political, economic, demographic and ideological causes of violence to the role of traditional religions, and military intervention.

Rethinking African Agriculture
How Non-Agrarian Factors Shape Peasant Livelihoods
Edited by Goran Hyden, University of Florida, USA, Kazuhiro Sugimura, Fukui Prefectural University, Japan and Tadasu Tsuruta, Kindai University, Japan
Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa
Drawn from the hitherto largely unknown Japanese research on the subject, this bookargues that rural communities in Africa are shaped by non-agrarian factors in livelihood strategy and social formation. The ethnographic fieldwork focuses on the micro environment of the producers and the broader historical context in which they live and work. The contributors argue that, in comparison with other regions, Africa has never passed through an agrarian revolution that would change the mode of production from within. This book will be of interest to social scientists and anthropologists focusing on African development, agriculture and agrarian societies.

Routledge Handbook of Pan-Africanism

Edited by Reiland Rabaka, University of Colorado, Boulder, USA

The Routledge Handbook of Pan-Africanism is an international, intersectional, and interdisciplinary overview of Pan-Africanism, making an invaluable contribution to the ongoing evolution of Pan-Africanism and demonstrating its continued significance in the twenty-first century. The handbook features expert introductions to, and critical explorations of, the most important historic and current subjects, theories, and controversies of Pan-Africanism and the evolution of black internationalism. As such, it is an essential resource for students and scholars focusing on Africa and the diaspora across the arts, humanities and social sciences.
A Practical Guide to Engineering, Procurement and Construction Contracts

Eric Eggink
Series: Practical Construction Guides

This book is a step-by-step practical guide on how to achieve successful projects in EPC/turnkey contracting and construction. Mapping out the shape of a project, the book spells out where things often go wrong, where and why disputes arise, and how to avoid conflicts. It is a key reference point for all involved in the contract, making it attractive to legal practitioners, construction industry professionals, and government officials involved with these projects.

Cryptocurrencies and Cryptoassets

Andrew Haynes, University of Wolverhampton, UK and Peter Yeh, University of Wolverhampton, UK

This book examines the legal and regulatory aspects of cryptocurrencies and blockchain and the emerging practical issues that these issues involve. The analysis covers a range of advanced economies across the world, in America, Europe and Asia. The book describes, explains and analyses the nature of cryptocurrencies and the blockchain systems they are constructed on in these major world economies and considers relevant law and regulation and their shortcomings. It will be of use and interest to academics, lawyers, regulators and anyone involved with cryptocurrencies and blockchain.

Miller’s Marine War Risks

Oliver Caplin, James Davey, University of Southampton, UK and Michael Davey

Series: Lloyd’s Shipping Law Library

Miller’s Marine War Risks is the only book devoted to drawing together and analysing the insurance of commercial shipping against war risks. It merges analysis of the legal principles, case law, and legislation with the practice of the insurance market in order to provide commentary on difficult questions concerning liabilities, claims, and coverage. With global events becoming more uncertain in the Gulf and elsewhere, the updating of Michael Miller’s classic text will be of great use to legal practitioners, the insurance market, and the shipping industry throughout the world.

Transport Documents in Carriage Of Goods by Sea

Caslav Pejovic
Series: Maritime and Transport Law Library

Bringing a fresh, comparative approach to transport documents used in the carriage of goods by sea, this book covers bills of lading, sea waybills, ship’s delivery orders, multimodal transport documents, and electronic transport documents. The book covers historic developments, current conventions, and thoughts for the future on these transport documents; and delves deeply into the legal issues concerning them. Primarily, the book will be of use to maritime law scholars and students, and lawyers who deal with shipping. It may also be of interest to international traders, banks, and ship masters and officers.

Employment Law 9e

Malcolm Sargeant, Middlesex University, UK and David Lewis, Middlesex University, UK

Packed with a wealth of case law and legislation, this book will enable you to fully understand the intricacies of this fast-changing subject with ease.

The ninth edition has been fully updated to include coverage of the latest legislative and case law developments, including issues around shared parental leave, the national living wage, and legal developments in the area of non-standard work. Offering comprehensive coverage of all the key aspects of individual and collective employment law in a clear and accessible way, Employment Law is ideal for both LLB and HRM students.

European Banking and Financial Law 2e

Matthias Haentjens, University of Leiden, The Netherlands and Pierre de Gioia-Caravellese, Heniot-Watt University, Scotland

This book serves as a comprehensive introduction to European banking and financial law. It covers not only regulatory law, but also commercial law that is relevant for the most important financial transactions.

This second edition has been completely revised. Attention is now also shed on topics such as shadow banking and credit rating agencies. As a matter of course, all new relevant legislation and case law has been included. Also, on the basis of real-life class-room experience, student questions and further reading suggestions have been updated and expanded.

Comming the City

Empirical Perspectives on Urban Ecology, Economics and Ethics

Edited by Derya Özkân and Gülde Baykal Büyükasaç

Series: Space, Materiality and the Normative

This edited volume reflects upon current comming practices that produce and reproduce life in the city, creating a new ethos that affirms communal instincts for solidarity rather than profit-making, competition and individual well-being. What emerges from such practices is a culture of comminging that heralds the possibility of an urban life beyond capitalist social relationships, and that encourages imagining urban space beyond the public-private and state-market dichotomies. The volume examines this alternative urban social imaginary based on fieldwork carried out in various contexts, ranging from Hyderabad to Hamburg.

Constituent Power and the Legitimacy of International Organizations

The Constitution of Supranationalism

John G. Oates, Florida International University, USA.

Series: Global Governance

This book develops a constitutional theory of international organization to explain the legitimation supranational organizations. Comparing the cases of the EU, the WTO, and the ICC, Oates shows that the constitution of supranationalism is far from a functional response to the pressures of interdependence but a value-laden struggle to define the proper subject of global governance.

Fictional Discourse and the Law

Edited by Hans J. Lind

Pursuing an empirical approach, and using examples that range from Charles Dickens’ law reports to the 2014 Ferguson riots, the volume challenges the prevailing fact-fiction dichotomy in legal theory and practice and provides a better understanding of the peculiarities of legal fictionality, while also contributing further material to fictional theory’s endeavor of finding a transdisciplinary valid criterion for a definition of fictional discourse.

International Investment Law and Gender Equality

Stabilization Clauses and Foreign Investment

Sangwani Patrick Ng'ambi, University of Zambia and Kangwa-Musole George Chisanga Series: Routledge Research in International Economic Law

This book analyses the impact that stabilization clauses have on the development of human rights and gender laws in resource rich nations. Given the fact that stabilization clauses freeze the law for as long as the contract subsists there has been debate on the negative impact stabilization clauses have on the progressive development of human rights in the host State. Firstly, the book examines the mechanisms investors utilise in protecting themselves from host state prerogatives.

Kant, Global Politics and Cosmopolitan Law

The World Republic as a Regulative Idea of Reason

Claudio Corradetti
Series: Routledge Research in Constitutional Law

This book argues that to understand the complexities of our current legal-institutional arrangements, we first need an insight into Kant’s global politics, and highlights the potential fruitfulness of Kant’s cosmopolitan thought for contemporary political thinking. It adopts a double methodological strategy by reconstructing a genealogical conceptual journey showing the development of international law, as well as introducing an interpretation of cosmopolitanism centered on Kant’s theory of a metaphysics of freedom: The result is a novel focus on Kant’s notion of the world republic.

Law and Imagination in Troubled Times

A Legal and Literary Discourse

Edited by Richard Mullender, Matteo Nicolini, Thomas D.C. Bennett and Emilia Mickiewicz Series: Law, Language and Communication

This collection focuses on how troubled times impact upon the law, the body politic, and the complex interrelationship among them. It centres on how they engage in a dialogue with the imagination and literature, thus triggering an emergent (but thus far underdeveloped) field concerning the ‘legal imagination’. The work provides stimulating reading for those working in the areas of legal philosophy, legal history and law and humanities and law and language.

Law and Religious Diversity in Education

The Right to Difference

Kyiaki Topidi
Series: ICLARS Series on Law and Religion

This book deals with the interplay of law and religion in education through the versatility of religious law, legal pluralism, as well as religion’s possible adaptation and reconciliation with modernity, in order to consider and reflect on normative conflicts. It adopts the angle of the constitutional dimension of religion narrated in a comparative perspective and critically reflects on regulatory attempts by the state and the international community to promote new ways of living together.

Law and the New Urban Agenda
Edited by Nestor M. Davidson and Geeta Tewari
Series: Juris Diversitas
The New Urban Agenda (NUA), adopted in 2016 at the United Nations Conference on Housing and Sustainable Urban Development (Habitat III) in Quito, Ecuador, represents a globally shared understanding of the vital link between urbanization and a sustainable future.
This book, which complements and expands on the editors’ previous volumes on urban law in this series, offers a constructive and critical evaluation of the legal dimensions of the NUA. It thus creates a provocative and academic dialogue about the legal effects of the NUA which will be of interest to academics and researchers with an interest in urban studies.

Law, Lawyers and Justice
Through Australian Lenses
Edited by Kim D Weinert, Karen Crawley and Kieran Tranter, Griffith University, Australia
This book engages the place of law in Australia’s distinctive contribution to global televisural culture. Australian popular culture represents a nation and a culture fixed on issues of law and outlaw, of justice and injustice: producing films and television of striking landscape-peopled heroes, antiheroes, survivors and jokers. This book is the first to bring together scholars to reflect on, and critically engage with, the representations and global implications of law, lawyers and justice captured by Australian film, television and social media.

Public Private Partnership Contracts
The Middle East and North Africa
Mohamed AM Ismail
Series: Routledge Research in International Law
This book provides a comprehensive overview of the law surrounding PPPs in the Middle East and North African region. The significance of liberalised and integrated Public Private Partnership Contracts as an essential component of the world legal and policy order is well documented. The regulation of PPPs is justified economically to allow for competition in the relevant public service and to achieve price transparency, thus resulting in significant savings for the public sector.

Series: Routledge Research in Media Law
This book examines mediation topics such as impartiality, self-determination and fair outcomes through popular culture lenses. Popular television shows and award-winning films are used as illustrative examples to illuminate under-represented mediation topics such as feelings and expert intuition, conflicts of interest and repeat business, and deception and caucusing. How mediation is imagined in popular culture compared to how scholars teach it and how mediators practice it provides important affective, ethical, legal, personal and pedagogical insights relevant for mediators, lawyers, professors and students, and may even help develop mediator identity.

The Development of Child Protection Law and Policy
Children, Risk and Modernities
Kieran Walsh
This book examines how child protection law has been shaped by the transition to late modernity and how it copes with the ever-changing concept of risk. It traces the evolution of the contemporary child protection system through historical changes, focussing on the Republic of Ireland where child protection has become emblematic of wider social change. The work draws on a wide range of primary and secondary sources including legislation, case law and official and media reports of child protection inquiries. The book will be a valuable resource for all those with an interest in the development of child protection law.

The Changing Paradigms
Conflict
The Protection of Cultural Heritage During Armed Conflict
Noelle Higgins
This book aims to identify how the legal framework has sought to protect cultural heritage during armed conflict and analyse the changing paradigms for this protection over time. It focuses, in particular, on the recent ‘securitisation’ paradigm, in which the destruction of cultural heritage is recognised as a threat to international peace and security. The book queries whether using the genocide framework is an appropriate response to attacks on cultural heritage. It will be an essential resource for scholars and practitioners in the areas of international law, international humanitarian law, international criminal law, the rights of minorities and cultural heritage law.

The Future of the Law of Contract
Edited by Michael Furmston
Series: Markets and the Law
The Future of the Law of Contract brings together an impressive collection of essays on contract law. Taking a comparative approach, the aim of the book is to address how the law of contract will develop over the next twenty-five years, as well as considering the ways in which changes to the way that contracts are made will affect the law. The chapters are written by leading academics from England, Australia, Canada, the United States, Singapore and Malaysia. As such, this collection will be of global interest and importance to professionals, academics and students of contract law.

UN Territorial Administration and Human Rights
The Mission in Kosovo
Gjyblehare Bella Murati, Ghent University Human Rights Centre, Belgium
Series: Post-Conflict Law and Justice
UNMIK: Human Rights in a Surrogate State Administration provides a detailed critical legal analysis of one of the major UN administrations of territory, post-Cold War, namely the UN administration of Kosovo from 1999 to 2008. The analysis in this book would be beneficial to international law and international relations scholars and students, as well as policy-makers and persons working for international organizations. The analysis and the lessons learned through this study shed light on the challenges entailed in governing territories and rebuilding State institutions, while upholding the rule of law and ensuring respect for human rights.

Contemporary Corrections

A Critical Thinking Approach

Rick Ruddell, University of Regina, G. Larry Mays, New Mexico State University and L. Thomas Winfree Jr., Arizona State University

Contemporary Corrections introduces readers to the essential elements of the U.S. corrections system without drowning students in a sea of nonessential information. Unbiased and accessible, the text includes coverage of the history of corrections, alternatives to incarceration, probation/parole, race/ethnicity/gender issues in corrections, re-entry into the community, and more. The authors’ practical approach, reinforced by contemporary examples, illuminates the role corrections plays in our society. This book offers a concise but comprehensive introduction to corrections with textual materials and assignments designed to encourage students’ critical thinking skills.

Analytical Criminology
Integrating Explanations of Crime and Deviant Behavior
Karl-Dieter Opp
Series: Routledge Advances in Criminology
This book offers an integrated theoretical system which enables criminologists to analyze both the micro and macro theories of crime. It allows individuals attributes and the situation to affect crime, producing a single theoretical approach that links individuals to the society in which the crime has taken place. The book concludes with the implications of Analytical Criminology for crime prevention and criminal policy.

Crime and Justice in the Trump Era
Edited by Francis T Cullen and Amanda Graham
Crime and Justice in the Trump Era documents the impact of Trump administration policies on (1) violence against women, (2) the treatment of persons of color, (3) corporate and environmental crime (both domestic and international), and (4) federal crime control policy.

The authors represent different perspectives in the discipline—critical/feminist and mainstream criminologists, quantitative and qualitative scholars, and students of both street and white-collar crime. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Victims & Offenders: An International Journal of Evidence-based Research, Policy, and Practice.

Criminal Justice, Volume 26
Explanations and Effects
Edited by Cecilia Chouhy, Florida State University, Joshua C. Cochran, University of Cincinnati and Cheryl Lero Jonson, Xavier University
Series: Advances in Criminological Theory
This book undertakes a systematic study of theories of the criminal justice system, which historically have received very little attention from scholars. This is a glaring omission given the risk of mass imprisonment, the increasing presence of police in inner-city communities, and the emergence of new policy initiatives aimed at improving the quality and effectiveness of the administration of justice. Based on 14 original essays by influential scholars, this volume pulls together the most significant of these perspectives, thus creating a state-of-the-art assessment of contemporary criminal justice theory.

Female Capital Punishment
From the Gallows to Unofficial Abolition in Connecticut
Lawrence B Goodheart
Series: Routledge Studies in Crime and Society
This book is the first to systematically investigate the capital punishment of girls and women in one jurisdiction in the United States during nearly four centuries. Using Connecticut as an essential case study because of its long history as a colony and a state, this study is the first of its kind not only for New England but for the United States. The author uses rich archival sources to look critically at the gendered differential in the application of the death penalty from the seventeenth century until the abolition of capital punishment in Connecticut in 2012.

Series: International Series on Desistance and Rehabilitation
This book offers the first in-depth analysis of peer mentoring in criminal justice. Drawing upon a rigorous ethnographic study of multiple community organisations in England, it identifies key features of criminal justice peer mentoring.

Gendered Responses to Male Offending in Barbados
Patriarchal Perceptions and Their Effect on Offender Treatment
Corin Bailey, University of the West Indies, Barbados
Series: Routledge Studies in Crime and Society
This book explores the decisions made by the various stakeholders who play a role in the incarceration of men in the Caribbean. It argues that these decisions are based on patriarchal perceptions related to familial roles of men and women, and by extension their motivations for offending. Using data gathered from Barbados, it analyses the decisions of the police and the judiciary, as well as shop managers and proprietors in cases involving shoplifting. In doing so, it assesses the extent to which gendered biases are taken into consideration before offenders enter the criminal justice system.

Police Integrity in South Africa
Sanja Kutnjak Ivkovic, Michigan State University, USA and Adri Sauerman, Michigan State University, USA
Series: Routledge Frontiers of Criminal Justice
This book offers a unique perspective by providing in-depth analyses of police integrity in South Africa. Using the organizational theory of police integrity, the book analyses the complex set of historical, legal, political, social, and economic circumstances shaping police integrity.

Lawyers and the Proceeds of Crime
The Facilitation of Money Laundering and its Control
Katie Benson
Series: The Law of Financial Crime
This book presents an in-depth empirical analysis of the nature of lawyers’ involvement in the facilitation of money laundering, and its control through criminal justice and regulatory mechanisms. It is based on qualitative research combining analysis of cases of lawyers convicted of money laundering offences with interviews and analysis of relevant national and international legislative and regulatory frameworks. It is essential reading for those researching money laundering, white-collar and organised crimes, and for practitioners and policy makers concerned with preventing the facilitation of money laundering.

Policing Transnational Crime
Law Enforcement of Criminal Flows
Edited by Saskia Hufnagel and Anton Moiseienko
Series: Transnational Criminal Justice
This collection provides an overview of the challenges and trends of the policing of flows, or movement, of people and objects that are deemed dangerous. The book explores how these threats are constructed and addressed by governments and law enforcement agencies. The concept of flows is interpreted broadly to include the trafficking of illicit substances, wildlife trade, and legal and illegal migration, including cross-border travel by members of organised crime groups or ‘foreign fighters’. The contributors comprise a mixture of lawyers, sociologists, historians and criminologists who address both formal legal and practical, on-the-ground approaches to the policing of flows.
Risk and Harm in Youth Sexting
Young People’s Perspectives

Emily Setty
Series: Routledge Studies in Crime and Society
This book draws upon interviews with teenage young people to explore their perspectives on risk and harm in ‘youth sexting culture’. It focuses specifically on digital sexual image-sharing among young people. It contextualises the findings in terms of the wider literature on youth sexting and the broader theoretical and conceptual debates about the phenomenon in public and academic spheres.

Understanding New York’s Crime Drop

Edited by Richard Rosenfeld, Karen Terry and Preeti Chauhan
This book explores New York City’s historic crime drop over the past quarter of a century. New York City’s dramatic crime decline is a real brainteaser. No one predicted it and, as of yet, no one has explained it, at least to the satisfaction of most social scientists who study crime trends. The contributors to Understanding New York’s Crime Drop aim to provoke expanded and sustained attention to crime trends in New York and elsewhere. This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal, Justice Quarterly.

Blockchain for Medical Research

Accelerating Trust in Healthcare

Sean T. Manion and Yael Bizouati-Kennedy

This book is about science, its value to our health, and how we can use blockchain to improve its quality and impact. The book will look at science and medicine from an insider’s perspective, and describe the processes, successes, shortcomings and opportunities for advancement for the lay audience. It will give the reader a non-technical look at the emerging world of blockchain technology, what it is, where it is useful, and how it can improve science and health. It will lay out a roadmap for this application to transform how we develop knowledge about disease and accelerate cures to improve our lives.

Corporate Risks and Leadership

What Every Executive Should Know About Risks, Ethics, Compliance and Human Resources

Eduardo Esteban Mariscotti

This book is a source of information that connects yesterday with today. The author shares observations and lessons of the past to suggest corporate leaders implement effective ethics and compliance programs to protect their organizations and themselves. The book covers theories of ethics but with an eye focused on practical application. Risks, ethics, and compliance are analyzed with an overall vision, connected to the reality of business life, without getting bogged down in abstract thinking or in technical and regulatory details.

Freedom Within a Framework
Hearing the Voice of the Customer on the Factory Floor
Paul G. Cafaro

This book shows you how to harmonize three business functions to address customer needs by using a novel approach that combines Design for Six Sigma (DFSS) and Continuous Improvement tools. The DFSS tool used is the Quality Function Deployment (QFD) process, which is also known as the House of Quality (HOQ): Although these are techniques reserved for the design of new products, the book illustrates how the HOQ helps translates exactly what customers specifically find important about your products. In addition, if customers are experiencing issues with that product, it helps map those issues and prioritizes the Critical to Quality (CTQ) parameters.

Leading Megaprojects
A Tailored Approach
Mounir A. Ajam
Summarizing research and practical experience, this book presents a methodology for delivering mega projects. The methodology is demonstrated through simulation of a project and discusses the role of change in leading mega projects. The book covers such challenges as the culture of fixed-price contracting, owners’ overdependence on contractors and project management consultants, and the politics in the infrastructure projects. At the heart of the book is a stage-gate process that integrates a project with an organization’s asset management. Also presented is a tailored-method model that has been proven to work with organizational infrastructure.

Strategic Human Resource Management
Formulating and Implementing HR Strategies for a Competitive Advantage

Ananda Das Gupta

This book provides the emphasis on understanding HRM as the management of work and people in organizations and the analytical approach we take to find the boundaries between HRM, industrial/employment relations and organizational behavior. As a management discipline, HRM draws insights, models, and theories from cognate disciplines and applies them to real world settings. Further, discussions of how current theoretical perspectives and frameworks (e.g., those related to strategic competitiveness, knowledge management, learning organization, communities of practice) can be applied by reflective practitioners to create an eco-friendly organizational culture.

Red, White and Radical
What Organisations Can Learn About Change from the Rise of American Conservatism

Warrick Harniess, Scandinavia Stories, UK

This book explores how and why America has become so conservative since World War II. In the process, it offers lessons that professional leaders, regardless of their political stance, should heed if they want their organisational change plans to succeed. Using nine stories from American cultural, political and business history that illuminate how conservatives have pioneered change, the book outlines a change management lesson for professional leaders and explains how to apply that lesson in the workplace. If you’re a passionate business leader who relishes the challenge of delivering true organisational change for the better, then this book is for you.

The Democratic Organisation

Democracy and the Future of Work

Thomas Diefenbach

Series: Routledge Studies in Management, Organisations and Society

Current models of organisation divide people into owners and workers, managers and employees, forcing especially the latter to obey, to behave and to function well within a managerial and functional pecking-order. Arguing that most current organisations are orthodox, hierarchical, anti-democratic, oppressive, unfair and unjust; this book presents a viable alternative, a better type of organisation - the democratic organisation. This book will be of interest to researchers, academics, practitioners, and students in the fields of management, organisation studies, strategic management, business ethics, entrepreneurship, and family business.

The Biology of Investing
John R. Nofsinger and Corey A. Shank
People’s financial and economic preferences vary widely due to ‘Nature’ variables such as socioeconomic factors, but scientists have been discovering that ‘Nurture’ also plays a role. This is the first book to bring together these scientific insights for a holistic view of the role of human biology in financial decision-making.

Accounting for M&A
Uses and Abuses of Accounting in Monitoring and Promoting Merger
Edited by Amir Amel-Zadeh, University of Oxford, UK and Geoff Meeks, University of Cambridge, UK
This book presents statistical studies, case material, and standard-setters’ opinions on company accounting before, during and after M&A. It documents the manipulation of annual accounts by acquirers, biased forecasts of post-merger earnings by bidders, and devices to flatten earnings when recording the deal. It explores the challenges for standard-setters in regulating information flows in M&A, and for account-users in assessing post-merger financial statements. It is the first book to bring together these scientific insights for a holistic view of the role of human biology in financial decision-making.

The Good Enough Manager
The Making of a GEM
Aaron J. Nurick, Bentley College, USA
What makes a GEM at the dawn of a new decade? The book’s central questions remain: How do the best managers behave? What sets them apart? What impact do they have on their colleagues? The GEM concept stems from the psychological theory of the good enough parent who provides an environment where an infant learns to develop an autonomous and genuine self. Managing in organizations is an inherently human and fallible endeavor, mainly because it occurs by and through human relationships. Upper-level undergraduate and postgraduate students, as well as practicing managers, will be inspired to rethink their own approaches to management.

Banking and Finance
Case studies in the development of UK financial sector
Edited by John F Wilson, Nicholas D. Wong and Steven Toms, University of Leeds, UK
This shortform book presents key peer-reviewed research selected by expert series editors and contextualised by new analysis from each author on how the specific field addressed has evolved. The book features contributions on the development of banking regulation in Scotland, the role of offshoots of French capitalism. This will be a valuable resource for academics interested in the history of banking and finance, entrepreneurship, colonialism and of “economic patriotism”, in business and economic historians, this shortform book also provides analysis that will be valuable reading across the social sciences.

A Pre-Modern Cultural History of Risk
Imagining the Future
Gaspar Mairal
This book answers the needs of a contextual, long-term and interpretative analysis of risk from original sources. It explores the notion of ‘managing the future’ by tracing the conceptual development of risk from its origin in Islamic Koranic theology. Tracking the growth and evolution of risk as a concept across various historical periods and events, Mairal highlights four key features of risk: time, knowledge, relationship and probability— and argues that risk is not based on perception as it is generally presented, but rather on knowledge accrued and developed over a vast historical timeframe. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of risk management.

Banking in China 1890s–1940s
Business in the French Concessions
Edited by Hubert Bonin, GRETHA research centre, Bordeaux University
The book targets three concessions in China: Canton/Guangzhou, Tianjin/Tianjin, and Hankou/Hankow/Wuhan because of their significance in the emergence of a modern economy. For each of these concessions, commercial and banking systems, assessments of the successes and limits of the French bankers and merchants are investigated, with the aim of evaluating the reality of French entrepreneurialism and power in the regions prospected by the offshoots of French capitalism. This will be a valuable resource for academics interested in the history of banking and finance, entrepreneurship, colonialism and of “economic patriotism”, in Chinese history, in geoeconomics and in connected history.
Developing Digital Governance
South Korea as a Global Digital Government Leader

Choong-sik Chung, Kyungsung University, South Korea
Series: Routledge Studies in Innovation, Organizations and Technology
Why and how did Korea become the world’s top digital government leader? This book examines the Korean model and how it is different from the digital government models of the West, specifically of the United States and the UK. The book also looks at successes and failures that Korea has encountered during the process of helping developing nations set up digital governments. It is a useful reference for developing countries that are looking at developing their own national information master plan, including digital government.

Developing the Workforce in an Emerging Economy
The Case of Indonesia

Edited by Kantha Dayaram, Curtin University, Australia, Linda Lambe, Universitas Sam Ratulangi, Indonesia, John Burgess, Curtin University of Technology, Australia and Tri Wulida Afiyanti, Brawijaya University, Indonesia Series: Routledge Advances in Management and Business Studies
This book examines how forces of globalization, demographic and technological change are manifested and accommodated in an emerging economy such as Indonesia, which has a large workforce pool. Using the human resource development framework, the book explains the opportunities and challenges in developing human capabilities to support current and future living standards. It looks at human development challenges across the spectrum of workforce skills and across the spectrum of formal and informal labour markets. This book presents many of the features and issues that are present in emerging economies as they grapple with human resource development in the globalized and networked era.

Implicative Marketing
For a Sustainable Economy
Florence Touzé, Audencia Business School, France
Series: Routledge Focus on Business and Management
This book is a manifesto for responsible marketing. It looks critically at the marketing practices of the last 50 years and explains why they have led to an ethical stalemate and sometimes even a business impasse. These practices have tired the consumer with meaningless offers and destroyed value by driving prices down. Today, this inheritance weighs heavily on the consumer with meaningless offers and destroyed value by driving prices down. For a Sustainable Economy means for the co-operative business model. The consumer and branding that suggest ways to overcome this situation.

Morality, Ethics and Responsibility in Organization and Management
Edited by Robert McMurray, The York Management School, UK and Alison Pullen, Macquarie University, Australia
Series: Routledge Focus on Women Writers in Organization Studies
In the aftermath of the financial crisis, and regular corporate scandals, there has been a growing concern with the moral and ethical foundations of business. Often these concerns are limited to narrow accounts of governance codes, regulatory procedures or behaviour incentives, which are often characterised by neo-liberal bias underpinned by western masculine logics. This book challenges these limited accounts of ethics and responsibility. It will be relevant to students and researchers across business and management, organizational studies, critical management studies, gender studies and sociology.

The Beatles and Economics
Entrepreneurship, Innovation, and the Making of a Cultural Revolution
Samuel R. Staley, Florida State University, USA
Series: Routledge Economics and Popular Culture Series
The Beatles are considered the most influential popular music act of the 20th century, widely recognized for their influence on popular culture. The inability of other bands and artists to imitate their fame has prompted questions such as: How did The Beatles become so successful? What factors contributed to their success? Why did they break up? The Beatles and Economics answers these questions using the lens of economic analysis. Economics provides the prism for explaining why their success - while legendary in scale - is not mythic. This essential text is of interest to anyone interested in the economic dynamics and social forces that shape cultural change.

The Economic Policy of the Common Agricultural Policy
Coordinated Capitalism or Bureaucratic Monster?
Fernando Collantes
What is the balance of the European Union’s Common Agricultural Policy more than half a century after its birth? Does it illustrate the virtues of the European model of coordinated capitalism? Or is it an incoherent set of instruments that exert diverse negative impacts and, like Frankenstein’s monster, seems to have escaped the control of its designers? This book proposes that the issue with the CAP is not a generic problem of coordinating capitalism, but instead a more specific problem of low-quality coordination. This key work is essential reading for researchers, graduate students, and masters-level docents of the Common Agricultural Policy and European Union policy and reform.

The Rise of Law and Economics: An Intellectual History
George L. Priest
This book is a brief history of the rise of law and economics as a field of thought in the US college and law school academy, though the field has expanded to Europe and South America and will expand further as other legal systems develop. It explains the origins and intellectual roots of the field and the sources of its growth during its formative period, as well as the field’s relationship to the understanding of the role of the legal system in directing the functioning of the economy. This will be an essential companion of law and economics texts for undergraduate law and economics students and, especially, as a general supplement to first year casebooks for law school students.

Capitalist Political Economy

Heather Whiteside, University of Waterloo, Canada

A key text, Capitalist Political Economy: Thinkers and Theories analyses the field-forming theoretical contributions to political economy that have defined, debated, critiqued, and defended capitalism for more than three centuries. Grounded in primary and secondary literature, this text contextualizes the legacy of foundational political economists by exploring their life and times and putting them in conversation with other highly influential theorists. Equally, it also considers more contemporary views. This book serves as an indispensable source for academic communities who are interested in the long arc of capitalist development, theories, and historians.

Principles of Economics in a Nutshell

Lorenzo Garbo, University of Redlands, USA, Dorene Isenberg, University of Redlands, USA and Nicholas Reksten, University of Redlands, USA

Principles of Economics in a Nutshell provides a succinct overview of contemporary economic theory. This key text introduces economics as a social science, presenting the discipline as an evolving field shaped within historical context. Chapters on microeconomics introduce concepts of scarcity and tradeoffs, market analysis and the theory of the firm and market structure. Chapters on macroeconomics begin with an explanation of national income accounting, followed by discussions of macroeconomic theory in the goods market and in the money market from both a Keynesian and Classical view. This book will be of great importance to students new to economics.

Democratizing the Economics Debate
Pluralism and Research Evaluation
Carlo D’Ippoliti, Sapienza, Universita di Roma, Italy
Series: Young Feltrinelli Prize in the Moral Sciences
More than a decade since the global financial crisis, economics does not exhibit signs of significant change. Mainstream economists act on an idealized image of science, which includes the convergence of all perspectives into a single supposed scientific truth. Democratizing the Economics Debate shows that this idealized image misrepresents the recent past and current state of economics. As experts who intervene in the public debate, economists must assure society that they are working in the best possible way, which includes fostering a wide and fair scientific debate. This book will be of interest to anyone who worries for the state of the democratic debate.

Complexities of Financial Globalisation
Analytical and Policy Issues in Emerging and Developing Economies
Tony Cavoli, Sasadaran Gopalan, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore and Ramkishen S. Rajan, National University of Singapore
Series: Routledge International Studies in Money and Banking
This book provides empirical analysis on the complex interactions between the financial sector and macroeconomic and financial stability in EMDEs in general and those in the Asian region in particular. The book consists of twelve chapters divided into three sections: (1) exchange rate policies and financial stability; financial inclusion and monetary transmission; and foreign direct investment (FDI) and regional integration. Each chapter focuses on important economic policy issues of contemporary relevance. The book will appeal to anyone interested to learn more of the implications of issues emanating from financial globalisation on EMDEs.

Corporate Law and the Theory of the Firm
Reconstructing Corporations, Shareholders, Directors, Owners, and Investors
Wm. Dennis Huber
Series: The Economics of Legal Relationships
In this book the author performs a rigorous, systematic analysis of common law, contract law, property law, agency law, partnership law, trust law, and corporate statutory law using judicial rulings that prove shareholders do not own corporations, that there is no separation of ownership and control, directors are not agents of shareholders, and shareholders are not investors in corporations. It will appeal to researchers and upper level and graduate students in economics, finance, accounting, law, and sociology, as well as attorneys and accountants.

Economic History of a Divided Europe
Four Diverse Regions in an Integrating Continent
Ivan T. Berend
Series: Routledge Studies in the Economics of Innovation
The author examines the distinctions between the regions in Europe, looks at how these differences transpired and became so entrenched, and answers the question of why some countries were able to elevate to higher levels of economic development while others could not. This book is unique in that it provides a timely historical analysis of the main causes of the most pressing conflicts in Europe today. Readers will come away from this book with a deeper understanding of the sharp divergence in economic standing between the four different regions of Europe, as well as knowledge about how institutional corruption and other cultural features exacerbated these variations.

Environmentally Sustainable Industrial Development in China

Yangqing Jiang, Shanghai International Studies University, China and Xu Yuan, Shanghai International Studies University, China

Series: Routledge Focus on Economics and Finance

There is growing concern about China’s industrial development being unsustainable and the irreversible depletion of natural resources and deterioration of the ecological environment. Environmental considerations play a crucial role in shaping China’s development strategies. Green development of China creates strong pressures for continuous transforming, upgrading and restructuring of the Chinese economy. This book explores how China’s industrial development relates to pollution and the environmental quality, and how considerations about such issues associated with the eco-environmental system affect China’s development strategies.

Global Imbalances and Financial Capitalism

Jacques Mazier, Université Paris-13, France

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

The last few decades have witnessed the emergence of economic imbalances at the world level and within the euro zone. The failure of mainstream economics to accurately predict financial crises, or model the effects of finance-led growth, highlights the need for alternative frameworks. A key text, Global Imbalances and Financial Capitalism demonstrates that Stock-Flow-Consistent models are well adapted to study this growth regime due to their ability to analyse the real and financial sides of the economy in an integrated way. This text will be of interest to students, scholars, and researchers of economic theory and international monetary economics.

Marx at 200

New Developments on Karl Marx’s Thought and Writings

Edited by Gilbert Faccarello, Université Panthéon-Assas, France and Heinz D. Kurz, University of Graz, Austria

The book provides new vistas on Karl Marx’s political economy, philosophy and politics on the occasion of his 200th birthday. The themes dealt with include Marx’s concepts of alienation and commodity fetishism, the labour theory of value and the theory of exploitation, Marx’s studies of capital accumulation and economic growth, his analysis of economic crises and of the labour contract. Novel developments in the reception of his works in France and the United Kingdom conclude the volume. This book was originally published as a special issue of the European Journal of History of Economic Thought.

Profit, Accumulation, and Crisis in Capitalism

Long-term Trends in the UK, US, Japan, and China, 1855–2018

Minqi Li, University of Utah, USA

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Marx hypothesized that the profit rate in a capitalist economy tended to fall in the long run. The rise and fall of the profit rate has contributed to economic long waves and institutional transformations in the capitalist economic history. This book studies the long-term movement of the profit rate and its impact on capital accumulation in several major economies: the United Kingdom (1855-2018); the United States (1929-2018); Japan (1955-2018); and China (1980-2018). The book may provide insight into whether the Chinese economy is heading into a crisis as China’s profit rate approaches levels that historically were associated with major crises in other capitalist economies.

The Philosophy of Causality in Economics
Causal Inferences and Policy Proposals
Mariusz Maziarz
Series: Routledge INEM Advances in Economic Methodology
What do economists mean when they conclude that A ‘causes’ B? Does ‘cause’ say that we can influence B by intervening on A, or is it only a label for the correlation of variables? This book analyses the meaning of causal claims made by economists and the philosophical presuppositions underlying the research methods used. The book considers five key causal approaches: the regularity approach, probabilistic theories, counterfactual theories, mechanisms, and interventions and manipulability. The work is essential reading to those interested in literature on the philosophy of economics, as well as the philosophy of causality and economic methodology in general.

The Political Economy of Independence in Europe
Hana Lipovská, Masaryk University, Czech Republic
Series: Routledge Studies in the European Economy
This book examines secessionism, separatism and calls for independence in the European Union, in recent history and within an economic context. It contributes to the deeper understanding of factors influencing the individual decision-making processes around secession, using economic analysis to answer a set of simple questions about who the secessionists are, what they really want, what their incentives are and why it is easier to declare their secessionist tendencies than to vote for secession. The book will find an audience among researchers, scholars and students of economics and political science, as well as policy-makers and professionals engaged with a secessionist agenda.

The Routledge Handbook of Integrated Reporting
Edited by Massimiliano Vatiero, University of the Scuolza Italiana, Switzerland
Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics
Despite abundant literature on transaction costs, there is little to no in-depth analysis regarding what the transaction is or how it works. Drawing on both mainstream and heterodox literature and a variety of interdisciplinary sources, this monograph traces the history of transaction costs in institutional economics, mapping the topicality and use of the idea of transaction in institutional economics literature over time, explicating how historical context affects this idea.

Walking Cities: London
Edited by Jaspar Joseph-Lester, Simon King, Amy Blier-Carruthers, Royal Academy of Music, UK and Roberto Bottazzi
Walking Cities: London (second edition) brings together a new interdisciplinary field of artists, writers, architects, musicians, human geographers and philosophers to consider how a city walk informs and triggers new processes of making, thinking, researching and communicating. In particular, the book examines how the city contains narratives, knowledge and contested materialities that are best accessed through the act of walking. The varied contributions take the form of short stories, illustrated essays, personal reflections and accounts of walks both real and fictional.

Riverlands of the Anthropocene
Walking Our Waterways as Places of Becoming Margaret Somerville
Series: Routledge Explorations in Environmental Studies
The book addresses some of the major conceptual challenges of the Anthropocene. Drawing on stories of migration, environmental activism, and encounters with the living beings that inhabit waterways, it considers the personal relationship with urban waterways and how it links to contemporary global issues. The book’s unique contribution is the bringing together of Australian Aboriginal knowledge systems with contemporary western philosophies including feminist materialism and rhizomatic geophillologies. It focuses on Deleuze in particular, and argues that artistic forms, such as visual arts and music, can assist us in thinking beyond the many binaries that constrain western thought.
The Aesthetics of Neighborhood Change
Edited by Lisa Berglund, Dalhousie University, Canada and Siobhan Gregory, Wayne State University, USA

This book explores the cultural and demographic shifts due to gentrification and redevelopment in urban locations. It discusses how cultures of existing groups (often racially/economically marginalized) are appropriated or erased in favor of luxury real estate branding strategies and retail. The book examines the literal and symbolic shifts in ownership that are happening in urban locations, showing how new forms of occupation are developed and experienced in the built environment.

The Cultural Politics of Urban Development in South Korea

Art, Memory and Urban Boosterism in Gwangju

HaeRan Shin, Seoul National University, South Korea

This book analyses the cultural politics of urban development in Gwangju, South Korea, and illustrates the implementation of state-led arts-based urban boosterism efforts in the context of political trauma and the desire for economic growth. The book explores urban development that is complicated by the recent history of democratic uprising in Gwangju, and it examines the dichotomy between cities as growth machines and progressive cities. Actor-oriented qualitative research methods are used to show how culture and economies can evolve from territorial conflicts.

Transnational Labour Migration, Livelihoods and Agrarian Change in Nepal

The Remittance Village

Ramesh Sunam, Waseda University, Japan

This book challenges complacent linear narratives that assume new opportunities such as transnational migration and remittances provide better pathways for the rural poor to come out of poverty, as well as narratives that underestimate the importance of land and farming for the rural poor. The book demonstrates both that new opportunities are inaccessible for many poor people, and that accessing these opportunities often engenders increased precarity and vulnerability. In the remittance village, he finds that even those accessing new opportunities (non-)agricultural activities. are simultaneously engaged in in-situ (non-)agricultural activities.

Rural Development in Practice

Evolving Challenges and Opportunities

Willem van Eekelen
Series: Rethinking Development

Rural Development in Practice focuses on the evolving nature of rural development in the Global South. It outlines how we got to where we are today, checks what we can learn from history, and explores the development drivers, facilitators and obstacles most likely to shape the years ahead. Real-life examples, exercises, role-plays, textbooks, anecdotes and illustrative artwork are used to bring concepts and theories to life. It is essential reading for students at all levels, and will be of benefit to programme and policy staff in rural-focused government departments, multilateral agencies and non-government organisations.

Inequality Studies from the Global South

Edited by David Francis, Imraan Valodia and Edward Webster
Series: Routledge Inequality Studies

This book offers an innovative, interdisciplinary approach to thinking about inequality, and to understanding how inequality is produced and reproduced in the global South. This exciting interdisciplinary collection brings together scholars from across the global South, and indeed the North, to address broad thematic areas and concludes by suggesting alternatives for addressing inequality in the global South and around the world. The innovative ideas and theories put forward by this volume make it an essential read for students and researchers of global inequality across the fields of sociology, economics, law, politics, global studies, and development studies.

A Theology of International Development

Thia Cooper
Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book offers a Christian theology of development, with practical solutions to bridge the gap and return to truly faith-based policies and practices. In applying theological thinking to development, the author argues that aid agencies need to address the entrenchment of unequal power relations, and embrace a holistic notion of development, defined by the needs of those most marginalized, instead of by a focus on economic growth. Overall this book is a powerful call to upend development practice as it currently exists, and it will be an important read for religion and development researchers, practitioners, and students.

African Environmental Crisis

A History of Science for Development

Gufu Oba
Series: Routledge Studies in African Development

This book explores how and why the idea of the African environmental crisis developed and persisted through colonial and post-colonial periods, and why it has been so influential in development discourse. Drawing on comparative socio-ecological perspectives of African peoples across the East African colonies and post-independent states, this book refutes the hypothesis that African peoples were responsible for environmental degradation. Instead, Gufu Oba argues that ‘African environmental crisis’ assumptions, and short-term research projects generated an inaccurate view of the environment in Africa.

Capital Mobility and Distributional Conflict in Chile, South Korea, and Turkey

Kurtulug Gemici
Series: Routledge Studies in Development Economics

In this book, Gemici shows that conflictual distributional relations significantly increase the likelihood of capital account liberalization. Through in-depth comparative case studies, he also demonstrates that countries which liberalize in the most comprehensive manner tend to be the countries characterized by a high degree of distributional conflict. The case studies – Argentina, Chile, South Korea, and Turkey – have chosen to maximize variation in distributional relations and to escape regional clustering, showing quite different trajectories of capital account liberalization.

Economic Development in Ghana and Malaysia

A Comparative Analysis

Samuel K. Andoh, Bernice J. deGannes Scott and Grace Ofor-Abebrese
Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

Economic Development in Ghana and Malaysia investigates why two countries that appeared to be at more or less the same stage of economic development at one point in time have diverged so substantially. It examines the pre-colonial and colonial economies of both countries, and the economic policies pursued after independence. In doing so, it aims to identify policies which might have contributed to Malaysia’s development, and those which might have slowed Ghana’s. This detailed comparative analysis will be useful to students and researchers of development economics as well as public policymakers in developing countries.

International Development and Local Faith Actors

Ideological and Cultural Encounters

Edited by Kathryn Kraft and Olivia J. Wilkinson
Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development
This book explores the interplay and dialogue between faith communities and the humanitarian-development community. The book demonstrates that partnerships between humanitarian-development practitioners and religious communities can be mutually beneficial exchanges, but that there are also frequently pitfalls along the way and opportunities for lessons to be learned by each party. This book is an important contribution to the growing body of literature on faith and development, and will be useful both to researchers, and to practitioners working with faith communities.

Nigerian Pentecostalism and Development

Spirit, Power, and Transformation

Richard Burgess
Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development
The Nigerian Pentecostal landscape is one of the most vibrant in Africa, with churches increasingly assuming more prominent roles as they seek to address the social and moral ills of contemporary society. This book examines the contributions of Nigerian Pentecostal churches to development, studying their practices broadly in relation to the intersecting spheres of politics, social service, education, economics, and the media. The book will be of considerable interest to scholars and students with an interest in the interaction between religion and development, and to practitioners and policy makers working in the region.

Rethinking Multilateralism in Foreign Aid

Beyond the Neoliberal Hegemony

Viktor Jakupec, Max Kelly and Jonathan Makuwira
Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies
This edited book provides a contemporary, critical and thought-provoking analysis of the internal and external threats to Western multilateral development finance in the twenty-first century. It draws on the expertise of scholars with a range of backgrounds providing a critical exploration of the neoliberal multilateral development aid. From this vantagepoint, Rethinking Multilateralism in Foreign Aid puts forward new ideas for addressing the current global social, political and economic challenges concerning multilateral development aid.

Contemporary Ethnographies
Moorings, Methods, and Keys for the Future
Francisco Ferrándiz
Series: Theorizing Ethnography
Contemporary Ethnographies is a call to use ethnography in imaginative ways, adjusting to rapidly evolving social circumstances. The book is based on a reflexive and theoretically grounded exploration of the author’s two main research projects – the study of the spiritist possession cult of María Lionza in Venezuela, and the analysis of the exhumation of Civil War (1936-1939) mass graves in contemporary Spain. The book is conceived of as a historically grounded open debate, providing as many certainties as moments of unpredictability and unresolved dilemmas. It is valuable reading for students and scholars interested in ethnographic methods and anthropological theory.

Women, Consumption and Paradox
Edited by Timothy de Waal Malefyt and Maryann McCabe
University of Rochester, USA
Series: Anthropology & Business
Women are the world’s most powerful consumers, yet they are largely marketed to erroneously through misconceptions and patriarchal views that distort the reality of women’s lives, bodies and work. This book examines the contradictions and mismatches between women’s everyday experiences and market representations. It considers how women themselves exhibit paradoxical behaviour in both resisting and supporting conflicting messages. The rich range of ethnographic accounts drawn from countries including the US, Brazil, Mexico, Denmark, Japan and China provide readers with a valuable perspective on consumer behaviour.

Médecins Sans Frontières and Humanitarian Situations
An Anthropological Exploration
Edited by Jean-François Véran, Doris Burscher and Beverley Stringer
This book explores the interaction between anthropology and humanitarianism, focused on the organization Médecins Sans Frontières (MSF). The emphasis of the collection is on practicing anthropology within humanitarian situations, reflecting on how anthropology contributes to the development of operational response. Each chapter presents an experience of working within a particular MSF project and highlights the real issues that anthropologists of humanitarian practice confront. The volume will be of interest to scholars from anthropology, development studies and global health, as well as to NGO staff and health professionals.

Rapid Ethnographic Assessments
A Practical Approach and Toolkit For Collaborative Community Research
Thurka Sangaramoorthy and Karen A Kroeger
This book provides a practical guide to understanding and conducting rapid ethnographic assessments (REAs) with an emphasis on their use in public health contexts. REAs have a proven history of success in shifting policies and programmatic outcomes in health and development sectors where resources and local research capacity are often limited, and where the success of interventions requires direct engagement and collaboration with local communities. This book will appeal to professionals and researchers interested in using REAs for research efficiency and productivity as well as action-oriented and translational research.

Affective Health and Masculinities in South Africa
An Ethnography of (In)vulnerability
Hans Reiling, University of Amsterdam, U.S.A Series: Routledge Studies in Health and Medical Anthropology
Affective Health and Masculinities in South Africa explores how different masculinities modulate substance use, interpersonal violence, suicidality, and AIDS as well as recovery cross-culturally. With a focus on three male protagonists living in very distinct urban areas of Cape Town, this comparative ethnography shows that men’s struggles to become invulnerable increase vulnerability. Contributing to current debates on mental health and masculinity, the volume will be of interest to scholars from a number of disciplines including anthropology, gender studies, African studies, psychology and global health.

The Cultural Heritage of Meghalaya
Edited by Queenbala Marak and Sarit K. Chaudhuri
This book looks at the state of Meghalaya exhaustively from the perspective of heritage documentation and maintenance. The 38 chapters written by anthropologists and independent researchers, present the rich traditions found in the region. This volume will be of great help to academicians, researchers, students, and laymen interested in a comprehensive study of the region. ; Please note: Taylor & Francis does not sell or distribute the Hardback in South Asia.

Secular Societies, Spiritual Selves?
The Gendered Triangle of Religion, Secularity and Spirituality
Edited by Anna Fedele, Chequeure Asocié of the Groupe de Sociologie Politique et Morale, École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales, Paris, France and Kim E. Knibbe, University of Groningen, The Netherlands
Series: Gendering the Study of Religion in the Social Sciences
Secular Societies, Spiritual Selves addresses the gendered intersections of religion, spirituality and the secular through an ethnographic approach. It examines how ‘spirituality’ has emerged as a relatively ‘silent’ category with which people often signal that they are looking for a way to navigate between the categories of the religious and the secular, and considers how this is related to gendered ways of being and relating. It will interest anthropologists and sociologists as well as scholars in other disciplines who seek to understand the role of spirituality in creating the complex gendered dynamics of modern societies.

Youth Culture and Identity in Northern Thailand
Fitting In and Sticking Out
Anjalee Cohen
Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology
Youth Culture and Identity in Northern Thailand examines how young people in urban Chiang Mai construct an identity at the intersection of global capitalism, state ideologies and local culture. Drawing on over 15 years of ethnographic research, the book explores the impact of rapid urbanisation and modernisation on contemporary Thai youth, focusing on conspicuous youth subcultures, drug use (especially methamphetamine use) and violent youth gangs. It is relevant to scholars in Thai Studies, Southeast Asian Studies, Anthropology, Sociology, Urban Studies and Development Studies, particularly those with an interest in youth, drugs, and gangs.
Communal Forms
A Sociological Exploration of Concepts of Community

Aksel Tjora and Graham Scambler

Drawing on a wide range of social theory, as well as empirical inputs from studies of work, neighbourhoods, events, meeting places and online self-help groups, this book suggests that communal forms are constructed on the basis of communicative, material, biographic-cultural, practice-based, and situational layers. This concept is then presented as a sociological toolbox with which to fuel approaches to examining societal challenges and change. Providing a fresh approach to a core sociological question that also has a wider societal relevance, Communal Forms will be of interest to scholars and students concerned with social issues, community and society.

Dalits
Past, Present and Future

Anand Teltumbde, Goa Institute of Management, India

This book is a comprehensive introduction to Dalits in India from their origin within the caste system to the present day. This new edition includes a new chapter explicating the rise of hindutva to assume complete control of the state and the dynamics it unleashed around Dalits. It traces its genesis to the construction of the post-colonial state which inter alia consecrated castes and avoided to adopt secularism. A tour de force, this book brings to the fore many key contemporary concerns and will be of great interest to activists, students, scholars and teachers of politics and political economy, sociology, history, social exclusion studies and the general reader.

Europe in Love
Binational Couples and Cosmopolitan Society

Juan Díez Medrano, Universidad Carlos III de Madrid, Spain

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology
Europe in Love draws on a unique survey to randomly selected samples of national and European binational couples to demonstrate that the latter are core cells of a future European society. The book challenges the view of cosmopolitanism as exclusively middle-class and highlights contrasts between lower-class and middle-class binational couples. It shows that social cosmopolitanism among binational couples is not matched by a commensurate weaker national identification that would enhance support to a more federal Europe.

Darkened Enlightenment
The Deterioration of Democracy, Human Rights, and Rational Thought in the Twenty-First Century

Tim Delaney, State University of New York at Oswego, USA

The premise of Darkened Enlightenment is to highlight the fact that there currently exist a number of socio-political forces that have the design, or ultimate consequence, of trying to extinguish the light of reason and rationality. The book presents a critique of modernity and provides a socio-political and cultural analysis of world society in the early twenty-first century. Specifically, this analysis examines the deterioration of democracy, human rights, and rational thought.

Gender Futurity, Intersectional Autoethnography
Embodied Theorizing From The Margins

Edited by Amber L. Johnson, Saint Louis University, USA and Benny LeMaster

Series: Writing Lives: Ethnographic Narratives
Gender Futurity, Intersectional Autoethnography showcases a collection of narrative and autoethnographic research that unpacks the complexity of gender at its intersections, i.e. by ability, race, sexuality, religion, beauty, geography, spirituality, community, performance, politics, socio economic status, education, and many other markers of difference. This book will be useful for undergraduate, postgraduate and professional degree students, particularly in the field of gender studies, qualitative methods and communication theory.
Love Under the Skin
Interracial Marriages in the American South and France

Cécile Coquet-Mokoko
Series: New Critical Viewpoints on Society
The rising visibility of interracial couples calls for increased attention to how culture and race overlap. This comparative study seeks to de-center the U.S.-centered viewpoint common to much of the literature on black and white relations. Based on nine years of fieldwork in the American South and in France, the author invites readers on a journey across geographic and cultural lines and reveals many unexpected parallels between the two societies. Her account emphasizes resilience and agency as couples seek to protect themselves and their children, while their extended or symbolic kinship networks help white partners acknowledge the existence of racial privilege.

Religion and Sexualities
Theories, Themes, and Methodologies

Sarah-Jane Page, Aston University, UK and Heather Shipley, University of Ottawa, Canada
This book examines key themes and concepts pertaining to religious and sexual identities and expressions, mapping theoretical, methodological and empirical dimensions. It explores the ways in which debates around sexuality and religion have been framed, and what research is still needed to expand the field as it develops. Through the deployment of contemporary research, including data from the authors’ own projects, Religion and Sexualities offers an encompassing account of the sociology of sexuality and religion, considering theoretical and methodological lenses, queer experiences and how sexuality is gendered in religious contexts.

Charisma
A Micro-Sociological Theory

Randall Collins
What is charisma? And how does it generate influence and power? World-renowned sociologist Randall Collins explores these and many other questions in a highly readable exploration of the various forms of charisma and how charisma elevated Jesus, Cleopatra, Lawrence of Arabia, Hitler, Churchill, Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt, Madame Mao Zedong and others. He explores four types of charisma: frontstage, backstage, success-magic, and reputational charisma. The book exemplifies Collins’s sophisticated micro-sociology in accessible and compelling prose, quietly building subtle matrices of analysis that show how sociology unveils hidden discoveries.

Recognizing Race and Ethnicity
Power, Privilege, and Inequality

Kathleen J. Fitzgerald
This best-selling textbook explains the current state of research in the sociology of race/ethnicity, emphasizing white privilege, the social construction of race, and the newest theoretical perspectives for understanding race and ethnicity. The new 3rd edition comes at a pivotal time in the politics of race and identity. Fitzgerald includes vital new discussions on white ethnicities and the politics of Trump and populism. Prominent attention is given to immigration and the discourse surrounding it; to police and minority populations; and the criminal justice system. Using the latest available data, the author examines the present and future of generational change.

The Rich Get Richer and the Poor Get Prison

Thinking Critically About Class and Criminal Justice

Jeffrey Reiman, American University, USA and Paul Leighton, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, USA

The Rich Get Richer shows readers that much of what goes on in the criminal justice system violates citizens’ sense of basic fairness. It presents extensive evidence from mainstream data that the criminal justice system does not function in the way it says it does nor in the way that readers believe it should. The authors develop a theoretical perspective from which readers might understand these failures and evaluate them morally—and they to do it in a short text written in plain language.

The White Racial Frame

Centuries of Racial Framing and Counter-Framing

Joe R. Feagin, Texas A&M University

Deeply imbedded in American minds and institutions, the white racial frame has for centuries functioned as a broad worldview essential to the systemic racism in the United States. Feagin examines how and why this frame emerged in North America and evolved over time, which racial groups are framed within it, how it has operated for white Americans and Americans of color, and how the latter have long responded with strategies of resistance.

In this new edition is a discussion of the impact of the white racial frame on populist culture and a discussion of the white racial frame’s significant impacts on public policymaking, immigration, the environment, health care, and crime.

The Tumultuous Politics of Scale

Unsettled States, Migrants, Movements in Flux

Edited by Donald M. Nonini and Ida Susser

Contemporary politics, this book contends, depend upon the turbulent struggles and strategies around scale. Conflicts over scale can be seen as opaque class struggles. Political projects, whether from the ground up or representing corporate or state interests, continually contest the scale at which authority is vested. This volume looks at the way global corporations redefine the scale of power and how working class and other movements build alliances and cross scales to develop political blocs. Contributions from interdisciplinary perspectives explore theoretical issues around contested temporal and spatial scales, and around variations in scale from the body to the global.

Social Medicine and the Coming Transformation

Howard Waitzkin, Alina Pérez and Matt Anderson

Students, teachers, practitioners and policy advocates will value this textbook of social medicine, which goes beyond the usual approaches of texts in public health, medical sociology and health policy. The authors draw upon examples worldwide to show how principles based on solidarity and mutual aid have enabled people to construct health-promoting social conditions. The book enhances learners’ understanding about promoting health through social and individual means; the micro-politics of medical encounters; the social origins and determinants of illness; the influences of race, class, gender, and ethnicity; health and empire; and health praxis, reform, and sociomedical activism.

A Brief History of Knowledge for Social Science Researchers
Before Method
Deborah Court, Bar-Ilan University, Israel
A Brief History of Knowledge for Social Science Researchers outlines a history of knowledge from Ancient Greece to present day, in Europe and the Western world. This outline provides the basis for understanding where various research methods originate, and their epistemological, historical, political and social roots.
This book will be useful for graduate and post-graduate students, particularly those studying Research Methods, and Philosophy of Science courses; and for experienced social science researchers who wish to understand how research methods have developed in human history.

Colonialism and Animality
Anti-Colonial Perspectives in Critical Animal Studies
Edited by Kelly Struthers Montford, University of British Columbia, Canada and Chloe Taylor, University of Alberta, Canada
Series: Routledge Advances in Critical Diversities
Colonialism and Animality: Anti-Colonial Perspectives in Critical Animal Studies explores some of the ways that the oppression of Indigenous persons and more-than-human animals are interconnected.
This book will be of interest to undergraduate, postgraduate students, activists, as well as postdoctoral scholars, working in the areas of Critical Animal Studies, Native Studies, postcolonial and Critical Race Studies, with a particular chapter of interest to scholars and students in other fields, such as Cultural Studies, Animal Law, Critical Prison Studies, and radical criminology.

Biological Identity
Perspectives from Metaphysics and the Philosophy of Biology
Edited by Anne Sophie Meincke, Exeter University, UK and John Dupré, University of Exeter, UK
Series: History and Philosophy of Biology
The book investigates the question of biological identity from the perspectives of metaphysics and the philosophy of biology. The volume presents the first selection of essays exclusively focused on biological identity and written by experts in metaphysics, the philosophy of biology and biology. The resulting cross-disciplinary dialogue paves the way for a convincing account of biological identity that is both metaphysically constructive and scientifically informed, and will be of interest to metaphysicians, philosophers of biology and theoretical biologists.

Consciousness and the Neoliberal Subject
A Theory of Ideology via Marcuse, Jameson and Žižek
Jon Bailes
Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought
This book outlines a theory of ideological function and a range of ideological positions according to which individuals rationalise and accept socio-economic conditions in advanced consumer capitalist societies. Through a critical examination of the social and psychoanalytic theories of Herbert Marcuse, Fredric Jameson, and Slavoj Žižek, the author extends the understanding of ideology to consider not only the unconscious attachment to social relations, but also the importance of conscious rationalisation in sustaining ideologies. It will appeal to scholars of social and political theory with interests in ideology, neoliberalism, psychoanalytic thought and critical theory.

Children in Social Movements
Rethinking Agency, Mobilization and Rights
Diane M. Rodgers, Northern Illinois University, USA
Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology
Providing rich detail of children’s participation through illustrative case studies, the text presents the ideal types of participation as grounded in their social movement activity. These cross cultural, historical and contemporary case studies include, whenever possible, children’s perspective in their own words. Utilizing insights from childhood studies on agency and rights of children enhances the understanding of social movement strategies and mobilization. Following the chapters on each type of participation, suggestions are provided for rethinking existing social movement theories to acknowledge child participants.

Critical Realism, Feminism, and Gender: A Reader
Edited by Michiel van Ingen, London School of Economics, UK, Steph Grohmann and Lena Gunnarsson, Lund University, Sweden
Series: Routledge Studies in Critical Realism
In assessing the current state of feminism and gender studies, whether on a theoretical or a practical level, it has become increasingly challenging to avoid the conclusion that these fields are in a state of disarray. Indeed, feminist and gender studies discussions are beset with persistent splits and disagreements. This reader suggests that returning to, and placing centre-stage, the role of philosophy, especially critical realist philosophy of science, is invaluable for efforts that seek to overcome or mitigate the uncertainty and acrimony which have resulted from this situation.

Disability and Animality
Crip Perspectives in Critical Animal Studies
Edited by Stephanie Jenkins, Kelly Struthers Montford, University of British Columbia, Canada and Chloe Taylor
Series: Routledge Advances in Critical Differences
The fields of Critical Disability Studies and Critical Animal Studies are growing rapidly, but how do the implications of these endeavours intersect? Disability and Animality explores some of the ways that the oppression of more-than-human animals and disabled humans are interconnected. This book will be of interest to undergraduate and postgraduate students, as well as postdoctoral scholars, interested in Animal Studies, Disability Studies, Mad Studies, philosophy, and literary analysis. It will also appeal to those interested in the relationships between speciesism, ableism, sanism, and racism in animal agriculture, culture, built environments, and ethics.

Identity, Belonging, and Community in Men’s Roller Derby
Dawn Fletcher, The University of Sheffield, UK
Series: Routledge Research in Gender and Society
Identity, Belonging, and Community in Men’s Roller Derby offers an insight into how men’s roller derby culture is created and maintained, how members forge an identity for themselves and their team, and how they create feelings of belonging and inclusivity. Through in-depth ethnographic study of a specific, localised roller derby community, this book examines how practices of skills capital intersect with different configurations of masculinity in a continual struggle between traditional and inclusive models of sport.

Governing Religious Diversity in Cities
Edited by Julia Martínez-Ariño
Governing Religious Diversity in Cities provides original insights into the governance of religious diversity in cities from a variety of theoretical perspectives, and drawing on a wide range of empirical examples in Europe and Canada. While focusing on the urban dimension of governance, the chapters do not examine cities in isolation but take into account the interconnections between urban contexts and other scales, both within and beyond the borders of the nation-state. Adopting a critical perspective, it sheds light on the factors shaping different governance patterns, and on their implications for various religious groups.

Italian Youth in International Context
Belonging, Constraints and Opportunities
Edited by Valentina Cuzzocrea, Università di Cagliari, Italy, Barbara Giovanna Bello, University of Milan, Italy and Yuri Kazepov, University of Vienna, Austria
Series: Youth, Young Adulthood and Society
By bringing together a variety of approaches and methods, the authors of this collection analyze Italian youth through the lenses of three dimensions: ‘Activism, participation and citizenship’, ‘Work, Employment and Careers’ and ‘Moves, Transitions and Representations’. These dimensions are the analytical building blocks for challenging stereotypes and unveiling misinterpretations and taken-for-granted assumptions that portray young people in Italy as selfish, ‘choosy’, and unwilling to make sacrifices, commit and manage an independent life. These prejudices often underplay the role of constraints they are facing in the transition to adulthood.

Hegel and Contemporary Practical Philosophy
Beyond Kantian Constructivism
Edited by James Gledhill and Sebastian Stein
Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought
Scholars of German Idealism and contemporary Anglophone philosophy explore whether Hegelian idealist philosophy can offer the categories that analytic practical philosophy requires to overcome the contradictions that have so far plagued Kantian constructivism. Organized into three parts this book contributes to the debates on the importance of systematic philosophy in the context of practical philosophy, engages with contemporary discussions about the shape of a rational social order, and gauges the timeliness of Hegelian philosophy. This book is a must read for scholars interested in Hegel and in the contemporary tradition of Kantian constructivism in moral and political philosophy.

Nationalist Movements Explained
Comparisons from Canada, Belgium, Spain and Switzerland
Maurice Pinard, McGill University, Canada
Series: The Mobilization Series on Social Movements, Protest, and Culture
This book examines nationalist movements in four ethnically plural countries, one of which has no previous experience of such movements at the national level. Presenting comparisons of the cases of Canada, Belgium, Switzerland and Spain, including descriptions of the social, economic and political contexts in each country, the author investigates the various determinants of each movement, shedding new light on what accounts for ethnic conflict and harmony. A unique contribution to social movement theory based on important comparative analyses, this work will appeal to scholars of sociology and politics with interests in ethnic mobilization and contemporary social movements.

Seoul, Korea’s Global City
A New Urbanism for Upward Mobility
Kyoung-Ho Shin, Northwest Missouri State University, USA and Michael Timberlake, University of Utah, USA
This book explores the new urbanism in Seoul from the perspective of global political economy, focusing on the contexts in which the city has witnessed the transformation of its population structure. The burgeoning signs of Seoul’s status as a global city are discussed in terms of transnational tourism and the frequency of study abroad, the immigrant community, and cross-border cultural flows. Examining the labour structures within the city, economic growth policy, the role of advanced information technology, and neoliberal urban development, the authors also examine the local response in the city to its emerging status.

Social Ontology, Sociocultures and Inequality in the Global South
Edited by Benjamin Baumann, Humboldt University of Berlin, Germany and Daniel Bultmann, Humboldt University of Berlin, Germany
Series: Routledge Studies in Emerging Societies
Challenging the assumption that the capitalist transformation includes a radical break with the past, this edited volume traces how historically older forms of social inequality are transformed but persist in the present to shape the social structure of contemporary societies in the global South.
The volume explains why and how structures of inequality differ between contemporary collectives in the global South, even though all of them seem to have similar structures, institutions, and economies. It is aimed at academics, students and the interested public looking for a novel theorization of social inequality pertaining to collectives in the global South.

The Global Citizenship Nexus
Critical Studies
Edited by Debra D Chapman, Wilfrid Laurier University, Canada, Tania Ruiz-Chapman, University of Toronto, Canada and Peter Eglin, Wilfrid Laurier University, Canada
Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology
In the spirit of Ivan Illich’s 1968 speech ‘To hell with good intentions’, the book takes aim at a ubiquitous form of contemporary ideology, namely the concept of global citizenship. Addressed to all users of the concept of global citizenship from university students and faculty in global studies to social entrepreneurs and United Nations bureaucrats, the book’s studies ultimately ask whether the idea helps or hinders the global quest for social and economic justice.

Transnational Divorce

Understanding intimacies and inequalities from Singapore

Sharon Ee Ling Quah, University of Wollongong, Australia
Series: Routledge Studies in Family Sociology
Transnational Divorce uncovers the stories of four main groups of transnational divorces at the field site of Singapore. Employing transnational, intersectional feminist perspectives, the book extends the author’s earlier conceptualisation of divorce biography to propose a new framework of transnational divorce biography. The transnational divorce biography framework provides readers a useful analytical tool to make sense of transnational divorced individuals’ messy experiences in working out their transborder intimacy practices. Meandering through their accounts, the author weaves together a strong narrative of inequalities and privileges at the site of intimate life.

Turnout!

Motivating Voters During an Electoral Emergency

Charles Derber, Suren Moodliar and Matt Nelson
Series: Universalizing Resistance
This book assembles the knowledge of leading election authorities to show how Trump can be defeated in 2020. Turnout offers the political strategy for approaching “emergency elections,” and lists measures for civic groups and individuals to increase voting. Facilitating new coalitions and a unity between social movements and the Democratic Party, Turnout is a creative work of political vision with a detailed manual of talking points for turning out millions of non-voters, who must vote to send Trump and his GOP cronies packing. Community and movement groups and individuals will find this resource valuable for mobilizing voters who can change America’s future.

Women Who Buy Sex

Converging Sexualities?

Sarah Kingston, Lancaster University, UK, Natalie Hammond, Manchester Metropolitan University, UK and Scarlett Redman, University of Leeds, UK
Series: Interdisciplinary Studies in Sex for Sale
Drawing on empirical data from women who pay for sexual services and those who provide services to women, this ground-breaking study is the first of its kind in the UK, detailing the experiences of women who pay for sex in an explicit, direct, prearranged way.

By drawing on our unique data and comparing it to the literature on men clients, we present our theory ‘Converging Sexualities’. We argue that commercial sex is a site of behavioural convergence and that women clients are behaving in ways that could be described as masculine or feminine. This book will be of interest to researchers in the field of sexuality, sex work and women’s behaviour.

Understanding the Olympics

How did the Olympics evolve into a multi-national phenomenon? How can the Olympics help us to understand the relationship between sport and society? What will be the impact and legacy of the Olympics after Tokyo in 2020? Understanding the Olympics answers all these questions by exploring the social, cultural, political, historical and economic context of the Games. Gym Culture, Identity and Performance-Enhancing Drugs
Tracing a Typology of Steroid Use

Ask Vest Christiansen
Series: Ethics and Sport
This book is about gym culture, the pursuit of fit, muscular bodies and the use of drugs as a means to get there. It examines what the altered body does to the men’s identity, self-image and relationships with peers and partners. Taking an evolutionary psychological approach, it investigates the biological and psychological foundations of the fascination with the muscular body and discusses the notion of precarious masculinity. This is essential reading for anybody with an interest in the issue of drugs in sport, the ethics of sport, sociology of the body, masculinity or public health.

Sport and Entrepreneurship
Japan Through the Lens of the Tokyo Olympics

Edited by Dilwyn Porter, DMU, UK and Wray Vamplew, University of Stirling, UK
Series: Sport in the Global Society - Historical Perspectives
Sport and Entrepreneurship combines perspectives derived from business history and sports history, focusing on the important but relatively unexplored relationship of entrepreneurship and sport. It offers clearer definitions of both sports products and sports entrepreneurship, gives due regard to social entrepreneurs, and assesses the continuing relevance of Hardy’s pioneering study from the 1980s. Hardy himself provides an introduction to the volume, and chapters supply an overarching theoretical framework, offering new ways of identifying and describing sports-related entrepreneurial activity.

Sustainable Development Indicators
An Exergy-Based Approach
Søren Nors Nielsen, Aalborg University, Copenhagen, Denmark
Analyzing the self-sufficient Danish island of Samsø, this book explains sustainability through a biogeophysical understanding of how to best use Earth’s limited resources to achieve true sustainability. The method used derives from the thermodynamic function of exergy. By analyzing exergy flows and establishing a system for evaluating the energy and the materials used in a society, the author creates a platform for monitoring certain indicators of sustainability. These indicators inform readers about the actions that must be taken, and the timeframes for achieving sustainability goals. Exergy-based approach is an important tool for carrying out such analysis.

Aquatic Monocotyledons of North America
Ecology, Life History, and Systematics
Donald H. Les, University of Connecticut, Storrs, USA
This book brings together information on the natural history, ecology and systematics of North American aquatic monocotyledons. The book is an overview of the biology of major aquatic species by compiling information from numerous sources that have been scattered among the primary literature, herbarium databases, and other reference sources. Information on more than 300 species in 87 genera of monocotyledons will be included. Recent phylogenetic analyses will be incorporated. Although focusing specifically on North America, the cosmopolitan distribution of many aquatic plants should make this an attractive text to people working virtually anywhere outside of the region as well.

Limits to Terrestrial Extraction
Edited by Robert Kirsch, Arizona State University, USA
Series: Routledge Focus on Energy Studies
This volume focuses on the social, cultural, and ecological consequences of a political economy of energy. This book looks at the construction of society itself as an energy-harvesting “megamachine,” and explores the limit to terrestrial extraction, finding that business as usual cannot yield a different world. The authors offer critiques of market society and its constitutive drive to produce and waste energy. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of environmental political theory, as well as social scientists and humanities scholars who study the intersection of energy and society.

Pioneers, Leaders and Followers in Multilevel and Polycentric Climate Governance

Edited by Rüdiger Wurzel, University of Hull, UK, Duncan Lieferink, Radboud University, the Netherlands and Diarmuid Torney, Dublin City University, Ireland

This volume focuses on pioneers, leaders and followers as central drivers for international climate change governance innovations. It focuses primarily on non-state actors in different multilevel and polycentric governance structures offering critical analysis of actors who can act as pioneers and/or leaders at different levels of climate governance. The volume provides assessments of their motives, capacities, styles and strategies. It examines the dynamic interrelationship between leaders and pioneers, and followers and laggards. Moreover, it analyses how multilevel and polycentric climate governance structures enable and/or constrain climate pioneers, leaders and followers.

Reframing Energy Access
Insights from The Gambia

Anne Schiffer
Series: Routledge Focus on Environment and Sustainability
This book investigates energy access through the lens of everyday energy practices in the Gambian community of Kartong. It explores past, current and potential future modes of energy production and consumption to examine concepts such as energy leapfrogging and energy sufficiency. Translating insights of energy in The Gambian context into broader themes and recommendations, this book will be of great interest to policy makers, researchers and practitioners who work in the fields of energy access, energy policy, renewable energy transitions, as well as African and sustainable development in general.

Renewable Energy Uptake in Urban Latin America
Sustainable Technology in Mexico and Brazil

Alexandra Mallett, Carleton University, Canada
Series: Routledge Explorations in Energy Studies
This book explores the perplexing question of how to increase sustainable energy technology use in the developing world, and specifically focuses on two mega-cities within Latin America. It examines the market and uptake of two sustainable energy technologies (solar water heaters and biogas to produce electricity) in two locations, Mexico City, Mexico and São Paulo, Brazil in the 2000s. The book examines the varying factors affecting the implementation of renewable energy technologies (RETs) in urban Latin America. It will be of great interest to students and scholars of energy transitions, energy policy, development studies and science and technology studies.

Resources, Financial Risk and the Dynamics of Growth
Systems and Global Society

Roberto Pasqualino and Aled Wynne Jones, Anglia Ruskin University, UK
This book presents a new System Dynamics model (the ERRE model) designed by the authors to address the financial risks emerging from the interaction between economic growth and environmental limits under the presence of shocks. Building on the World3-03 Limits to Growth model, the ERRE links the financial system with the energy, agriculture and climate systems through the real economy, by means of feedback loops, time lags and non-linear rationally bounded decision making. This book will be of great interest to scholars of climate change, behavioural, ecological and evolutionary economics, green finance, and sustainable development.

Surviving Democracy
Mitigating Climate Change in a Neoliberalized World

Chien-Yi Lu
Series: Environmental Politics
Defining neoliberalism as the art of exclusion through inclusion, Chien-Yi Lu treats climate change as collateral damage of the neoliberal order established to ensure upward power and wealth redistribution. Highlighting the role money played in the "free" competition of ideas between Keynes and Hayek, she investigates the resulting global structure, wherein the wealthy and powerful sit above the market and democracy, and the way this structure fundamentally contradicts with honest climate mitigation. Surviving Democracy probes the role democracy plays in our dealings with—causing, understanding, denying, and hopefully, mitigating—climate change.

Sustainable Community Movement Organizations

Solidarity Economies and Rhizomatic Practices

Edited by Francesca Forno and Richard R. Weiner

Series: Routledge Focus on Environment and Sustainability

This volume shines a light on Sustainable Community Movement Organisations (SCMOs), an emergent wave of non-hierarchical, community-based socio-economic movements, with alternative forms of consumption and production very much at their core. The essays in this collection explore new geographies of solidarity practices ranging from forms of horizontal democracy to interurban and transnational networks. This book will be a valuable tool for academics and students of sustainable consumption; environmental policy, social policy; environmental economics, environmental management and sustainability studies more broadly.

The Environmental Impact of Overpopulation

The Ethics of Procreation

Trevor Hedberg

Series: Routledge Explorations in Environmental Studies

This book examines the link between population growth and environmental impact and explores the implications of this connection for the ethics of procreation. Trevor Hedberg argues that we have a collective moral duty to halt population growth to prevent environmental harms from escalating; he assesses a variety of policies that could help us meet this moral duty and sketches the implications of population growth for issues like abortion and immigration. This book will be of great interest to those studying environmental ethics, environmental policy, climate change, sustainability, and population policy.

The Future of European Union Environmental Politics and Policy

Edited by Anthony R. Zito, University of Newcastle, UK, Charlotte Burns, University of Sheffield, UK and Andrea Lenschow, Osnabrück University, Germany

This volume investigates the trajectory of EU environmental policy and reflects on how it has evolved over the decades. Gathering together leading scholars working on European environmental policy, it assesses change that has occurred in dimensions of EU environmental policy research, including the EU’s values and approaches, the provision of leadership, Brexit and the dismantling of policies, policy instruments and climate change, policy implementation and enforcement as well as policy evaluation. Each chapter also assesses the implications of current developments for the future health of European environmental policy, European integration and the environment itself.

Inclusive Development of Society
Proceedings of the 6th International Conference on Management and Technology in Knowledge, Service, Tourism & Hospitality (SERVE 2018), October 6-7 and December 15-16, 2018, Bali, Indonesia, and December 15-16, 2018, Rostov-on-Don, Russia
Edited by Ford Lumban Gaol, Bina Nusantara University, Jakarta, Indonesia, Natalia Filimonova, Vladimir State University, Russia, Irina Frolova, Southern Federal University, Rostov-on-Don, Russia and Ignatova Tatiana Vladimirivna, South Russia Institute of Management, Rostov-on-Don, Russia
These contributions deal with various interdisciplinary research topics, particularly in the fields of social sciences, economics and the arts. The papers focus especially on such topics as language, cultural studies, economics, behavior studies, political sciences, media and communication, psychology and human development. The theoretical research studies included here should provide a solid foundation for the development of new tools that explore the possibilities of developing tourism hospitality, service industries and advance our knowledge regarding the impact of information technologies in organizations’ and institutions’ practices.

3rd Edition - TEXTBOOK - READER
Cultural Tourism
Hilary du Cros, University of New Brunswick, Canada and Bob McKercher, Hong Kong Polytechnic University, China
This remains the only book to bridge the gap between cultural tourism and cultural and heritage management. The first edition illustrated how heritage and tourism goals can be integrated in a management and marketing framework to produce sustainable cultural tourism. The current edition takes this further to base the discussion of cultural tourism in the theory and practice of cultural and heritage management (CM and CHM). Written by experts in both tourism and cultural heritage management, this book will enable professionals and students to gain a better understanding of their own and each other’s roles in achieving sustainable cultural tourism.

Gendered Violence at International Festivals
An Interdisciplinary Perspective
Edited by Louise Platt, Manchester Metropolitan University, UK and Rebecca Finkel, Queen Margaret University, UK
Series: Routledge Critical Event Studies Research Series
Gendered Violence at International Festivals is a ground-breaking collection that focuses on this highly important social issue for the first time. The book contests the widely-held notion that festivals are temporal spaces free from structural sexism, inequalities, or gender power dynamics. Rather, they are spaces where these concerns are enhanced and enacted more freely, and where the experiential environment is used as an excuse or as an opportunity to victim-blame and shame.
This will be of great interest to undergraduate and postgraduate students and academics in the field of Events Studies.

Reworking Tourism
Diverse Economies in a Changing World
Edited by Jenny Cave, University of Swansea, UK and Dianne Dredge, The Tourism Colab, Australia
Reworking Tourism explores how “economy” can be done differently in tourism and in the process, it reworks how tourism can deliver social and economic wellbeing in a changing world. Drawing from communities in both North and South, this volume provides case studies in which contributors explore the alternative economies of tourism, and in the process, rework how tourism can deliver social and economic wellbeing in a changing world. Topics discussed include diverse economies, indigenous values (indigeneity), and sustainable, inclusive tourism. It aims to explore alternative models to help unlock and reposition tourism as something more than profit, jobs, and growth.

Tourism and Degrowth
Towards a Truly Sustainable Tourism
Edited by Robert Fletcher, Wageningen University, The Netherlands, Ivan Murray Mas, University of the Balearic Islands, Spain; Asunción Blanco Romero, Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, Spain and Macía Blázquez-Salom, University of the Balearic Islands, Spain
This volume develops a conceptual framework and research agenda for exploring the relationship between tourism and degrowth. Degrowth discussion has yet to engage systematically with the tourism industry, while tourism research has neglected explicit discussion of degrowth. This volume brings the two discussions together to interrogate their complementarity. Identifying a growth imperative in the basic structure of the capitalist economy, contributors contend that mounting critique of overtourism can be understood as a structural response to the ravages of capitalist development more broadly, and explore the potential for degrowth to facilitate a truly sustainable tourism.

Analyzing Group Interactions
A Guidebook for Qualitative, Quantitative and Mixed Methods
Edited by Matthias Huber and Dominik E. Froehlich
This book provides a practical overview of different methods applicable to analyzing group interactions. The book will feature a variety of current methodological approaches, both qualitative and quantitative, which examine the dynamic and reciprocal nature of communication and behavior in social groups. All chapters utilize a common structure: introduction, discussion of the applicability and scope of the method, step by step explanation of how to analyze group interactions, presenting advantages and disadvantages of the method. This allows for better comparison across methodological approaches.

The book adopts a multidisciplinary approach, discussing the emergence of autobiographical memories and the development of abilities to encode events before considering different patterns of AM emergence and development as they relate to cultural, social, linguistic, and family contexts. It will also devote coverage to methodological problems when children’s memories, and present novel future strategies. It will be an essential read for all researchers of Autobiographical Memory.

Assessing Mental Capacity
A Handbook to Guide Professionals from Basic to Advanced Practice
Edited by Janice Mackenzie and Wilkinson Kate
Clinicians and caring professionals are increasingly required to carry out assessments of mental capacity in their everyday practice. Assessing Mental Capacity provides a practical guide for all those required to carry out such assessments, considering the basics of capacity assessments, before discussing a variety of complex issues professionals will need to be aware of. Drawing on expertise from neuropsychologists, solicitors, and social workers, the book provides hands-on coverage of UK mental capacity law, how to make difficult decisions, and how to draw conclusions from capacity assessments.

Brain Art and Contemporary Neuroscience
Neuro-sensuality and Affective Realism
Edited by David Gruber
This book examines artistic representations of the brain after the rise of the contemporary neurosciences. The influence of relatively new neuroscience methods (EEG, MRI and fMRI) on the visual arts has not yet been fully realised; this book examines the interplay and tackles some of the critical-cultural implications. Engaging with New Materialism and Affect Theory, it provides a current and concrete example of the ongoing shift away from constructivist lenses. Contributing to debates surrounding the value and/or purpose of interdisciplinary engagement happening in the neuro-humanities, David Gruber emphasizes the need for critical-cultural analysis within the field.

Logic and Uncertainty in the Human Mind
A Tribute to David E. Over

Edited by Shira Elqayam, De Montfort University, UK, Igor Douven, Université Paris-Sorbonne, France, Jonathan St B. T. Evans, University of Plymouth, UK and Nicole Cruz, Birkbeck University of London

David Earl Over is a leading cognitive scientist and, with his firm grounding in philosophical logic, he also exerts a powerful influence on the psychology of reasoning. He is responsible for not only a large body of empirical work and accompanying theory, but for advancing a major shift in thinking about reasoning, commonly known as the ‘new paradigm’ in the psychology of human reasoning. This book is therefore important reading for scholars, researchers, and advanced students in psychology, philosophy, and the cognitive sciences, including those who are not familiar with Over’s thought already.

Psychological Perspectives on Radicalization
Allard R. Feddes, University of Amsterdam, Bertjan Doosje, University of Amsterdam, Lars Nicholson, University of Amsterdam and Liesbeth Mann, University of Amsterdam
This innovative new book examines radicalisation from new psychological perspectives by examining the different typologies of radicalising individuals, what makes individuals resilient against radicalisation, and events that can trigger individuals to radicalise or to de-radicalise. It goes beyond previous publications on this topic in that it identifies concrete key events in the process of radicalisation, and offers clear guidelines for interventions aimed at prevention of radicalisation and to stimulate de-radicalisation. This is essential reading for policy makers, researchers, practitioners, and students interested in this topical area.

Terrapsychological Inquiry
Restoring Our Relationship with Nature, Place, and Planet
Craig Chalquist
Terrapsychological Inquiry is a qualitative research methodology for students, ecologically oriented academics, ecotherapists, vision quest instructors, and environmental activists seeking a form of inquiry that takes seriously our intense inner responses to the state of the natural world. Where traditional qualitative and theoretical research approaches concentrate solely on human life while ignoring where we live and come from, Terrapsychological Inquiry conducts research with Earth in mind.

The Wechsler Memory Scale
A Guide for Clinicians and Researchers
Phillip L. Kent
This book offers a comprehensive and critical review of all adult versions of the Wechsler Memory Scale, the most frequently used memory battery in the US, and much of the English-speaking world. It systematically traces the evolution of the test in terms of its structure and content, and discusses its many research uses. It also examines the strengths and weaknesses of the test, whilst providing a guide to clinical interpretation of the instrument. This book is designed to be a go-to source for all graduate students, clinicians and researchers who use the Wechsler Memory Scale, as well as to institutions offering formal training in adult clinical and neuropsychological assessment.

The Digitalisation of (Inter)Subjectivity
A Psi-critique of the Digital Death Drive
Jan De Vos, Ghent University, Belgium
The book engages with artificial intelligence and cybernetics and the work of Alan Turing, Norbert Wiener, Marvin Minsky, Gregory Bateson and Warren McCulloch to demonstrate how their use of neo-psy-theories persists in contemporary digital culture. The author aims to trace a trajectory from psychologisation to neurologisation, and finally, to digitalisation, to make us question the digital future of humankind in relation to the idea of subjectivity, and the threat of the ‘death-drive’ inherent to digitality itself. This volume is fascinating reading for students and researchers in the fields of critical psychology, neuroscience, education studies, philosophy and media studies.

Understanding ADHD
A Guide to Symptoms, Management and Treatment
Anna Maria Re and Agnese Capodieci
This essential guide provides accessible, concise, evidence-based guidelines on ADHD, offering a deeper scientific understanding of the condition and its consequences. Written for parents and health, education and social care professionals involved in the field, it offers insights and strategies for managing the condition in daily life and promoting the most effective self-regulation strategies for children and adolescents. It explains the basic theories on ADHD and covers key topics including parent-child relationships, helping children understand their condition, friendships with peers, comorbidities, classroom strategies, and how families and professionals can best work together.

The Psychology of Tolerance in Times of Uncertainty
Małgorzata Kossowska, Ewa Szumowska and Paulina Szwed
This book lays out the motivational basis for tolerance, the most important underlying factor that shapes people’s social attitudes, and determines our ability to get along with others. Demonstrating how the mechanism underlying closed-mindedness is rooted in uncertainty and fear, with the fundamental consequence of closed-mindedness being intolerance, the text shows how basic features of human psychology drive large-scale socio-political developments that determine the fate of peoples and nations. Written from a psychological perspective, this is an ideal resource for students and academics in psychology, and social and political science.
Why It's OK to Make Bad Choices

William Glod

Series: Why It's OK

Glod argues that it's OK to allow people to make bad choices. It's OK even if those choices risk causing a lot of harm. Most defenders of paternalism agree that some bad choices are not harmful enough to require laws to stop them. However, Glod argues that some people might want—and deserve—the freedom to make truly bad choices because such freedom is the only way they can act responsibly. He also argues that some “bad” choices may not even be bad, even if we can't know with confidence a person's true desires. Finally, it explores the potential pitfalls of paternalistic laws and policies—and how unintended consequences can sabotage the most well-intended plans.

Workplace Wellbeing

A Relational Approach

James Costello

Workplace Wellbeing – A Relational Approach presents the most important, insightful and up-to-date academic thinking and research related to flourishing at work. The text examines how we can create an emotionally healthy workplace for all of us. It will prove useful for counselors and psychotherapists, whether in training or practice in an organizational setting. More importantly however, it is designed to be of value to the non-specialist, particularly those working in business, education, healthcare, human resources, occupational health, and organizational psychology.

Applied Structural Equation Modeling using AMOS

Basic to Advanced Techniques

Joel E. Collier

An integral guide for postgraduates and researchers on how to forge a strong methodology while studying their respective phenomenon of interest. Cutting out any abstract definitions and highlighting current best practices heavily prevalent in psychology literature, Collier tackles advanced topics in an accessible and engaging manner. He provides step-by-step instructions on how to run analyses, highlights where the important results are in the output, and shows how to clearly present final results.

The Study of Odd Phenomena in Memory

Edited by Anne M. Cleary and Bennett L. Schwartz

Memory Quirks explores the variety of memory phenomena that confound and challenge standard theories of memory processing. While traditional memory research focused on encoding and retrieval, recognition and recall, and semantic memory and episodic memory, there are a myriad of memory phenomena that do not fit into these neat categories. Featuring contributions from leading international researchers, on topics including deja vu, tip-of-the-tongue states, and stolen memory, the book reviews the research and considers why these memory quirks are important to understanding human memory as a whole. It is essential reading for all students and researchers of human memory.

Online Peer Engagement in Adolescence

Positive and Negative Aspects of Online Social Interaction

Edited by Nejra Van Zaik and Claire P. Monks

Series: Studies in Adolescent Development

This book provides an in-depth insight into what is currently known and relatively unknown about youths’ online-exclusive, offline-exclusive, and conjoint social networks. It delivers state-of-the-art current reviews of the literature in the field, along with implications for future research directions and practical applications. With a focus on what spending time with online-exclusive peers entails, in terms of both potential positive as well as negative consequences for friendship quality, intimacy, and well-being, it offers a more nuanced commentary on youths’ online peer engagement. It is important reading for students and researchers in adolescent development and psychology.

Understanding Everyday Communicative Interactions

Introduction to Situated Discourse Analysis for Communication Sciences and Disorders

Julie A. Hengst, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, USA

This textbook fills a major gap in the field of Communication Sciences and Disorders by providing students an introduction to how to understand everyday communicative interactions, how to apply that understanding to communicative disorders, and how to use it to reimage clinical practice. Students will learn first to recognize ways communication is routinely distributed in interaction, then understand how interactions are disrupted by communicative disorders, and finally explore ways to apply rich traditions in other disciplines (sociolinguistics, anthropological discourse studies) to clinical practice.

Subjectivity in Psychology in the Era of Social Justice

Bethany Morris, Chase Kelly O’Gwin, Sebastienne Grant and Sakenya McDonald

Series: Advances in Theoretical and Philosophical Psychology

Offering a selection of provocative, illuminating and critical approaches to psychology in the age of social justice, the authors draw upon various theoretical perspectives (psychoanalysis, Marxism, postmodernism) with roots in Continental thought to address this common area of concern. This book will explore ways in which psychology has been both implicit and explicit in the oppression of marginalized people, and broadens the conversation to consider the increasing impetus to be socially just. This book will be an important resource for scholars and students of philosophical and theoretical psychology, critical psychology, social psychology, psychoanalysis, social work, and education.

Multilevel Trust in Organizations

Theoretical, Analytical, and Empirical Advances

Edited by Ashley Fulmer and Kurt Dirks

Trust—whether it is between individuals, within teams, or between organizations—is embedded in a multilevel system where the environment and member interactions jointly affect trust at any level. Yet research on trust at different levels of analysis has largely developed independently with little cross-fertilization. This book brings together six chapters that take levels effects explicitly into account to extend our current knowledge about the dynamics of trust. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Trust Research.

Moral Injury and Beyond

Understanding Human Anguish and Healing Traumatic Wounds

Edited by Renos K. Papadopoulos, University of Essex, UK, Consultant Clinical Psychologist, Tavistock Clinic, UK

This book brings together ten contributors from the fields of psychiatry, psychology, philosophy, theology, military chaplaincy and acute crisis care to address the phenomenon of moral injury from their own disciplinary perspectives. Focusing on combat veterans but with implications for any population that has survived violent forms of adversity, the authors approach the distress and loss that often follows these experiences. The chapters also address the question of how survivors can regain their hope and faith, and how they can, in time, explore ways that will lead them to grow through their suffering.

Parental Alienation and Factitious Disorder by Proxy Beyond DSM-5

Interrelated Multidimensional Diagnoses

Michael Butz

Using Munchausen’s syndrome by proxy/factitious disorder by proxy and parental alienation as blueprints, this book advances a new diagnostic category for addressing complex pathological phenomena that integrates individual characteristics and symptoms, family and other system dynamics under one diagnosis. The author examines why current diagnostic categories within the DSM-5 are inadequate and provides a framework for this new category—Interrelated Multidimensional Diagnosis—to better capture the complexity of MDPF/FP and PA. The book proposes step-wise processes to determine if the phenomena exist along with several interventions and treatment recommendations.

Changing Minds with Clinical Hypnosis

Laurence Sugarman, Julie Hope Linden and Lee Warner Brooks

A scientifically current, integrative guide for understanding clinical hypnosis, this book combines creative writing with clinical discourse to create a framework for embracing systemic emotional and relational elements that lie beyond diagnosis, medication, surgery and psychotherapy. Blending four original short stories and a treatise, the authors establish an empirically-grounded conceptualization of the mind, then demonstrate how practical applications of therapeutic hypnosis can help readers use individual and family resources in health and healing. Researchers and clinicians will gain a sound understanding of how clinical hypnosis can be used in holistic health care.

Examining Social Identities and Diversity Issues in Group Therapy

Knocking at the Boundaries

Edited by Michele D. Ribeiro, Oregon State University, USA

A unique blend of theory and practice within the world of group psychotherapy, this text discusses diversity issues in group contexts within the realm of teaching, consulting, and facilitating psychotherapy groups. Chapters present a unique perspective on diversity issues within certain populations, such as prisoners, elite athletes, and high-risk youth and examine questions around race, language, ability, gender, and the similarities and differences between the leader and their clients. These examples help readers observe the psychological dynamics that arise within these populations and the skill of group therapists in honoring their clients’ humanity.

Existential Group Counselling and Psychotherapy

Karen Weixel-Dixon, Re-Solution Partnership

Existential Group Counselling and Psychotherapy provides a theoretical and practical foundation for practice. It serves as a guide that provides a solid grounding in the ‘why’ and ‘how’ of therapeutic group-work from an existential perspective. Written in a practical, accessible style, and incorporating clinical vignettes and anecdotal material, the book will be relevant for counsellors and psychotherapists in training and practice, as well as for special interest organisations that sponsor groups.

Military Stress Reactions
Rethinking Trauma and PTSD

Carrie H. Kennedy, University of Virginia, Charlottesville

Many people—including some mental health professionals and service members themselves—have the misconception that military deployment is highly likely to cause posttraumatic stress disorder (PTSD). This book gives practitioners a more nuanced understanding of military stress reactions and related mental health concerns, from transient adjustment problems to clinical disorders. Drawing on expert knowledge of military environments and culture, Carrie H. Kennedy provides vital guidance for evidence-based assessment, intervention, and prevention.

Recovering Boarding School Trauma Narratives

Christopher Robin Milne as a Psychological Companion on the Journey to Healing

Christine Jack

Unique and powerfully written, Jack takes the reader on a journey into her childhood in Australian boarding school conventions in the 1950s and 60s. Comparing her experience to Christopher Robin Milne’s, she interrogates his memoir illustrating that boarding school trauma knows no boundaries of time and place. Engaging the lenses of history, life-span and Jungian psychology, feminist and trauma theory and boarding school trauma research, this book positions narrative writing as a way of reducing the power of trauma over the lives of survivors.

The Handbook of Existential Coaching Practice

Monica Hanaway

Hanaway presents a complete introduction to existential coaching, focusing on how coaches can incorporate key skills in all aspects of their practice. The book explores what is meant by existential coaching and places it in the context of contemporary coaching culture. It introduces key existential concepts relating to authenticity, relatedness, freedom, responsibility, values and beliefs, and encourages the reader to explore how these are relevant to the coaching process. The book includes case studies, questioning and reflective exercises to encourage development of good practice and build the skills necessary all the way through a coaching relationship, from

Beyond the Therapeutic State

Edited by Del Loewenthal, University of Roehampton, UK, Ottar Ness and Billy Hardy

The therapeutic state is a pervasive set of practices and ideologies which have been ever present in the twentieth century. This book of international contributors is about bringing into question many of these reified, dogmatic ideologies. This book invites readers to think beyond the state and its therapeutics. It will be relevant to many professions, professionals, service users, families, survivors and organisations; and those who are looking for something different. This book was originally published as a special issue of the European Journal of Psychotherapy & Counselling

Trauma and Expressive Arts Therapy

Brain, Body, and Imagination in the Healing Process

Cathy A. Malchiodi, Trauma-Informed Practices and Expressive Arts Therapy Institute, Louisville, KY

From pioneering therapist Cathy A. Malchiodi, this book synthesizes the breadth of research on trauma and the brain and presents an innovative framework for treating trauma through the expressive arts. The volume describes powerful ways to tap into deeply felt bodily and sensory experiences as a foundation for safely exploring emotions, memories, and personal narratives. Rich clinical examples illustrate the use of movement, sound, play, art, and drama with children and adults. Malchiodi’s approach not only enables survivors to express experiences that defy verbalization, but also helps them to transform and integrate the trauma, regain a sense of aliveness, and imagine a new future.

Handbook of Perinatal Clinical Psychology
From Theory to Practice
Edited by Rosa Maria Quatraro and Pietro Grussu
The book examines the major issues in perinatal clinical psychology with the presence of theoretical information and operational indications, through a biopsychosocial approach. As such it is an excellent resource for researchers, policy makers, practitioners, in fact, anyone and everyone who wishes to understand and rediscover - in a single opera - the current scientific and application scenario related to psychological health in pregnancy and after childbirth.

Mentalization in the Family
A Guide for Professionals and Parents
Janne Øestergaard Hagelquist and Heino Rasmussen
Mentalization in the Family draws upon the latest research on child development, parenting and mentalization theory to provide a comprehensive guidebook for parents, teachers, social workers and any professional working with families today. Accessibly written throughout and featuring pedagogical tools that bring the theory into life, this wide-ranging book will be essential reading for a range of professionals, from those working with foster families to teachers working with troubled or disruptive children. It also offers a way for parents to better understand themselves, their own parenting style, and the dynamics which make up family life.

Transforming Sexual Narratives
A Relational Approach to Sex Therapy
Suzanne Iasenza
Transforming Sexual Narratives offers readers the opportunity to address complex sexual problems through Narrative Relational Sex Therapy (NRST). This essential guide will help therapists to identify their client's secret sexual stories and enable them to rewrite their inner narratives and relationship with sexuality for the better. Sex therapists will be able to integrate a relational perspective into behavioral treatment, individual and couple therapists will be able to weave sexuality into general psychotherapy, and psychoanalysts will be able to use the sexual history to identify early dynamics that affect adult intimacy.
Debating Relational Psychoanalysis
Jon Mills and his Critics

Jon Mills, Adler Graduate Professional School, Canada
In Debating Relational Psychoanalysis, Jon Mills provides an historical record of the debates that had taken place for nearly two decades on his critique of the relational school, including responses from his critics.

Debating Relational Psychoanalysis will be of interest to psychoanalysts of all orientations, psychotherapists, mental health workers, psychoanalytic historians, philosophical psychologists, and the broad disciplines of humanistic, phenomenological, existential, and analytical psychology.

Illusion, Disillusion, and Irony in Psychoanalysis
John Steiner

Illusion, Disillusion, and Irony in Psychoanalysis explores and develops the role of illusion and daydream in everyday life, and in psychoanalysis. Using both clinical examples and literary works, idealised illusions and the inevitable disillusion that is met when reality makes an impact, are carefully explored.

Illusion, Disillusion, and Irony in Psychoanalysis will be of great use to the psychoanalyst or psychotherapist seeking to understand the patient’s withdrawal into a phantasy world, and the struggle to allow the impact of reality.

Lacanian Psychoanalysis
A Clinical Casebook
Danièle BrillAUD and John Holland

This book is intended as an introduction to Lacanian theory and practice. Concrete examples show the interdependence of clinical work and conceptual formalization in Lacan’s reading of Freud. A spectrum of disorders and clinical issues is presented, including delusional misidentification syndromes, paranoid psychosis and schizophrenia, hypochondria, Cotard delusion, fetishism, the differential diagnosis of neurosis and psychosis, and more. Brillaud highlights the roots of Lacan’s thought in classical French psychiatry and brings out the clinical relevance of his references to linguistics, literature, and topology.

Trauma and the Discourse of Climate Change

Lee Zimmerman

Zimmerman presents an interdisciplinary study of climate change and how the dominant discourses associated with it contribute to a form of cultural denial. The book explores how the climate change discourse can be illuminated by framing it in terms of the trope of trauma, and considers how literary responses to the climate crisis participate in this. Zimmerman uses several texts to assess how literature has attempted to grapple with the representational difficulties of articulating and containing the traumatic challenge at the crisis’s heart, and the book closes with a meditation centered on the dream of the burning child discussed in Freud’s The Interpretation of Dreams.

Psychoanalytic Diagnosis

Understanding Personality Structure in the Clinical Process

Nancy McWilliams, Graduate School of Applied and Professional Psychology, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, Piscataway

This acclaimed clinical guide and widely adopted text has filled a key need in the field since its original publication. Nancy McWilliams makes psychoanalytic personality theory and its implications for practice accessible to practitioners of all levels of experience. She explains major character types and demonstrates specific ways that understanding the patient’s individual personality structure can influence the therapist’s focus and style of intervention. Guidelines are provided for developing a systematic yet flexible diagnostic formulation and using it to inform treatment. Highly readable, the book features a wealth of illustrative clinical examples.

A Depth Psychology Model of Immigration and Adaptation
The Migrant’s Journey
Phyllis Marie Jensen, Jungian analyst in private practice, Vancouver, Canada
Jensen brings empirical findings from sociology, history and cultural studies into a depth psychology model of migration for research and clinical practice, using the archetype of Campbell’s hero’s journey as the theoretical framework. The Migrant’s Journey has three phases: 1) pre-migration decision-making; 2) the journey; and 3) post-migration adaptation that includes 4) post-migration identity; 5) generational differences; and 6) the host-country response. This six-factor depth psychology model of migration is illustrated with clinical, biographical and historical examples.

Cultural Complexes and the Soul of America
Myth, Psyche, and Politics
Edited by Thomas Singer
Cultural Complexes and the Soul of America explores many of the cultural complexities that comprise the collective psyche-filtering system of emotions, ideas, and beliefs that possess the United States today. With chapters by an international selection of leading authors, the book covers ideas both broad and specific, and presents unique insight into the current state of the nation.

Dialectics & Analytical Psychology
The El Capitan Canyon Seminar
Wolfgang Giegerich, David L Miller and Greg Mogenson
This unique book presents work by three leading Jungian thinkers and provides the most accessible introduction available to Wolfgang Giegerich’s approach to psychology. Emerging from the El Capitan Canyon seminar, the book tackles important questions of dialectical thinking, ‘moments of truth’ in psychology, and historicity as it applies to the interpretation of archetypal and mythological materials. Giegerich, Mogenson and Miller not only address key questions about dialectical approaches but also think Jungian psychology forward in a radically new way.

From Career to Calling
A Depth Psychology Guide to Soul-Making Work in Darkening Times
Suzanne Cremen
As people find themselves disenchanted or disenfranchised from capitalist notions of work and career, this book draws on insights from the field of Jungian and archetypal psychology to re-imagine our attitudes and approaches to work, money, vocational guidance and career development. It will help practitioners to support individuals in developing a sense of their own soul’s calling and offer guidance on creating an authentic vocational life within the constraints of modern life. Combining scholarly analysis with compelling real-life stories and reflective activities, this book reveals how a meaningful career can emerge from attending to the archetypal basis of experience.

Life and Work of Erich Neumann
On the Side of the Inner Voice
Angelica Löwe
This book is the first published in English to shed light on Erich Neumann’s life, work and relationship with C. G. Jung. Spanning the years 1905 to 1960, it traces the development of Neumann’s thought and shows how it was inspired by his intensive study of the spiritual movement of Judaism. It explores the existential questions motivating Neumann’s work, considers socio-historical issues pertaining to the problem of Jewish identity formation and gives special attention to the correspondence between Jung and Neumann, and Neumann’s unpublished works. The book also features a preface by Erich’s son, Micha Neumann.

Neurosis
The Logic of a Metaphysical Illness
Wolfgang Giegerich
Giegerich returns to the roots of psychoanalysis, as a treatment for neurosis, and revisits the concept of ‘soul’ in the history of psychology. Taking into account the legacy of religion and metaphysics, the book covers the historicity of neurosis, its soulful purpose as a general cultural phenomenon and its internal logic, functioning, and enabling conditions. Giegerich also uses fairy tales as models, explores the theology of neurosis, and reassesses “the neurotic” as the figure of modernity’s exemplary man. A collection of vignettes descriptive of various kinds of neurotic presentation routinely met with in the consulting room is also included in an appendix.
Romantic Metasubjectivity Through Schelling and Jung
Rethinking the Romantic Subject

Gord Barentsen
Series: Philosophy and Psychoanalysis

Romantic Metasubjectivity Through Schelling and Jung: Rethinking the Romantic Subject explores the remarkable intellectual isomorphism between the philosophy of Friedrich Schelling and Carl Jung’s analytical psychology in order to offer a crucial and original corrective to the “reflection theory” of subjectivity. Romantic Metasubjectivity is a highly original work of scholarship and will appeal to students and scholars in German Idealism, Romanticism, philosophy, psychoanalysis, theory, Jung studies, and those with an interest in contemporary theories of the subject.

The Sleuth and the Goddess
Hestia, Artemis, Athena and Aphrodite in Women’s Detective Fiction

Susan Rowland

Rowland presents a detailed exploration of how the archetypes of ancient goddesses Hestia, Artemis, Athena and Aphrodite breathe into and shape female-authored detective fiction. Representing aspects of characterisation not bound by gender, the book examines how these archetypes emerge in themes like the home and hearth, hunting, survival and desire. Rowland assesses numerous examples from a range of works, providing a clear illustration of each archetype and illuminating aspects of femininity, psyche and being. This uniquely interdisciplinary work of literary analysis sheds light on the popularity and underlying mystique of the genre.

What is Soul?
Wolfgang Giegerich

In this volume, Wolfgang Giegerich once again takes up the Jungian commitment to a psychology with soul. Agreeing with Jung that the soul concept is indispensable for a truly psychological psychology, he supplements and re-orients the Jungian approach to both this concept and the phenomenology of the soul by means of a whole series of nuanced discussions that are as rigorous as they are thoroughgoing. The result is nothing short of a tour de force.

Adolescent-Focused Therapy for Anorexia Nervosa
A Developmental Approach
James Lock, Stanford University School of Medicine, CA
From pioneering family-based treatment developer James Lock, this is the first comprehensive guide to adolescent-focused therapy (AFT) for anorexia nervosa (AN), an evidence-based individual approach. AFT is an effective alternative to family-based treatment that may be a better fit for some patients. Lock explains how AN serves as a maladaptive response to developmental challenges of adolescence. He presents a manualized framework for helping adolescents find more adaptive coping strategies, manage difficult emotions, and develop greater autonomy and a stronger sense of self, while reducing risky behaviors and restoring weight.

Creative Play Therapy with Adolescents and Adults
Moving from Helping to Healing

Denis' A. Thomas, Lipscomb University, Tennessee, USA
and Melanie H. Morris, Lipscomb University, Tennessee, USA

This user-friendly manual shows mental health professionals how to implement play therapy with adolescents and adults and how to conceptualize client struggles using a wealth of creative approaches. Creative Play Therapy for Adolescents and Adults follows a seven-stage process for professionals to address clients’ core needs and establish an empathic therapeutic relationship. The book charts the stages of play therapy and explores a range of expressive arts including art, drama, dance, writing, and sand play. This book will be of interest to a wide range of mental health professionals as it encourages a more creative career and lasting, tangible progress in clients.

Teaching Statistics and Quantitative Methods

Edited by Joseph Lee Rodgers, Vanderbilt University, USA
Series: Multivariate Applications Series

This volume has two principal aims. Firstly, it provides innovative, practical and clear guidance for students who are training to teach statistics and quantitative methods to undergraduates or who are already teaching and want to improve their knowledge and skills. Secondly, it inspires students and instructors to think critically about their teaching of statistics and quantitative methods, and to be more aware of, and receptive to, the developments in their field and to be willing to incorporate these developments into their teaching. It will appeal to instructors and graduate students in all behavioral and social science disciplines that require the teaching of statistics.
Introducing Research and Evidence-Based Practice for Nursing and Healthcare Professionals

Jeremy Jolley

At the heart of this new edition is the view that research is essentially a simple activity, the principles of which can be readily understood by students new to the subject. Each chapter guides the reader to uncover the 'mysteries' of research while demonstrating how research in healthcare is a practical activity, orientated directly to patient care. This book is designed for all students of nursing and allied health professions at any level but who find themselves studying research for the first time.

Midwifery
The Basics

Helen Baston, University of Sheffield, UK
Series: The Basics

Midwifery: The Basics provides an engaging and authentic insight into the midwife’s world. It explores the role of the midwife as a clinician and professional, showing how midwives can support women both to achieve a healthy full-term pregnancy and a smooth transition to motherhood. This book begins with a discussion of the context of birth and parenthood, placing midwifery in its broader social context. This book uses the voices of mothers, fathers and midwives to illustrate the complex world of becoming, being and supporting parents.

Phytochemistry of Plants from Genus Phyllanthus
Brijesh Kumar, Mass Lab, Sophisticated Analytical Instrument Facility (SAIF), Central Drug Research, KP Madhusudanan and Sunil Kumar
Series: Phytochemical Investigations of Medicinal Plants
Several Phyllanthus species are widely used in traditional medicine and herbal formulation for the treatment of variety of ailments such as flux, dysuria, diabetes, jaundice and bladder calculus. The medicinal properties of these species are due to the presence of lignans, flavonoids, tannins, alkaloids, and terpenoids. Phyllanthin and hypophyllanthin are the major lignans from Phyllanthus species having estrogenic properties that reduces toxicity, vascular tension, and protect hepatocytes. This book deals with the importance of separation techniques in screening of major lignans, flavonoids and terpenoids in Phyllanthus species using HPLC/UPLC coupled with mass spectrometric techniques.

State of the Young Child in India
Mobile Creches
This Report is one of the first comprehensive studies on young children in India. It provides an account of the current situation of the young child in terms of physical and cognitive development, access to care, etc. It introduces two young child indices aggregating selected indicators to separately track child outcomes and child circumstances. Additionally, it explores the policy and legal framework, and gives key recommendations and action points. This Report will be of interest to practitioners, policy makers and influencers, think tanks and researchers of public policy, development studies, human rights, sociology and social anthropology, as well as general readers.

The Ethics and Politics of Community Engagement in Global Health Research

Edited by Lindsey Reynolds and Salla Sariola

Drawing on a growing consensus about the importance of community representation and participation for ethical research, community engagement has become a central component of scientific research, policy-making, ethical review, and technology design. Rather than taking community engagement as a given, the contributions in this edited volume highlight how processes of community engagement are shaped by particular local histories and social and political dynamics, and by the complex social relations between different actors involved in global public health research.

This book was originally published as a special issue of the Critical Public Health journal.
Child Development
A Practitioner’s Guide

Douglas Davies, (deceased) and Michael F Troy, Neuroscience Institute, Children’s Hospitals and Clinics
of Minnesota, St. Paul

Series: Clinical Practice with Children, Adolescents, and Families

Now in a revised and updated fourth edition, this trusted text and professional resource provides a developmental framework for clinical practice. The authors examine how children’s trajectories are shaped by transactions among family relationships, brain development, and the social environment. Risk and resilience factors in each of these domains are laid out. Covering infancy, toddlerhood, the preschool years, and middle childhood, the text explores how children of different ages typically behave, think, and relate to others.

Developmentally informed approaches to assessment and intervention are illustrated by vivid case examples.

Inclusive Child Development Accounts
Toward Universality and Progressivity

Edited by Jin Huang, St. Louis University, USA, Li Zhou, Washington University in St. Louis, USA and Michael Sherraden, Washington University in St. Louis, USA

This book showcases the global context of emerging asset-building policies and programmes around Child Development Accounts. In the first part of the volume, scholars highlight the core feature of “inclusiveness” of CDAs in Singapore, Israel, and the United States. In the second part, scholars report on CDA policies and projects in Taiwan, Uganda, Korea, and mainland China. It shows how asset building can be effective in diverse cultural and social contexts, and that all these contexts emphasize the investing in children early in life and empowering of them to achieve their potential as productive citizens.

Acute Coronary Syndromes
Edited by K. Sarat Chandra and AJ Swamy
Acute Coronary Syndromes (ACS) are a growing global menace with patients increasing in developing countries where tobacco and food play a major role. Its treatment guidelines and research results have proliferated in the academia but practical world application lags. This book addresses this present void. Guidelines for treatment of ACS are in-depth at times for practicing cardiologists to read, thus preventing its clinical application. The book aims to appraise the readers with real world situations and suggestions to help them acquire up-to-date knowledge on ACS and diagnose, prognosticate and manage it effectively.

Thyroid Surgery
Principles and Practice
Edited by Madan Laxman Kapre

This book will bridge a gap between the huge platform of literature available about thyroid surgery and the practical working reality. The pearls in techniques and surgical procedures will be exhaustively detailed with authors’ individual experience enriched with quality photographs. This book covers management of large/massive multinodular goiters which are the hallmark of Indian thyroids. However, the emphasis will be more on applying this knowledge to a given patient and would largely revolve around this theme. It aims to provide a take-home message in controversial areas and is a ready reference to all interested in learning the science and craftsmanship of thyroid surgery.

Analyzing High-Dimensional Gene Expression and DNA Methylation Data with R
Hongmei Zhang, University of Memphis, Tennessee, USA
Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Computational Biology Series
This will be the first book to systematically describe the process and provide corresponding methods for analysing data generated from genetic- and epigenetic-studies. The overall subject is on large data analysis. Specifically, the book aims to provide a "pipe line" for genetic and epigenetic data analysis starting from raw genome- and epigenome-scale data. It includes methods to pre-process genetic and epigenetic data in the genome-scale, methods for data mining to identify potentially informative factors, and methods for subsequent analyses after data mining, e.g., factor/variable selections, network construction, and testing for differential networks.

Colour Atlas of Woody Plants and Trees
Bryan G. Bowen, Senior Lecturer, Division of Environmental and Evolutionary Biology
Trees and plants are important components of the human environment having important presence beyond agricultural and recreational values. Colour Atlas of Woody Plants and Trees presents a photographic compilation of morphological features of trees and shrubs giving attention to their unique aspects not presented in existing books. By increasing awareness to users through high quality, full-color photographs and informative text, this book demonstrates the enormous diversity of vascular trees and plants living today.

Dragonflies at a Biogeographical Crossroads
The Odonata of Oklahoma and Complexities Beyond Its Borders
Edited by Brenda D. Smith, Michael A. Patten, Roy J. Beckemeyer and Bruce W. Hoagland
This lavishly illustrated book examines the distribution, ecology, conservation status, and biogeography of 176 species of dragonflies in the southern plains of the US, where 12 ecoregions converge. The topics discussed, such as phenotypic variation and ecology, are applicable across the US and much of North America. Maps indicate level of documentation and allow visualization of the biogeographical associations of a given species. This book will be sought out by dragonfly researchers and enthusiasts, entomologists, amateur naturalists, paleontologists, conservation biologists, educators, and regional historians. It will also be readily accessible to the lay public.

International Code of Phylogenetic Nomenclature (PhyloCode)

Kevin de Queiroz, Division of Amphibians & Reptiles, National Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC, USA and Philip D. Cantino, Department of Environmental and Plant Biology, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio, USA

PhyloCode is a set of principles, rules, and recommendations governing phylogenetic nomenclature, a system for naming taxa by explicit reference to phylogeny. In contrast, systems, as embodied in the current botanical, zoological, and bacteriological codes, define taxa by reference to taxonomic ranks (e.g., family, genus) and types. This edition will govern the names of clades, while species names will still be governed by traditional codes. PhyloCode is designed so that it can be used concurrently with the rank-based codes. It is not meant to replace existing systems but to provide an alternative system for governing the application of both existing and newly proposed names.

Phylonyms

A Companion to the PhyloCode

Edited by Kevin de Queiroz, Division of Amphibians & Reptiles, National Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, DC, USA, Philip D. Cantino, Department of Environmental and Plant Biology, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio, USA and Jacques A. Gauthier, Yale University, Connecticut, USA

Phylonyms is an implementation of PhyloCode, which is a set of principles, rules, and recommendations governing phylogenetic nomenclature. Nearly 300 clades - lineages of organisms - will be defined by reference to hypotheses of phylogenetic history rather than by taxonomic ranks and types. This volume will document the Real World uses of PhyloCode and will govern and apply to the names of clades, while species names will still be governed by traditional codes.

The Complex Lives of British Freshwater Fishes

Mark Everard, University of the West of England, UK and Jack Perks

This stunningly illustrated book explores the fascinating life histories of Britain’s freshwater fishes, a group of animals which, despite their importance and ubiquity in our diverse waters, has before now been rarely regarded and respected as ‘wildlife’. It shows how freshwater fish provide food, ornamentation, sport and cultural identity, and highlights their huge importance for conservation. Featuring over 100 full-colour photographs by renowned photographer Jack Perks, this will appeal to conservationists, marine biology students, the conservation-minded public, the angling community, and our nation of wildlife enthusiasts.

Urban Deer Havens

Clark E. Adams, Texas A&M University, College Station, USA and Cassandra LaFleur, City of Dallas Water Utilities Department, Rockwall, TX

Urban sprawl into the geographic range of cervid (deer) species has resulted in the need for management intervention. Cervids have a profound impact on culture and the economy of rural areas and are a significant factor in the ecology of the urban landscape. This book examines cervid species that are known to inhabit urban communities across the United States. It reviews various aspects of urban cervid management including national distributions and estimated populations within states, their ecological role as a keystone species, management activities that promote or preclude their urban existence; available funding and public education options; and conflict resolution.

The Call of the Crawfish Frog

Michael Lannoo and Rochelle M. Stiles

Crawfish Frogs have been called the most secretive frog in North America – an unusual moniker for a widespread anuran – inhabiting a third of the most scientifically advanced country in the world. The book tells the story of the biology of Crawfish Frogs, but also a story of the challenges faced during field work on an especially secretive and difficult to find our organism. And while the story of these burrow-dwelling frogs is extraordinary, the stories of the future scholars learning their craft in physically and emotionally demanding circumstances makes the story all the more exceptional.

A Q&A Approach to Organic Chemistry
Michael B. Smith, University of Connecticut, Storrs, USA
A Q&A Approach to Organic Chemistry begins with atomic orbitals and bonding. All critical topics are covered, including bonding, nomenclature, stereochemistry, conformations, acids and bases, oxidations, reductions, substitution, elimination, acyl addition, acyl substitution, enolate anion reactions, the Diels-Alder reaction and sigmatropic rearrangements, aromatic chemistry, spectroscopy, amino acids and proteins, carbohydrates and nucleosides. All major reactions are covered. This edition has been completely revised and updated by the author, and each chapter includes end-of-chapter homework questions with the answer keys in an Appendix at the end of the book.

INTRODUCTION TO BIOINFORMATICS WITH R
Edward Curry, Imperial College, London
This book has been developed over years of training biological scientists and clinicians to analyse the large datasets available in their cancer research projects. Through the entire book, theoretical explanations are presented alongside step-by-step instructions for carrying out a number of widely-applicable data analysis tasks using freely available software. This book guides the reader through the basic principles of exploratory analysis and hypothesis testing in high-dimensional datasets, and the practicalities of installing statistical computing software and using this to handle different types of data tables.

STEM CELLS: BIOLOGY AND APPLICATION
Mary Clarke and Jonathan Frampton
Stem cell science, encompassing basic biology to practical application, is both vast and diverse. Stem Cells: Biology and Application presents the basic concepts underlying the fast-moving science of stem cell biology. This textbook is written for an advanced stem cell biology course. The target audience includes senior undergraduates, first year graduate students, and practitioners in molecular biology, biology, and biomedical engineering. Stem Cells provides a comprehensive understanding of these unique cells, highlighting key areas of research, associated controversies, case studies, technologies, and pioneers in the field.

AGRIBUSINESS AS THE FUTURE OF AGRICULTURE
The Sugarcane Industry under Climate Change in the Southeast Mediterranean
Youssef M. Hamada
This book, Agribusiness as the Future of Agriculture: The Sugarcane Industry under Climate Change in the Southeast Mediterranean, reviews the challenges of agribusiness in the Southeast Mediterranean Sea. As climate change creates new risks to human populations and food security, a better analysis is needed to understand this new level of uncertainty and to understand how it will impact agriculture and its relationship with economies, livelihoods, and development.

Biology and Evolution of the Mollusca

Winston Frank Ponder, David R. Lindberg, University of California, USA and Juliet Mary Ponder

The phylum Mollusca is the second largest group of animals and occur in virtually all habitats. Many non-marine molluscs are threatened with more recorded extinctions than all tetrapod vertebrates combined. This two-volume set will provide the first general account of molluscs in decades and will include hundreds of colour figures. General chapters bring together a diverse and extensive literature, while taxon chapters provide overviews of their evolution, phylogeny and classification as well as more specific and detailed coverage of their biology (reproduction, feeding and digestion, excretion, respiration etc.), their long fossil record, and their natural history.

Diseases of Field Crops Diagnosis and Management, 2-Volume Set

Volume 1: Cereals, Small Millets, and Fiber Crops Volume 2: Pulses, Oil Seeds, Narcotics, and Sugar Crops

Edited by J. N. Srivastava and A. K. Singh, PhD

The volumes in this set showcase recent advances in molecular plant pathology and discuss appropriate diagnostic techniques for identification of causal agents and diseases, providing the information necessary to establish management strategies. The chapters in these two volumes include detailed description of symptoms, causal organisms, disease cycles, epidemiology, and management techniques of economically important diseases. The volumes explore existing strategies and offer new methods that can be used in an integrated manner and with a comprehensive approach for the management of major diseases of the field crops.

Dopamine

Endocrine and Oncogenic Functions

Nira Ben-Jonathan, University of Cincinnati

Dopamine is a small molecule traditionally regarded as a brain-derived neuronal modulator implicated in many neurological and psychiatric disorders. Outside the brain, dopamine fulfils all the criteria of a circulating hormone which affects normal and abnormal functions of multiple organs and regulatory systems and is also involved in many aspects of cancer formation and progression. The book provides a systematic account of dopamine as an endocrine and autocrine/paracrine hormone and fills a much needed gap in the overall understanding of the production, distribution and actions of this very important molecule.

Experimental Ecophysiology and Biochemistry of Trees and Shrubs

Humberto González Rodríguez, Ratikanta Maiti and Ch. Aruna Kumari

The existence and competition of trees and shrubs to sustain and put forth growth under varied environmental conditions is dependent on the interactions that occur between the plant metabolic processes and the prevailing environmental conditions. In order to understand the productivity of trees and shrubs, it is a prerequisite to know the experimental techniques of these vital processes. This volume, Experimental Ecophysiology and Biochemistry of Trees and Shrubs, provides a comprehensive presentation of this topic.

Forest Conservation and Sustainability in Indonesia
A Political Economy Study of International Governance Failure

Bernice Maxton-Lee
Series: The Earthscan Forest Library

Despite carefully-constructed conservation interventions, deforestation in Indonesia is not being stopped. This book identifies why large-scale international forest conservation has failed to reduce deforestation in Indonesia and considers why key stakeholders have not responded as expected to these conservation interventions. The book will be a useful reference for students of environmental science and policy, political theory, international relations, development and economics. It will also be of interest to forestry professions and practitioners working for NGOs.

Improving Abiotic Stress Tolerance in Plants

Edited by M. Iqbal R. Khan, Department of Botany, Jamia Hamdard, Amarjeet Singh, National Institute of Plant Genome Research, Aruna Asaf Ali Marg, Near JNU Campus and Péter Poór, Department of Plant Biology, University of Szeged, Hungary

Abiotic stresses including drought, temperature, flooding, and salinity result in hampered plant growth and development resulting in a reduction of crop productivity. When the plants are exposed to these stresses, gene expression is altered, resulting in increased or decreased levels of metabolites and proteins. To combat these stresses, plants exhibit several mechanisms to withstand adverse stress through expression of genes. This book focuses on plant responses under abiotic stress conditions and provides treatments available to enhance plant tolerance to these conditions. It presents strategies towards crop improvement using breeding, genomic, molecular, and physiological approaches.

Industrial Tree Plantations and the Land Rush in China
Implications for Global Land Grabbing

Yunan Xu, International Institute of Social Studies, The Netherlands
Series: Routledge Studies in Global Land and Resource Grabbing

This book analyses the political and economic causes, mechanisms and impacts of the industrial tree plantation boom in China. Based on extensive primary data, this book concentrates on the political economy of the sector’s expansion with a focus on the recent and dramatic agrarian transformation involving the land-labour nexus, the impact on villagers’ livelihoods, the role of the state, and political reactions from below. The book questions the stereotypical portrayal of local communities as the excluded villagers.

This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of land grabbing, rural development and agrarian transformations, as well as Chinese development.

Handbook of Tumor Syndromes

Edited by Dongyou Liu, Royal College of Pathologists of Australasia, St Leonards, New South Wales, Australia

Tumors/cancers are uncontrolled growths of abnormal cells extending beyond their usual boundaries disrupting normal functions of affected organs. A large proportion of tumors/cancers develop in people who have inherited known genetic mutations. This book will be a comprehensive and authoritative reference of human tumor/cancer syndromes. Each chapter will review the biology, epidemiology, pathogenesis, clinical features, diagnosis, treatment and prognosis of a particular tumor/cancer syndrome. Oncologists, clinicians and specialists, will contribute to this reference for scholars and students of medicine, dentistry, pharmacology, nursing, public health and other biomedical disciplines.

Ion and Molecule Transport in Lysosomes

Edited by Bruno Gasnier, Paris Descartes University, France and Michael X. Zhu, University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston Houston, Texas, USA
Series: Methods in Signal Transduction Series

Lysosomes are key subcellular organelles that regulate the cell function. Many of the essential activities of the cell are dependent on lysosomes. Dysfunction is linked to multiple diseases - storage disorders, neurodegeneration, immunological diseases and cancer. This book discusses concepts and methods used to study lysosome ion and small molecule transport. The contents will not only attract accomplished investigators in need of a broad review and synthesis of this important subject but will also appeal to young investigators and trainees needing to acquire comprehensive knowledge and technical skills working with lysosomal ion channels and small molecule transporters.

Microbe-Assisted Phytoremediation of Environmental Pollutants

Recent Advances and Challenges

Vineet Kumar and Gaurav Saxena

Phytoremediation is one of the safest, most innovative, and effective technique for the remediation of heavy metals and organic pollutants from contaminated sites. However, low metals phytoavailability and toxicity to remediating plants are the major cause of concern in the phytoremediation. This book provides comprehensive information on practical, and purposeful utilization of plant-associated bacteria and arbuscular mycorrhizal fungi for phytoremediation of environmental pollutants in the contaminated matrix. It will be useful for microbiologists, environmental scientists and toxicologists.

Microbial Fermentation and Enzyme Technology

Edited by Pradeep K. Das Mohapatra, Sonali Mohapatra and Keshab C. Mondal

Microbial Fermentation and Enzyme Technology mainly focuses on production and application of enzymes in various industries. Further, it also discusses recent developments in enzyme engineering particularly those involved in creating and improving product formations through enzyme and fermentation technology.

Microbial Mitigation of Stress Response of Food Legumes

Edited by N. Amaresan, M. Senthil Kumar, Indian Institute of Pulses Research, India, Krishna Kumar, Indian Institute of Pulses Research, India, and A. Sankaranarayanan

The book entitled, “Microbial mitigation of stress responses of food legumes” provides knowledge on the impact of abiotic and biotic stress on the agriculture of grain legumes especially pulses and it critically reviews the cutting-edge research in exploring plant-microbe interactions to mitigate the stress. It helps in understanding the fundamentals of microbial mediated management of abiotic and biotic stress in grain legumes. This book describes the usefulness of microbiome of plant / insects for enhancing the production of grain legumes.

Morphoanatomical Atlas of Grass Leaves, Culms, and Caryopses

Dhara Gandhi and Susy Albert

This new volume, Morphoanatomical Atlas of Grass Leaves, Culms, and Caryopses, features the studied anatomical details of different parts of 100 wild grass species and provides a comprehensive overview of existing knowledge. Each of the three sections of the volume (leaf, grass, culm, and caryopse) discusses and illustrates the diagnostic histological features, along with statistical analyses on the quantitative and qualitative data.

New Techniques for Studying Biomembranes

Edited by Qu-Xing Jiang, Department of Microbiology and Cell Science, University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida, USA

This book describes methods being used to investigate the dynamic distribution of specific lipids in membranes and their effects on other membrane components. The contributors present important discoveries that have to do with lipid analysis and lipid interactions with proteins, receptors, transporters and ion channels, even though ion channels are more favored because of the interest of the selected contributors. Various methods, which have been used to study lipid bilayer structure and lipid organization in membranes, include both in vitro membrane systems and in vivo ones, and study membrane proteins in various membrane systems.

Phylogenetics of Bees

Edited by Rustem Abuzarovitch Ilyasov and Hyung Wook Kwon

Bees are flying insects of the order Hymenoptera closely related to wasps and ants. The ancestors of bees are assumed to be predatory wasps, which switched to pollen consumption. Further, bees co-evolved with flowering plants and divided into several species according to climatic conditions. Widely known bees are western bees Apis mellifera, and eastern bees Apis cerana. This book sheds light on features of evolution, phylogeny, speciation, adaptation to environment, and taxonomy of bees. It will be of particular relevance to evolutionists, geneticists, taxonomists, ecologists, population geneticist, and breeders.
Reproduction and Development in Platyhelminthes

T. J. Pandian, Madurai Kamaraj University, Tamilnadu, India

Series: Reproduction and Development in Aquatic Invertebrates

Among aquatic invertebrates, Platyhelminthes ranks first, as they are harmful to man and his food basket. The book may also have a relevance for turbellarian stem cells for studies on cancer and senescence as well as that of parasitic trematodes and cestodes on the cost of human health and loss to his food basket from livestock and fishes.

Wheat Blast

Edited by Sudheer Kumar, Prem Lal Kashyap and Gyanendra Pratap Singh

Wheat Blast provides systematic and practical information on wheat blast pathology, summarises research progress and discusses future perspectives based on current understanding of the existing issues. The book explores advance technologies that may help in deciding the path for future research and development for better strategies and techniques to manage the wheat blast disease. It equips readers with basic and applied understanding on the identification of disease, its distribution and chances of further spread in new areas, its potential to cause yield losses to wheat, the conditions that favour disease development.

The Kinesin Superfamily Handbook

Transporter, Creator, Destroyer

Edited by Claire Friel, School of Life Sciences, University of Nottingham, Medical School, Queen’s Medical Centre, Nottingham

This book brings together current information on the families that make up the kinesin superfamily of molecular motors in one comprehensive text; an ideal reference for researchers looking to make comparisons between different families, for specific information on a family, or simply for an overview of the kinesin superfamily. Information is grouped according to individual families and organized in a standardized way, allowing the reader to search and retrieve information on this large superfamily of molecular motors and understand how its individual members carry out a diverse variety of cellular functions.

The Moroccan Argan Trade

Producer Networks and Human Bio-Geographies

Daniel F. Robinson, University of New South Wales, Australia

Series: Earthscan Studies in Natural Resource Management

This book provides one of the most detailed and comprehensive examinations of the Moroccan argan tree, the products derived from it and its cultural significance. Assessing factors relating to legal and economic geography international trade, socio-cultural and human-nature relationships, the book provides a comprehensive analysis of the argan tree which will appeal to students, scholars and practitioners.
Global food security is a challenging issue to meet the food and nutritional requirements and has become an issue for national policymakers and public concern. There is a need to enhance agricultural production as well as to reduce the postharvest loss, improve the quality of the processed products, and add value to the products to make more quality food available. Agro-product processing technology plays the major role to reduce the post-harvest losses, improve the quality of processed products, and add value to the products. This would also generate employment and ultimately contribute to food security.

William E. Schiesser, Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, USA

The intent of this book is to present a methodology for the formulation and computer implementation of mathematical models for multiple myeloma, a form of bone cancer. The models are stated as systems of ordinary and partial differential equations (ODE/PDEs). The routines are available from a download link so that the example models can be executed without having to first study numerical methods and computer coding. The routines can then be applied to variations and extensions of the multiple myeloma models, such as changes in the ODE/PDE parameters (constants) and form of the model equations.

The future role of dwarf honeybees in natural and agricultural systems provides multidisciplinary perspective about the different facets of dwarf honeybees. The role of dwarf honeybee Apis florea assumes utmost importance in the context of pollinator decline throughout the world threatening stability of ecosystems and global food security. The book is first of its kind which deals in details on varied aspects of Apis florea biology, management, conservation strategies for protecting biodiversity and enhancing crop productivity.
Dictionary of Pharmaceutical Dosage Forms

Jeffrey T. Solate, Canadian Food Safety Institute, Mississauga, Ontario

The Dictionary of Pharmaceutical Dosage Forms is a collection of terms and definitions prepared to assist healthcare practitioners and students as a companion or reference resource when reading notes and completing routine care. It can also provide reference material for hospital and medical staff, consultants, nursing instructors and pharmaceutical science students. This first edition classifies and organizes the forms in an easily readable format, so readers will find it a quick and simple reference.

Healing Plants of Nigeria

Ethnomedicine and Therapeutic Applications
Anselm Adodo, Pax Herbal Clinic & Research Laboratories, Ewu Esan, Edo State, Nigeria and Maurice M. Iwu, Bioresources Development Group, Abuja, FCT, Nigeria

Series: Traditional Herbal Medicines for Modern Times

Healing Plants of Nigeria explores the field of ethnomedicine in Nigeria. It documents the plants that are traditionally used by the local population, history of local use and the traditionally beliefs around the use. Importantly, it argues for a return to a community-based approach to medicine where the health of the individual is closely aligned with that of the community. Community in this perspective includes plants, animals and the environment.

Gene and Cell Therapies

Market Access and Funding

Eve Hanna and Mondher Toumi

Series: Pharmaceuticals, Health Economics and Market Access

The major advances in the field of biotechnology and molecular biology in the 21st century has led to a better understanding of pathophysiology of diseases. A new generation of biopharmaceuticals has emerged including a wide and heterogeneous range of innovative therapies. These aim to prevent or treat chronic or serious life-threatening diseases, previously considered incurable. This book shows how the regulatory environment has evolved to analyze and review those therapies while HTA agencies and payers remain resistant. It provides insight into current learning, how those products will be accessible and which policy changes will be required to permit patient access.

Phytomedicine

Research and Development
Parimelazhagan Thangaraj

Phytomedicine has become more important and gained constant improvement nowadays for the bettmerment of health nowadays. Herbal medicine plays a significant role in development of new drugs contrary to the modern medicinal systems. Over a decade there has been a drastic improvement in phytomedicine in all the countries around the globe. Growth has reached a higher level in developing pharmaceutical industries everywhere. People have drifted toward herbal medication and practices for their food and healthcare. Therefore inorder to create abundant interest in research of phytosciences this book has been one of the better reference tool.

Biochemistry

An Organic Chemistry Approach
Michael B. Smith, University of Connecticut, Storrs, USA

Biochemistry: An Organic Chemistry Approach provides a framework for understanding various topics of biochemistry, including the chemical behavior of biomolecules, enzyme activity, and more. It goes beyond mere memorization. Using several techniques to develop a relational understanding, including homework, this text helps students fully grasp and better correlate the essential organic chemistry concepts with those concepts at the root of biochemistry. The goal is to better understand the fundamental principles of biochemistry.

Asphyxiation, Suffocation, and Neck Pressure Deaths
Edited by Burkhard Madea, Director, Institute of Forensic Medicine, University of Bonn, Germany
Combining theory and practice, this is a comprehensive analysis of suffocation, asphyxiation, and neck pressure deaths. It includes important developments in the field such as lung histomorphology in fatal strangulation, systematic dissection of the larynx, biochemical findings, and post-mortem imaging. International experts explain the pitfalls and subtleties of identifying these cases, making this an important resource for readers involved in such investigations. Tables, statistics, scientific and historical evidence throughout further validate the clinical guidance provided.

Case Studies for Advances in Paleoimaging and Other Non-Clinical Applications
Ronald G. Beckett, Gerald J. Conlogue and Andrew Nelson
Case Studies for Advances in Paleoimaging presents actual cases from the authors' vast experience in the application of paleoimaging modalities in order to answer unique research problems. The book also serves as a field manual for future current and researchers in approach similar, or even new cases, that present unique challenges. These cases demonstrate how the varied imaging methodologies can provide data which greatly enriches our understanding of the subject at hand, be it ancient cultural remains, forensic recovery, museum holdings, or other anthropological and archaeological artifacts.

Detector Dogs and Scent Movement
How Weather, Terrain, and Vegetation Influence Search Strategies
Tom Osterkamp
Detector Dogs and the Science of Scent Movement retrieves, reviews, and interprets the results of pertinent scientific research on scent dynamics and presents these results in terms that are easier for handlers to understand. This will be a vital resource for K9 handles in the private and public sectors—including in Homeland Security, law enforcement, and military settings—as well as a useful guide for lawyers, forensic, and investigative professionals who need to better understand K9 operations.

Forensic Gait Analysis
Edited by Haydn D. Kelly, London Medical Centre, UK
Forensic Gait Analysis examines the intersection of podiatric medicine with forensic investigation—a study which links a suspect to a crime through analysis of his or her style of movement: how an individual walks, runs, and bends. The book provides an explanation of how the musculoskeletal system and biomechanics affect gait and how videos of perpetrators can be forensically analyzed and used for identification and investigative purposes.

Barley
Properties, Functionality and Applications
Sneh Punia
This book provides a systematic introduction and a comprehensive examination of barley science. Recent research has raised the importance of barley finding that barley is a rich source of phenolic compounds, dietary fiber, vitamins, and minerals. With comprehensive coverage of the nutritional and non-nutritional aspects of barley, this book provides the latest information for grain science professionals and food technologists alike. It will be a useful supplementary text for classes teaching cereal technology, cereal science, cereal chemistry, food science, food chemistry, and nutritional properties of cereals.

Konjac Glucomannan
Production, Processing, and Functional Applications
Edited by George Szrzednicki and Chaleeda Borompichaichartkul
Glucomannan is a high-molecular-weight, water-soluble, non-cellulosic polysaccharide. It is considered as a soluble fiber. As such, it resists human digestive enzymes and absorption in the small intestine. Hence, it is used as a food or food supplements for weight management. Glucomannan is also used as a food additive, as a thickener or emulsifier. This is the first book in English that collects and synthesizes all the information on Konjac Glucomannan. The book introduces konjac, and glucomannan extracted from konjac, discussing its origin in various species of the genus Amorphophallus, and the evolution, cultivation, industrial production, and potential food applications.

Mass Spectrometry Imaging in Food Analysis
Edited by Leo M.L. Nollet, University College Ghent - retired
Series: Food Analysis & Properties
Food contains various compounds and many technologies exist to analyze those molecules of interest. However, the analysis of the spatial distribution of those compounds using conventional technology, such as liquid chromatography-mass spectrometry or gas chromatography-mass spectrometry is difficult. This book explains how the novel use of matrix-assisted laser desorption/ionization mass spectrometry imaging (MALDI-MSI) will be an ideal complementary approach. MALDI-MSI is a two-dimensional MALDI-MS technology that can detect compounds in a tissue section without extraction, purification, separation, or labeling. It can be used to visualize the spatial distribution of biomolecules in foods.

Proteomics for Food Authentication
Edited by Leo M.L. Nollet, University College Ghent - retired and Semih Otes, Ege University, Izmir, Turkey
Series: Food Analysis & Properties
During the last decade, proteomics (the largescale analysis of proteins in a particular biological system at a particular time) has been applied to different research areas within food technology. Since proteins can be used as markers for many properties of a food, even indicating processes to which the food has been subjected, they can provide further evidence of the foods labeling claim. Proteomics for Food Authentication, a volume in the Food Analysis and Properties Series, is a comprehensive and updated overview of the applications, drawbacks, advantages, and challenges of proteomics for food authentication.

Emerging Thermal and Nonthermal Technologies in Food Processing

Edited by Prem Prakash Srivastav, Deepak Kumar Verma, Ami R. Patel and Asaad Rehman Al-Hilphy

This new volume, Emerging Thermal and Nonthermal Technologies in Food Processing, provides a comprehensive overview of thermal and nonthermal processing of food with new and innovative technologies. Recent innovations in thermal as well as nonthermal technologies, which are specifically applied for potable water and fluid foods (milk, juice, soups, etc.), are well documented for their high bioavailability of macro- and micronutrients and are very promising. This brings together valuable information on fluid and microbial characteristics and quality dynamics that facilitate the adoption of new technology for food processing.

Lactic Acid Bacteria
A Functional Approach

Edited by Marcela Albuquerque Cavalcanti de Albuquerque, Alejandra de Moreno de LeBlanc, Jean Guy LeBlanc and Raquel Bedani

This book explores advances in new promising LAB functionalities including the effect on vitamin D receptor expression, the impact on neurodegenerative pathologies, and the production of bacteriocins to improve microbiota disbiosis. It also discusses the production of metabolites from polyphenols and their effect on human health, the effects on reducing the immunoreaction of food allergens, and the use of probiotic in cosmetics. An update in the use of lactic acid bacteria and probiotics technologies to develop new functional foods and functional pharmaceutical and cosmetic products is provided.

Mathematical and Statistical Applications in Food Engineering

Edited by Surajbhan Sevda, Indian Institute of Technology Guwahati, India and Anoop Singh, Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, New Delhi, India

Written by experts from all over the globe, this book focuses on new areas of mathematical and statistical methods used for food engineering and the development of fermentation technology to help meet the increasing food demand of rapidly growing world populations. It combines theory with a practical, hands-on approach, presenting cutting-edge developments in a way which can be easily digested by professionals at different levels and with varying degrees of statistical skill. It is an essential reference on the fundamental concepts associated with food engineering today, and serves as a valuable resource for students, researchers, teachers and professionals of food engineering.

Guide to RIBA Professional Services Contracts 2018

Ian Davies

The 2018 edition of this guide explains how to use, understand and get the most out of the RIBA Professional Services Contracts, which have been updated from the RIBA Agreements 2010 (and 2012 revision). With guidance on how to choose, prepare and complete the right contract, it is an essential companion for anyone using these industry-standard forms. The guide is written for architects and consultants to help practitioners develop a greater understanding of the role and responsibility of each party to the agreement.

Shadow

the architectural power of withholding light

Simon Unwin

Series: Analysing Architecture Notebooks

Each of these Analysing Architecture Notebooks is devoted to a particular theme in understanding the rich and varied workings of architecture. They can be thought of as addenda to the foundation volume Analysing Architecture, which first appeared in 1997 and has subsequently been enlarged in three further editions.

Shadows may be insubstantial but they are, nevertheless, an important element in architecture. Through history architects have used shadows to draw, to mould form, to paint pictures, to orchestrate atmosphere, to indicate the passing of time... as well as to identify place. Sometimes shadow can be the substance of architecture.

Situate, Manipulate, Fabricate

An Anthology of the Influences on Architectural Design and Production

Edited by Chad Schwartz

This anthology of selected works outlines three critical instigators of architecture, all tied directly to the tectonic makeup of our built environment – place, material, and assembly. With content from a diverse collection of notable architects, historians, and scholars, this book serves as a theoretical structure for understanding the tectonic potential of architecture. Situate, Manipulate, Fabricate offers an opportunity to explore the essential topics that affect the design and construction, as well as the experiential qualities, of our built environment.

The Louvre and Versailles
The Evolution of the Proto-typical Palace in the Age of Absolutism
Christopher Tadgell, Independent art historian
This book traces the evolution of the great palaces of the Louvre and Versailles, from Pierre Lescot’s designs for expanding the former in the mid-16th century to the successive grands projets for the transformation of the latter over the course of the 18th century. Detailed architectural analysis is set in the context of the development of the medieval monarchy towards absolutism, the significance of Hispano-Burgundian court etiquette as a formative influence on planning, and the effect of the French monarchy’s financial incontinence on royal building ambitions. A wealth of illustrative material and supporting documents brings this comprehensive and authoritative text to life.

The Architecture and Landscape of Health
A Historical Perspective on Therapeutic Places 1790–1940
Julie Collins, University of South Australia, Australia
Series: Routledge Research in Architectural History
The Architecture and Landscape of Health identifies and examines the reception of fascist architecture through studies of destruction and adaptation, debates over re-use, artistic interventions, and even routine daily practices, which may slowly transform or adapt, and what constitutes the meaning of these buildings and places, offering insights which could inform the design of therapeutic places of the future. The Routledge Companion to Italian Fascist Architecture
Reception and Legacy
Edited by Kay Bea Jones, Ohio State University, USA and Stephanie Pilat, University of Oklahoma, USA
This Companion investigates what has become of the architectural and urban projects of Italian Fascism, how sites have been transformed or adapted, and what constitutes the meaning of these buildings and cities today. Essays include a rich array of new arguments from Italy and beyond. They examine the reception of fascist architecture through studies of destruction and adaptation, debates over re-use, artistic interventions, and even routine daily practices, which may slowly alter collective understandings of such places.

Urban Architectures in Interwar Yugoslavia

Tanja D. Conley, Massachusetts College of Art and Design, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Architectural History

This book seeks to challenge contradictions between the concepts of national and modern architectures promoted among the most pronounced national groups of Yugoslavia: Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes. It spans from the beginning of their nation-building programs in the mid-19th century until the collapse of unified South Slavic ideology and the outbreak of the Second World War.

The book will appeal to researchers, academics, and students interested in Central and Eastern European architectural history.
Cities of Opportunities
Connecting Culture and Innovation

Edited by Jason Pomeroy
Culture and Innovation in cities can potentially take on different complexities if viewed through the lens of academics and practitioners drawn from different geographies, disciplines, or fields of expertise when addressing particular urban challenges. It is through this complexity of views that this book seeks to provide a broad perspective on culture and innovation in the context of global cities today, and a rich cornucopia of insights from thought leaders within their respective fields to shape the cities of tomorrow.

Drone Futures
UAS in Landscape and Urban Design

Paul Cureton, Lancaster University, UK
Drone Futures explores new paradigms in Unmanned Aircraft Systems (UAS) in landscape and urban design. UAS or drones can be deployed with direct application to the built environment; this book explores the myriad of contemporary and future possibilities of the design medium its aesthetic, mapping agency, AI, mobility and contribution to smart cities. With international contributions, multi-disciplinary sources, case studies, this book examines new powers of flight for visualizing, interpreting and presenting landscapes and urban spaces of tomorrow.

Engendering Cities
Designing Sustainable Urban Spaces for All

Edited by Inés Sánchez de Madariaga and Michael Neuman
Engendering Cities examines the contemporary research, policy and practice of designing for gender in urban spaces. It will be key reading for scholars and students of planning, architecture, design, gender studies, sociology, anthropology, geography, and political science. It will also be of interest to practitioners and policy makers, providing discussion of emerging topics in the field.

Urbanisation at Risk in the Pacific and Asia
Disasters, Climate Change and Resilience in the Built Environment

Edited by David Sanderson and Laura Bruce
This book presents practical approaches for tackling the threats from climate change and disasters to urban growth in Pacific Island countries and Asian nations. With chapters written by leading scholars and practitioners, Urbanisation at Risk presents research and case studies from island countries across the Pacific, Cambodia, Nepal and the Philippines. This book is written for urban policy makers, researchers, humanitarian aid and development workers, and anyone interested in urbanisation, participatory approaches, disasters, resilience and climate change adaptation.

Landscape Architecture Criticism

Jacky Bowring, Lincoln University, New Zealand
Landscape Architecture Criticism offers techniques, perspectives and theories which relate to landscape architecture, a field very different from the more well-known domains of art and architectural criticism. Written for professionals and academics, as well as for students and instructors in landscape architecture, it includes strategies, diagrams, matrices and full colour illustrations to prompt discussion and provide a basis for exploring design critique.

Qualitative Analysis for Planning & Policy

Beyond the Numbers

John Gaber

The revised and updated second edition of Qualitative Analysis for Planning & Policy is a roadmap to help planners access qualitative data and integrate it into their planning investigations. Planning and policy decisions are not based solely on numbers, and this book equips planners with a how-to-guide to see what has been missing "between the lines" of quantitative data and make good decisions using the best possible information. For over a decade Qualitative Analysis for Planning & Policy has been an indispensable resource for students and researchers, experienced and novice planners.

The Routledge Handbook of Designing Public Spaces for Young People

Processes, Practices and Policies for Youth Inclusion

Edited by Janet Loebach, Department of Design & Environmental Analysis, College of Human Ecology, Cornell University, Sarah Little, Adina Cox and Patsy Eubanks Owens

The ability of youth to freely enjoy public spaces, and to develop a sense of belonging and attachment to these environments, is critical for their development. Young people represent a vital citizen group with legitimate rights to occupy and shape their public environments without prejudice or consequence, and their ideas and needs should be considered essential to the decision-making processes. This handbook provides global research and case studies that highlight both the need and strategies for creating inclusive, youth-friendly public outdoor environments.

The Routledge Handbook of Planning Megacities in the Global South
Edited by Deden Rukmana
Cities are now home to 55 percent of the world’s population, and that number is rising. Urban populations across the world will continue to grow, including in megacities with populations over ten million. This handbook provides rigorous comparative analyses, discussing the challenges, processes, best practices, and initiatives of urbanization in Middle America, South America, the Middle East, Africa, South Asia, East Asia, and Southeast Asia. This book is indispensable reading for students and scholars of urban planning, and its significance as a resource will only continue to grow as urbanization reshapes the global population.

Transnational Architecture and Urbanism
Rethinking How Cities Plan, Transform and Learn

Davide Ponzini, Politecnico di Milano, Italy

Series: Routledge Research in Planning and Urban Design

Transnational Architecture and Urbanism combines urban planning, design, policy, and geography studies to offer place-based and project-oriented insight into relevant case studies of urban transformation in Europe, North America, Asia, and the Middle East. The book portends new conceptualizations, evidence-based explanations and practical understanding for architects, planners and policymakers to critically learn from practice, to cope with these transnational issues, and to put better planning in place.
Environmental Finance for the Developing World

Michael Curley
Financing the Global Environment examines the financial techniques and strategies necessary to obtain funding to undertake infrastructure and environmental projects. Despite conventional notions that monies are typically not readily available for large-scale environmental projects, the book explains how this is usually not the case, and will provide the necessary steps, tools, and organizational methods necessary for successful project finance in any region. It demonstrates how the largest possible projects could be undertaken at the lowest possible cost and how a utility’s excess operating income could be used to improve the system.

Seismic Performance of Asymmetric Building Structures

Chunwei Zhang, Qingdao University of Technology, P.R. China, Zeshan Alam, Li Sun, Shenyang Jianzhu University, P.R. China and Bijan Samali, University of Technology, Sydney, Australia
This book presents detailed investigations on the effective assessment of structural seismic response under excessive torsional vibrations, demonstrating behavioural aspects from local response perspective to global seismic demands. The work provides comprehensive analytical, computational, experimental investigations, and proposes improved design guidelines that structural engineers can utilize to enhance the seismic design of asymmetric building structures. The work will be useful for practicing engineers, experts, researchers, and students from relevant areas, as well as emergency preparedness managers.

Solved Practical Problems in Transportation Engineering

Ghazi Gaseem Al-Khateeb, Associate Professor of Civil Engineering/Transportation Engineering, University City, Sharjah
This book provides solutions to numerous practical problems in transportation engineering and covers issues dealing with transportation terminology, theory, practice, computation, and design in several key areas. It includes topics such as urban transportation planning, traffic engineering, highway surveying, geometric design of highways, and pavement material design and analysis. The coverage deals with theory and concepts as well as practical problems and case studies, and includes numerical methods with downloadable MS Excel spreadsheets. The book will help new professionals and academics find practical solutions across the spectrum of transportation engineering.

Resilience of Critical Infrastructure Systems

Emerging Developments and Future Challenges

Edited by Zhishen Wu, Xilin Lu and Mohammad Noori
This book provides a comprehensive overview of resilience of infrastructure, new developments in this emerging field and its scopes, including ecology and sustainability, and the challenges involved in building a more resilient civil infrastructure systems of future. Moreover, it introduces a strategic road map for effective and efficient methods that are needed for modeling, designing, and assessing infrastructure system resilience.

Fish Swimming in Turbulent Waters
Hydraulic Engineering Guidelines to assist Upstream Passage of Small-Bodied Fish Species in Standard Box Culverts
Hubert Chanson, The University of Queensland, Brisbane, Australia and Xinqian Leng, The University of Queensland, Brisbane, Australia
Low-level river crossings, including culverts, are important for delivering a range of valuable socioeconomic services, including transportation and hydrological control. These structures are also known to have negative impacts on freshwater river system morphology and ecology, including the blockage of upstream fish passage, particularly small-body-mass fish species. Given the enormous environmental problems created by road crossings, new hydraulic engineering guidelines are proposed for fish-friendly multi-cell box culvert designs. This reference work is authored for civil and environmental engineers, as well as biology and ecology scientists interested in culvert design.

Sediment Transport and Morphodynamics Modelling for Coasts and Shallow Environments
Vanessa Magar, Center for Scientific Research and Higher Education of Ensenada, Mexico
This reference for engineers, and graduate students covers sediment transport and morphodynamics modelling in nearshore environments. It presents the fundamental physics of the hydrodynamics of estuarine and coastal environments, properties of seafloor and estuarine composition, and hydro-environmental interactions; emphasising the inter-relations of small and large scale processes, short and long evolution timescales, and the application of shallow water theory and coupling of the models with surface waves. The theory and modelling are directed to realignment, dredging and renourishment, with guidance on running regional models, and worked examples and case studies.

Large-Scale Construction Project Management
Understanding Legal and Contract Requirements
Yan Tan, CAPITA, London, U.K.

A majority of large-scale construction and major infrastructure projects are funded by public funds from taxpayers. However, these projects are often subject to severe delays and cost overruns. This book introduces integrated approaches to project management and control mechanisms to effectively manage large-scale construction projects. It explains integrated project governance with regard to time, cost, risk, change, contract management, and more. Further, it discusses the legal issues of scheduling delays and disruptions with regard to the Delay and Disruption Protocol (Society of Construction Law) as well as Forensic Schedule Analysis guidance (American Association of Cost Engineering).

Adjudication Practice and Procedure
Construction Contracts Act 2013

Damien Keogh and Niall Lawless

This adjudication textbook uniquely brings together a comprehensive analysis of, and commentary on, the Construction Contracts Act 2013 with a real-world perspective of adjudication, considering the knowledge, process and skills parties and adjudicators require in order to successfully participate in the adjudication process. Drawing on combined experiences of forty years in construction law, the authors provide invaluable guidance for all stakeholders in the adjudication process.

The Complete Physics of Solar Cells
Perovskites, Organics, and Photovoltaic Fundamentals
Juan Bisquert, Universitat Jaume I, Castello, Spain

The conceptual picture of a solar cell has evolved in the last two decades, a broad landscape of candidate materials and devices were discovered and systematically studied and reported.
New concepts and a rather powerful picture embracing very different types of devices has emerged from many discussions and sometimes also conceptual clashes. This handbook introduces the main physico-chemical principles that govern the operation of energy devices. The work presents an explanation of the operation of photovoltaic devices with a broad perspective that embraces concepts from nanostructured and highly disordered materials to highly efficient devices such as lead halide perovskite solar cells.

Energy Cooperation in South Asia
Utilizing Natural Resources for Peace and Sustainable Development
Mirza Sadaqat Huda
Series: Routledge Explorations in Energy Studies
This book analyses the key political challenges to regional energy cooperation in South Asia. It argues that investment in the planning of regional energy projects can increase their viability and also drive integration and peacebuilding. Focussing on cases in India, Bangladesh, Pakistan and Nepal, this book identifies the specific roadblocks to energy co-operation and evaluates how these political challenges determine regional interactions on energy securitization, environmental cooperation and human rights. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of energy security and geopolitics, natural resource governance and South Asian politics.

Mainstreaming Solar Energy in Small, Tropical Islands
Cultural and Policy Implications
Kiron C. Neale
Series: Routledge Studies in Energy Policy
This book explores how cultural considerations can improve policy-making to achieve mainstream solar energy in small, tropical islands. Focussing on Trinidad, Barbados and O‘ahu, Kiron Neale looks at how culture can affect and be affected by the policies that support the household adoption of two key energy technologies: solar water heating and photovoltaics.
Following the islands’ transition to renewable energy, this book will be of great interest to scholars of energy policy, energy transitions, climate change, cultural studies and small states development, as well as industry professionals working on energy policy implementation.

Introduction to Environmental Management
For the NEBOSH Certificate in Environmental Management

Brian Waters, Fellow Chartered Institution of Water and Environmental Management, Member Institute of Environmental Management and Assessment, Member Chartered Management Institute

This book is directly aligned to the NEBOSH Certificate in Environmental Management, which is a qualification aimed primarily at those in business who influence the environmental performance of their organisation by the decisions that they make as managers or the actions that they take as operators.

This book aims to provide an introduction to the main areas of concern and how the challenges can be addressed. This book is intended for candidates for the NEBOSH qualification, but it will also be useful to anyone who wishes to understand the problems and how they can be tackled within their own organisations be they industry, public service, voluntary bodies or even as individuals.

Designing Displays for Older Adults, Second Edition

Richard Pak, Clemson University, South Carolina, USA and Anne McLaughlin, North Carolina State University, Raleigh, USA

Series: Human Factors and Aging Series

This book focuses on the design of displays, or user interfaces for the older user. Aging leads to a complex set of changes both mentally and physically. While conventional wisdom says getting older leads to a decline across a broad set of skills and abilities, the reality is that some capabilities decline with age, others are stable or increase. This book distills decades of aging research, relevant to the design of displays. Since the publication of the first edition, the display, or interface technology has changed dramatically. The new edition covers cutting-edge technology design such as ubiquitous touchscreens, smart speaker, and audio interfaces, among others.

Bullying and Harassment in the Workplace

Theory, Research and Practice

Edited by Ståle Valvatne Einarsen, University of Bergen, Norway, Helge Hoel, Manchester Business School, The University of Manchester, Manchester, UK, Dieter Zapf, Goethe-University Frankfurt, Germany and Cary L. Cooper, Lancaster University, UK

This book is a comprehensive review of the literature, empirical findings, theoretical developments, and the experience and advice of leading academics and practitioners in the field of bullying and harassment at work. This completely updated third edition includes chapters examining the concept of bullying and harassment at work, as well as its measurement. The reader will find chapters which document the existence and consequences of the problem, and explores a variety of models and empirical evidence that assists in understanding where, when, and why bullying develops. The book also includes a wide range of possible remedies, to prevent, minimize, manage, and heal those exposed.

Handbook of Human Factors for Automated, Connected, and Intelligent Vehicles

Edited by Donald L. Fisher, William J. Horrey, John D. Lee, University of Wisconsin, Madison, USA and Michael A. Regan

Automobile crashes are the seventh leading cause of death worldwide, resulting in over 1.25 million deaths yearly. Automated, connected, and intelligent vehicles are predicted to decrease crashes up to 80%. However, the transition will take decades. This new handbook provides both ordinary and vulnerable road users the information about the human driver that they need in a single, integrated compendium in order to ensure that automated, connected and intelligent vehicles reach their full potential of reduced crashes, congestion, and carbon emissions.

Evolution of Extreme Waves and Resonances
Series: Modeling of Extreme Waves in Technology and Nature
The theory of waves is generalized on cases of strongly nonlinear waves, multivalued waves and particle-waves. The appearance of these waves in various continuous media and physical fields is explained by resonances and nonlinearity effects. Vast amounts of experimental data and compares them with the results of the developed theory are presented.
The book was written for Master’s and Ph.D., students as well as for researchers and engineers in the fields of geophysics, nonlinear wave studies, cosmology, physical oceanography, and ocean and coastal engineering. It is designed as a professional reference for those working in the wave analysis and modeling.

Atmosphere and Climate
Edited by Yeqiao Wang, University of Rhode Island, Kingston, USA
Series: The Handbook of Natural Resources, Second Edition
This volume covers atmospheric pollution and the complexity of atmospheric systems and their interactions with human activity. As an excellent reference for fundamental information on air systems, the handbook includes coverage of acid rain and nitrogen deposition, air pollutants, elevated carbon dioxide, anthropogenic circulation patterns and climate change effects on polar regions and climatology. New in this edition are discussions on aerosols monitoring and mapping, greenhouse gases, the Greenland ice sheet and mountainous regions. This book presents the key processes, methods, and models used in studying the impact of air pollution on ecosystems worldwide.

Groundwater Hydrology
Mohammad Karamouz, Azadeh Ahmad, Isfahan University of Technology, Iran and Masih Akhbari, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, USA
Groundwater Hydrology: Engineering, Planning, and Management, Second Edition presents a compilation of the state-of-the-art subjects and techniques in the education and practice of groundwater and describes them in a systematic and integrated fashion useful for undergraduate and graduate students and practitioners. This new edition features updated materials, computer codes, and case studies throughout.

Landscape and Land Capacity
Series: The Handbook of Natural Resources, Second Edition
This volume covers soils and landscape issues, their diversity, importance, and how soils are related to the landscapes in which they form. It includes discussions on land conservation, land-use and land-cover changes, urban environments, and unravels the complex bond between humans and soils. New in this edition are discussions on habitat conservation and planning, landscape epidemiology and vector-borne diseases, landscape patterns and changes. The book demonstrates the key processes, methods, and models used through several practical case studies from around the world.

Soil and Groundwater Remediation Technologies
Edited by Yong Sik Ok, Jörg Rinklebe, University of Wuppertal, Germany, Deyi Hou, Daniel C.W. Tsang and Filip M.G. Tack
This book offers various soil and water treatment technologies due to increasing global soil and water pollution. In many countries, the management of contaminated land has matured, and it is developing in many others. Topics covered include chemical and ecological risk assessment of contaminated sites; phytoremediation of contaminants; arsenic removal; selection and technology diffusion; technologies and socio-environmental management; post-remediation long-term management; soil and groundwater laws and regulations; and trace element regulation limits in soil. Future prospects of soil and groundwater remediation are critically discussed in this book.

Terrestrial Ecosystems and Biodiversity
Series: The Handbook of Natural Resources, Second Edition
This volume covers topical areas of terrestrial ecosystems, their biodiversity, services, and ecosystem management. Organized for ease of reference, the handbook provides fundamental information on terrestrial systems and a complete overview on the impacts of climate change on natural vegetation and forests. New to this edition are discussions on decision support systems, biodiversity conservation, gross and net primary production, soil microbiology, and land surface phenology. The book demonstrates the key processes, methods, and models used through several practical case studies from around the world.

Aerodynamics Principles for Air Transport Pilots

Rose G Davies, Massey University, New Zealand

Equipping readers with the ability to analyze the nature of airflow on aircrafts, the book provides comprehensive knowledge of the characteristics of subsonic and supersonic airflow. Readers will gain a clear understanding of the aerodynamic forces acting on an aircraft across a range of speeds and their effects on the aircraft's performance. The book emphasizes the connection between the operating actions in flight and aerodynamic requirements. The content will be of interest to senior undergraduates studying to obtain their Aviation Transport Pilot License (ATPL)/Airline Transport Pilot (ATP) certificate, general aviation and air transport pilots, and aircraft maintenance engineers.

Dynamic Mechanical Analysis

Kevin P. Menard, Perkins-Elmer Corporation, Denton, Texas, USA and Noah Menard

Dynamic Mechanical Analysis (DMA) is a powerful technique for understanding the viscoelastic properties of materials. It has become a powerful tool for chemists, polymer and material scientists, and engineers. This book presents a practical and straightforward approach to understanding how DMA works and what it measures. Starting with the concepts of stress and strain, the text takes the reader through stress-strain, creep, and thermomechanical analysis. DMA is discussed as both the instrument and fixtures as well as the techniques for measuring both thermoplastic and thermosetting behavior.

Cost Engineering

A Practical Method for Sustainable Profit Generation in Manufacturing

Chris Domanski, Purchasing Senior Manager, Nexteer Automotive, MI

Cost Engineering is used to design products to meet specific cost requirements. This book covers the basic concepts and processes of Cost Engineering that, when combined into a disciplined system, will lead a company to a sustainable profit achievement. This book is useful to design engineers, manufacturing engineers, buyers, and cost estimators.

Graphene–Electrolyte Interfaces

Electronic Properties and Applications

Edited by Huailin Zhan

This book systematically integrates the electronic theory and experimental techniques for both graphene and electrolytes. The theoretical sections detail the classical and quantum description of electron transport in graphene and the modern models for charges in electrolytes. The experimental sections compile common techniques for graphene growth/characterization and electrochemistry. Based on this knowledge, the final chapter reviews a few applications of graphene-electrolyte systems in biosensing, neural recording, and enhanced electronic devices, in order to inspire future developments.

Heat Pumps for Cold Climate Heating

Variable Volume Ratio Two-stage Vapor Compression Air Source Heat Pump Technology and Applications

Edited by Hui Huang

Air source heat pumps are mainly used for space heating, and have the advantages of environmental protection, energy saving, and comfort. Written by leading heat pump technology expert Hui Huang, this book summarizes the research and applications of variable volume ratio two-stage vapor compression air source heat pump technology, and its use in cold climate regions. This book can be used for reference by scientific researchers and engineers engaged in research on air source heat pump technology, product development and popularization; and by energy management and policy researchers. It will also be of value to undergraduate and graduate students studying these areas of technology.
Industrial Automation Technologies
Edited by Chanchal Dey and Sunit Kumar Sen
The book begins with an overview of automation history and followed by chapters on PLC, DCS and SCADA - describing how such technologies have become synonymous in process instrumentation and control. The book also discusses the all pervading IoT, and its industrial cousin – IIoT which is finding increasing applications in process automation and control domain. The last chapter introduces OPC technology which has strongly emerged as a de-facto standard for interoperable data exchange between multi vendor software applications and bridges the divide between heterogeneous automation worlds in a very effective way.

Mechanics of Nanocomposites
Homogenization and Analysis
Farzad Ebrahimi and Ali Dabbagh
This work emphasizes static and dynamic behaviors of porous nanocomposite structures in the framework of continued mechanics-based approaches. It investigates matrices strengthened via various nanofillers such as carbon nanotubes, graphene platelets and graphene oxide powders. Equivalent properties of nanocomposites are obtained via homogenization techniques based on micromechanics approaches. An energy-based approach is used with the strain-displacement relations of shear deformable beam, plate or shell theories. It surveys various nanofillers to show which is the best for improving stiffness.

Intelligent Hydrogels in Diagnostics and Therapeutics
Edited by Anujit Ghosal and Ajeet Kaushik
This book explores the potential of hydrogels as a multi-utility system and their benefits (biocompatibility, degradability, and supporting scaffold) for wide range of applications in diagnostics and therapeutics. It also discusses the future prospects and challenges in transition from hydrogels to nanogels. The book demonstrates the effectiveness of hydrogels in diagnostics of diseases in various in-vivo and in-vitro environments and highlights the designing and engineering of hydrogels for everyday drug dosage and possible functionalization to fabricate an efficient drug carrier.

Modeling of Extreme Waves in Technology and Nature, Two Volume Set
Series: Modeling of Extreme Waves in Technology and Nature
Modeling of Extreme Waves in Technology and Nature presents unified theories of extreme waves, based on conservation and state equations of continuum or multiphase media. Cases of surface waves and waves arising in materials and physical fields under extreme conditions are analyzed, and modeling techniques demonstrated. The text examines natural extreme waves, and those resulting from man-made factors, such as underwater explosions, and connections to ship design are included. The presented theory is based on conservation and state equations of continuum or multiphase media.

Molecular Dynamics of Nanostructures and Nanionics
Junko Habasaki
This book discusses complex nanostructured systems exemplified by nanoporous silicates, spontaneously formed gels from silica-nanocolloidal solutions, and related systems and examines them using molecular dynamics simulations. Nanoporous materials, nanocolloidal systems, and gels are useful in many applications and can be used in electric devices and storage and for gas, ion, and drug delivery. The book gives an overview of the history, current status, and frontiers of the field. It also discusses the fundamental aspects related to the common behaviors of some of these systems and common analytical methods to treat them.

ELECTRICAL, CHEMICAL AND MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
Nonlinear Meta-Optics
Edited by Costantino De Angelis, University of Brescia, Brescia, Italy, Giuseppe Leo, Université Paris Diderot - Laboratoire MPQ, IDF, France and Dragomir Neshev, Australian National University, ACT, Australia
Series: Multidisciplinary and Applied Optics
This book addresses fabrication as well as characterization and modeling of semiconductor nanostructures in the optical regime, with a focus on nonlinear effects. The visible range as well as near and far infrared spectral region will be considered with a view to different envisaged applications. The book covers the current key challenges of the research in the area, including: exploiting new material platforms, fully extending the device operation into the nonlinear regime, adding re-configurability to the envisaged devices and proposing new modeling tools to help in conceiving new functionalities.

Power Plant Synthesis
Dimitris A. Katsaprakakis
Series: Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering Series
Power Plant Synthesis provides an integrated approach to the operation, analysis, simulation and dimensioning of power plants for electricity and thermal energy production. Fundamental concepts of energy and power, energy conversion, and power plant design are first presented, and integrated approaches for the operation and simulation of conventional electricity production systems then examined. Hybrid power plants and cogeneration systems are covered, with operating algorithms, optimization and dimensioning methods explained. The environmental impacts of energy sources are described and compared, and real-life case studies included to show the synthesis of the specific topics covered.

Optical Signal Processing in Highly Nonlinear Fibers
Mário Fernando Santos Ferreira
This book provides an updated description of the most relevant types of highly nonlinear fibers. It also describes some of their actual applications for nonlinear optical signal processing. Multiple types of highly nonlinear fibers are considered, such as silica-based conventional highly nonlinear fibers, tapered fibers, photonic crystal fibers, and fibers made of highly nonlinear materials, namely lead-silicate, tellurite, bismuth oxide, and chalcogenide glasses. Several nonlinear phenomena occurring on such highly nonlinear fibers are described and used to realize different functions in the area of optical signal processing.

Reinventing Clinical Decision Support
Data Analytics, Artificial Intelligence, and Diagnostic Reasoning
Paul Cerrato and John Halamka
Series: HIMSS Book Series
Advances in machine learning, data analytics, systems biology, causal forest modelling, and precision medicine are transforming the clinical decision process and are profoundly impact patient outcomes. Research already demonstrates that the management of conditions like diabetic retinopathy, melanoma, sepsis, and colorectal cancer are yielding to neural networks, sophisticated statistical programs, and other cutting-edge tools. The book explains to physicians and technologists the value and limitations of artificial intelligence in the management of disease. Specifically, it explains how machine learning and new types of data analysis will improve diagnosis and personalize patient care.

Smart CMOS Image Sensors and Applications
Jun Ohta, Nara Institute of Science and Technology, Ikoma, Japan
Series: Optical Science and Engineering
Smart CMOS Image Sensors and Applications is the only book available devoted to smart CMOS image sensors and applications. The book describes the fundamentals of CMOS image sensors, optoelectronic device physics, and introduces typical CMOS image sensor structures, such as an active pixel sensor (APS). Also included are the functions and materials of smart CMOS image sensors and present examples of smart imaging. Various applications of smart CMOS image sensors are also discussed. Several appendices supply a range of information on constants, illumination, MOOG, and characteristics, and optical resolution will be included.

2nd Edition - NEW EDITION
Systemic and Systematic Risk Management
Joseph E. Kasser, Principal, The Right Requirement, Australia
This book discusses risk management as it applies to the problem-solving process for simple, complex, and wicked problems. The book does this in the context of policies. When applying systems thinking to risk management, it can be seen that risk management applies to everything in daily life, from crossing the road, to preventing problems from arising in project management, as well as in major systems development and social systems. The book will provide ways of closing the loop and providing the policy makers with the tools to monitor the policy implementation.

The Science and Technology of Particle Accelerators
Rob Appleby, University of Manchester School of Physics and Astronomy Manchester, UK, Graeme Burt, James Clarke, STFC Daresbury Laboratory, UK and Hywel Owen
This book provides integrated coverage of accelerator science and technology, this book presents the fundamental concepts alongside detailed engineering discussions and extensive practical guidance, including many numerical examples. For each topic, the authors provide a description of the physical principles, a guide to the practical application of those principles, and a discussion of how to design the components that allow the application to be realised.

Transmission of Electrical Energy
Overhead Lines
Alison P. de Moura, Adriano Aron F. de Moura and Ednardo P. da Rocha
In this book, the reader will learn, easily and didactically, how an AC transmission line project is executed in practice, how to calculate the parameters needed to use in transmission lines projects, how an AC transmission line operates, and how to use the ATPdraw, a world-class computing program, to do simulations of AC transmission lines. The purpose of integrating the ATPdraw computational program with this book is to provide computational solutions from examples proposed in the text, to show topics covered in the text, to get computational solutions with a more realistic tool and to provide readers with an experience using a professional analysis program transmission line.

Vibration Problems in Machines
Diagnosis and Resolution
Arthur W. Lees, Swansea University, UK
This book explains how to infer information about the internal operations of rotating machines from external measurements through methods used to resolve practical plant problems. Second edition includes summary of instrumentation, methods for establishing machine rundown data, relationship between the rundown curves and the ideal frequency response function. The section on balancing has been expanded and examples are given on the strategies for balancing a rotor with a bend, with new section on instabilities. It includes case studies with real plant data, MATLAB® scripts and functions for the modelling and analysis of rotating machines.

2nd Edition - NEW EDITION
Thermal Computations for Electronics
Conductive, Radiative, and Convective Air Cooling
Gordon Ellison, Portland State University, Oregon, USA
The flavor and organization of the first edition has been retained whereby the reader is guided through the analysis process for systems and then components. Important new material has been added regarding altitude effects on forced and buoyancy driven airflow and heat transfer. The first twenty percent of the book is devoted to the prediction of airflow and well-mixed air temperatures in systems, circuit board channels, and heat sinks, followed by convective (PCB-mounted components included), radiative, and convective heat transfer and the resultant temperatures in electronic equipment. Detailed application examples illustrate a variety of problems.

Applied Engineering Mathematics
Brian Vick, Virginia Tech, USA

Undergraduate engineering students need good mathematics skills, and this textbook supports this with a strong emphasis on visualization and the methods and tools needed across the whole of engineering. The visual approach is emphasised, and excessive proofs and derivations are avoided. The visual images explain and teach the mathematical methods. The book’s website provides dynamic and interactive codes in Mathematica to accompany the examples for the reader to explore on their own.

Advanced Simulation of Alternative Energy
Simulation with Simulink® and SimPowerSystems™

Viktor Perelmuter, National Technical University, Kharkov, Ukraine

Advanced Simulation of Alternative Energy is a sequel of the book of the same author printed by CRC Press and considers models of new, promising installations of renewable energy sources, as well as the new trends in this technical field. The book is focused on wind generators with multiphase generators, models of the different offshore parks, wind shear and tower shadow effect, active damping, system inertia support, synchronverter modelling, photovoltaic cells with cascaded H-bridge multilevel inverters, operation of fuel cells with electrolyzers and microturbines, and simulation of the some hybrid systems.

Analysis of Grounding and Bonding Systems

Massimo Mitolo

The book explains the theory and the reasons behind basic ground electrodes and more complex grounding systems buried in uniform and non-uniform soils. This comprehensive guide provides code-complying solutions for the safety against electric shock provided by equipotential bonding connections between exposed conductive parts, such as equipment enclosures and metalwork. Details on the calculation of step and touch voltages in different systems of type grounding are provided with the aid of solved problems. Readers will learn how to minimize hazardous interactions between grounding systems, cathodically protected pipelines and heat networks.

Computational Nondestructive Evaluation Handbook
Ultrasound Modeling Techniques

Sourav Banerjee, University of South Carolina and Cara A.C. Leckey, NASA Langley Research Center

This book introduces computational wave propagation methods developed from over 40 years of research and covers NDE of isotropic, anisotropic and functionally graded materials. It discusses recent ways to enable enhanced computational efficiency for anisotropic materials. It offers the uses of NDE simulation and provides a basic understanding of ultrasonic wave propagation through continuum mechanics and detailed discussions on the techniques and know-how of six computational methods to simulate NDE experiments virtually. Pros and cons of each individual method are discussed and guidelines for selecting specific simulation methods for specific NDE scenarios offered.

Data Fusion and Data Mining for Power System Monitoring

Arturo Román Messina, The Center for Research and Advanced Studies of the National Polytechnic Institute of Mexico, Mexico

This book provides a comprehensive treatment of advanced data fusion and data mining techniques for power system monitoring with focus on use of synchronized phasor networks. Relevant statistical data mining techniques are given, and efficient methods to cluster and visualize data collected from multiple sensors are discussed. Both, linear and nonlinear data-driven mining and fusion techniques are reviewed with emphasis on the analysis and visualization of massive distributed data sets. Challenges involved in realistic monitoring, visualization, and analysis of observation data from actual events are also emphasized supported by examples of relevant applications.

Defects in Nanocrystals

Structural and Physico-Chemical Aspects

Sergio Pizzini

The book discusses small semiconductor systems and the effect of size and shape on thermodynamic and optoelectronic properties at the mesoscopic and nanoscopic level. It considers individual nanometric crystallites, nanocrystalline films, and nanowires of which the thermodynamic, structural, and optical properties are covered in detail. It describes benefits of optical spectroscopies in understanding the role and nature of defects in nanocrystalline semiconductors. It considers the role of interfaces in nanocrystalline behaviour. It covers the importance of embedding media on physico-chemical properties and the negligible role of core point defects vs. surface and interface defects.

Extreme Tribology

Fundamentals and Challenges

Ahmed Abdelbary, Chief Engineer & Tribology Consultant at Egyptian Government

Extreme Tribology offers a comprehensive overview of tribology in severe conditions which is usually overlooked in other works. The initial chapters are tailored to the needs of undergraduates to understand relevant basic phenomena. The later chapters introduce postgraduate researchers to more advanced topics. The considerations of wear-control in extreme conditions, namely, surface coating, surface treatment, and lubrication are discussed considering cutting-edge researches. Current trends in polymer composites, MEMS and NEMS tribology are presented with special emphasis on the effects of extreme environmental and working conditions.

Flux-Bounded Tungsten Inert Gas Welding Process

An Introduction

P Chakravarthy, Indian Institute of Space Technology, Thiruvananthapuram, INDIA, M Agilan, Vikram Sarabhai Space Centre, Indian Space Research Organisation, Trivandrum, Kerala, INDIA and N Neethu, Indian Institute of Space Technology, Trivandrum, INDIA

This book is intended to introduce the Flux-Bounded Tungsten Inert Gas Welding (FBTIG) process which is a variant of Activated Tungsten Inert gas welding process. The benefits of activating flux i the weld pool in enhancing the depth of penetration and underlying mechanisms for the same is explained in detail. The benefits of FBTIG process over other fusion welding process are highlighted. The scope for the FBTIG process to be adapted at the industrial level and the advancements in this field is detailed that enables the practicing engineers to exploit the same. This book is aimed at graduate students, researchers and professionals in welding, manufacturing and engineering.

Explores new principles of Self-Initiating-Volume Discharge (SIVD) for creating high-energy non-chain HF/DF lasers and the creation of efficient lasers with high energy output and radiation power in the spectral region of 2.6-5 μm. Potential applications include remote sensing of the atmosphere, medicine, biological imaging and precision machining.

High-k Gate Dielectric Materials
Applications with Advanced Metal Oxide Semiconductor Field Effect Transistors (MOSFETs)
Edited by Niladri Pratap Maity, Reshmi Maity and Srimanta Baishya
This volume explores and addresses the challenges of high-k gate dielectric materials, one of the major concerns in the evolving semiconductor industry and the International Technology Roadmap for Semiconductors (ITRS). The application of high-k gate dielectric materials is a promising strategy that allows further miniaturization of microelectronic components (or Moore’s law).

Intelligent Fault Diagnosis and Accommodation Control

Su Nan Huang, National University of Singapore, Kok Kiong Tan, National University of Singapore, Poi Voon Er and Tong Heng Lee

Series: Automation and Control Engineering

The book uses the model built from the plant or process, to detect and isolate failures, in contrast to traditional hardware or statistical technologies dealing with failures. It presents model-based learning and design technologies for fault detection, isolation and identification as well as fault-tolerant control. The book addresses four main schemes: modelling of actuator or sensor faults; fault detection and isolation; fault identification, and fault reconfiguration (accommodation) control. It also covers application issues in the monitoring control of actuators, providing several interesting case studies for more application-oriented readers.

Machine Learning and Its Applications describes Machine Learning (ML) techniques and algorithms that have been used in recent research and real world application. The book gives an introduction to ML and describes the most widely used techniques and methods. It also covers Deep Learners and related areas, such as genetic algorithms. It offers real world examples where ML techniques are applied and describes how they can be implemented using different frameworks available as open source or commercial.

Magnesium and Its Alloys as Implant Materials

Corrosion, Mechanical and Biological Performances

Mirco Peron, Filippo Berto and Jan Torgersen

Despite their tremendous potential, Mg and its alloys are not yet used in biomedical applications. This book aims to provide scientific insights into the challenges of the materials, and give an overview of the research regarding their mechanical properties, corrosion behaviour and biological performances. Researchers and students get an overview of the state-of-the-art technologies adopted so far to overcome the drawbacks of Mg for biomedical applications. Particular emphasis is put on explaining the link between mechanical, corrosion and biocompatible properties of Mg and its alloys as well as their pros and cons.

Microlithography

Science and Technology

Edited by Bruce W. Smith, Rochester Institute of Technology, New York, USA and Kazuaki Suzuki, Nikon Corporation, Tokyo, Japan

Like the bestselling original, this second edition of Microlithography is a self-contained text detailing both elementary and advanced aspects of submicron microlithography, offering a balanced treatment of theoretical and operating practices. Reflecting recently developed technologies, this edition includes coverage of immersion lithography, extreme ultraviolet (EUV) lithography, imprint lithography, photoreists for 193nm and immersion lithography, and scatterometry. The authors cover mechanical systems, optics, excimer laser light sources, and alignment techniques and analysis, as well as resist chemistry, processing, multilayer lithography, plasma and reactive ion etching, and metrology.

Molecular Dynamics Simulation of Nanostructured Materials

An Understanding of Mechanical Behavior

Snehanshu Pal, Metallurgical & Materials Engineering Department, National Institute of Technology Rourkela, Rourkela, INDIA and Bankim Chandra Ray, National Institute of Technology, Rourkela, India

This book aims to detect, critically correlate and properly assess the state of the art in the mechanical behaviour study for nanostructured materials material in the perspective of atomic scale simulation of deformation process. It provides representative examples of mechanical behaviour studies carried out using molecular dynamics simulations.

Nano Dielectric Resonator Antennas for 5G Applications

Rajveer S. Yaduvanshi and Gaurav Varshney

This book explains basic electromagnetic theory with the help of design formulations i.e. mathematical background on antennas along with experimentations, which has made this book unique. The main purpose of this book is to embed mathematical EM theory of dielectric resonator antennas with experimental validation so that understanding of concepts takes place. Initially, basic understanding of philosophy of dielectric resonators has been discussed, then it is supported with mathematical modeling and later same is implemented with its prototype model along with experimentations.

Nanomechanics and Micromechanics

Generalized Models and Nonclassical Engineering Approaches

Edited by Satya Bir Singh, Alexander V. Vakhрушев and A. K. Haghi

The book addresses that materials and structures with small-scale dimensions do not behave in the same manner as their bulk counterparts. Once materials dimensions are reduced to the micron- and sub-micron range, their properties are subject to significant change. Thus, mechanical properties will be varied and will depend on the sample size. In the meantime, due to the large surface-to-volume ration of small structures, deformation mechanisms are subject to change.

Edited by Aarti Jain, Rubén González Crespo, Dean, Full Professor, Universidad Internacional de La Rioja, Spain and Manju Khari, Assistant Professor, GGSIP University, India
Series: Internet of Everything (IoE)
This book presents methods to solve emerging problems while mainstreaming adoption of Web of Things applications. The book emphasis on understanding of WoT and its relation with IoT. It includes a survey of WoT problems & solutions, discussion on the protocols developed for WoT, highlights standardization, innovations & the latest technologies behind WoT and presents case studies for deeper understanding. Each chapter of the book have presented the open issues. The book will be useful to researchers, software developers, under graduate & post graduate students, as well as practitioners.

Sprinklers and Smoke Management in Enclosures
Essam E. Khalil, University of Cairo, Egypt and Dalia E.E. Khalil
This book addresses smoke management in enclosures. It provides a platform for understanding the principles of smoke propagation and spread, heat release rate, and effect of sprinklers on suppression. Focusing on key elements, such as visibility, ceiling height, and fire curve, the results of the study will be of interest to mechanical engineers, HVAC professionals, and fire safety professionals and investigators. Considering how the sprinkler system has become a vital part of the firefighting systems in underground car parks, the book evaluates the effect of sprinklers activation on the fire induced smoke behavior and the interaction of water particles with the smoke layer.

Reliability, Maintainability, and Safety for Engineers
B.S. Dhillon, Professor, Faculty of Engineering, University of Ottawa, Ontario, Canada
To meet nowadays needs, engineered products and systems are an important element of world economy and each year billions of dollars are spent to develop, manufacture, operate, and maintain various types of products and systems around the globe. This book integrates and combines three of those topics to meet today’s needs for the engineers working in these fields.

The book will be useful to many people including design engineers, system engineers, reliability specialists, safety professionals, maintainability engineers, engineering administrators, graduate and senior undergraduate students, researchers, and instructors.

Social Media Analytics for User Behavior Modeling
A Task Heterogeneity Perspective

Arun Reddy Nelakurthi, Graduate Student, Arizona State University, AZ and Jingrui He, Associate Professor, Arizona State University, AZ
Series: Data-Enabled Engineering

In recent years, social media has gained significant popularity and has become an essential medium of communication. Such user-generated content provides an excellent scenario for applying the metaphor of mining any information. Transfer learning is a research problem in machine learning that focuses on leveraging the knowledge gained while solving one problem and applying it to a different, but related problem. This book offers novel frameworks to study user behavior and addressing task heterogeneity. It presents a study of existing research, provides convergence and complexity analysis of the frameworks, includes algorithms for implementation, and covers extensive empirical analysis.

The Equation of Knowledge
From Bayes’ Rule to a Unified Philosophy of Science
Lê Nguyên Hoang
This book introduces readers to the Bayesian approach to science: teasing out the link between probability and knowledge. The author strives to make this book accessible to a very broad audience, suitable for professionals, students, and academics, as well as the enthusiastic amateur scientist/mathematician. Bayesian thinking is an important topic for research, which has seen dramatic progress in the recent years, and has a significant role to play in the understanding and development of AI and Machine Learning, among many other things. This book seeks to act as a tool for proselytising the benefits and limits of Bayesianism to a wider public.

A First Course In Chaotic Dynamical Systems
Theory And Experiment
Robert L. Devaney
The first text to introduce modern topics in dynamical systems at the undergraduate level, the book integrates both theory and computer experiments into its coverage of contemporary ideas. A classic, it offers a gradual introduction to the basic mathematical ideas behind such topics as chaos, fractals, Newton’s method, symbolic dynamics, the Julia set, and the Mandelbrot set. It includes biographies of some of the leading researchers in the field. The new edition offers a heavily revised chapter on chaos and an emphasis on encouraging student research and experiment. The book is accessible to readers with only a background in calculus. Many new examples and exercises and updated references.

Advanced Calculus
Theory and Practice
John Srdjan Petrovic, Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, USA
Series: Textbooks in Mathematics
Advanced Calculus: Theory and Practice, Second Edition, expands on the material covered in elementary calculus and presents this material in a rigorous manner. The text improves students’ problem-solving and proof-writing skills, familiarizes them with the historical development of calculus concepts, and helps them understand the connections among different topics. The book explains how various topics in calculus may seem unrelated but in reality have common roots. Emphasizing historical perspectives, the text gives students a glimpse into the development of calculus and its ideas from the age of Newton and Leibniz to the twentieth century. Nearly 300 examples lead to important theorems.

An Invitation To Algebraic Numbers And Algebraic Functions
Franz Halter-Koch, University of Graz, Austria
Through a set of related yet distinct texts, the author offers a thorough presentation of the classical theory of algebraic numbers and algebraic functions: ideal- and valuation-theoretic aspects, $L$ functions and class field theory, together with a presentation of algebraic foundations which are usually undersized in standard algebra courses. These books contain the whole classical theory of algebraic numbers and algebraic functions together with the prerequisites that too often receive short coverage in standard courses. Thus it should enable a broader audience to get acquainted with these theories.

Analytic Methods in Sports
Using Mathematics and Statistics to Understand Data from Baseball, Football, Basketball, and Other Sports
Thomas A. Severini, Northwestern University, USA
Analytic Methods in Sports: Using Mathematics and Statistics to Understand Data from Baseball, Football, Basketball, and Other Sports, 2nd Edition provides a concise yet thorough introduction to the analytic and statistical methods that are useful in studying sports. It explains how to apply the methods to sports data and interpret the results, demonstrating that the analysis of sports data is often different from standard statistical analyses. The book integrates a large number of motivating sports examples throughout and offers guidance on computation and suggestions for further reading in each chapter.

Basic Analysis I
Functions of a Real Variable
James K. Peterson, Clemson University, USA
Basic Analysis I: Functions of a Real Variable is designed for students who have completed the usual calculus and ODE sequence and a basic course in linear algebra. This is a critical course in the use of abstraction, but is just first volume in a sequence of courses which prepare students to become practicing scientists. This book is written with the aim of balancing the theory and abstraction with clear explanations and arguments, so that students who are from a variety of different areas can follow this text and use it profitably for self-study.

Basic Analysis II
A Modern Calculus in Many Variables
James K. Peterson, Clemson University, USA

Basic Analysis II: A Modern Calculus in Many Variables focuses on differentiation in \( \mathbb{R}^n \) and important concepts about mappings from \( \mathbb{R}^m \) to \( \mathbb{R}^n \), such as the inverse and implicit function theorem and change of variable formulae for multidimensional integration. These topics converge nicely with many other important applied and theoretical areas which are no longer covered in mathematical science curricula. Although it follows on from the preceding volume, this is a self-contained book, accessible to undergraduates with a minimal grounding in analysis.

Learn R
Pedro J. Aphalo, University of Helsinki, Faculty of Biological and Environmental Sciences

Learn R teaches how to use the R for data analysis. However, it goes beyond a cookbook approach, and instead focuses on how to use R to flexibly explore and analyse data to efficiently and reliably extract information. Using this book, the reader will become confident and reasonably independent in the use of R when faced with new challenges. They will learn how to toy around in the R “ecosystem” and pick it up like a child would learn a language – explore, employ it, learn from mistakes, and recognise patterns and the coding philosophy behind R. The book is for everyone who wants to use R for complex statistical analysis and who wants to gain more self-confidence in their use of R.

Modelling with Ordinary Differential Equations
A Comprehensive Approach
Alfio Borzì, University of Wurzburg, Germany

Modelling with Ordinary Differential Equations: A Comprehensive Approach aims to provide a broad and self-contained introduction to the mathematical tools necessary to investigate and apply ODE models. The book starts by establishing the existence of solutions in various settings and analysing their stability properties. The next step is to illustrate modelling issues arising in the calculus of variation and optimal control theory that are of interest in many applications. This discussion is continued with an introduction to inverse problems governed by ODE models and to differential games.

Interviewer Effects from a Total Survey Error Perspective
Edited by Kristen Olson, Jolene D. Smyth, Jennifer Dykema, Allyson L. Holbrook, University of Illinois at Chicago; Frauke Kreuter, University of Maryland, USA; University of Mannheim, Germany, and Institute for Employment Research, Germany; and Brady T. West
Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Statistics in the Social and Behavioral Sciences
The book presents a comprehensive collection of state-of-the-art research on interviewer-administered survey data collection. Although many surveys are conducted using self-administered modes, interviewer-administered modes continue to be optimal and collect biophysical data. Interviewers are responsible for locating sampled units, contacting sampled individuals and convincing them to cooperate, asking questions on a variety of topics, collecting other kinds of data, and providing data about respondents and the interview environment.

Localized Dynamics of Thin-Walled Shells
Gennadi I. Mikhailov, Belarusian State University and Petr E. Tovstik
Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Monographs and Research Notes in Mathematics
Localized Dynamics of Thin-Walled Shells focuses on localized vibrations and waves in thin-walled structures with variable geometrical and physical characteristics. It emphasizes novel asymptotic methods for solving boundary-value problems for dynamic equations in the shell theory, in the form of functions which are highly localized near both fixed and moving lines/points on the shell surface.

Lie Symmetry Analysis of Fractional Differential Equations
Mir Sajjad Hashemi and Dumitru Baleanu, Cankaya University, Turkey
In Lie Symmetry Analysis of Fractional Differential Equations, the authors try to answer this vital question by analyzing different aspects of fractional Lie symmetries and related conservation laws. Finding the exact solutions of a given fractional partial differential equation is not an easy task, but is one that the authors seek to grapple with here. The book also includes generalization of Lie symmetries for fractional integro differential equations.

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Monographs and Research Notes in Mathematics
Morrey spaces were introduced by Charles Morrey to investigate the local behaviour of solutions to second order elliptic partial differential equations. The technique is very useful in many areas in mathematics, in particular in harmonic analysis, potential theory, partial differential equations and mathematical physics. Across two volumes, the authors of Morrey Spaces: Introduction and Applications to Integral Operators and PDE’s discuss the current state of art and perspectives of developments of this theory of Morrey spaces, with the emphasis in Volume I focused mainly on harmonic analysis.

Parameter Redundancy and Identifiability
Diana Cole
Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Interdisciplinary Statistics
Statistical and mathematical models are defined by parameters that describe different characteristics of those models. Ideally it would be possible to find parameter estimates for every parameter in that model, but in some cases this is not possible. For example, two parameters that only ever appear in the model as a product could not be estimated individually, only the product can be estimated. Such a model is said to be parameter redundant, or the parameters are described as non-identifiable. This book explains why parameter redundancy and non-identifiability is a problem and the different methods that can be used for detection, including in a Bayesian context.

Statistical Modelling and Sports Business Analytics
Edited by Vanessa Ratten, La Trobe Business School, La Trobe University and Ted Hayduk, NYU Tisch Institute for Global Sport, USA
Series: Routledge Frontiers of Business Management
This book introduces predictive analytics in sports and discusses how analytics relates to algorithms and statistics. It defines the sports data to be used and highlights the unique aspects of sport that make analytics useful, especially with the widespread availability of sports data. The book explains why the proper use of predictive analytics includes knowing what they are incapable of doing and the role of predictive analytics in the bigger picture of sports entrepreneurship, innovation and technology. Illustrated through practical, insightful cases, the book looks into the mathematical foundations that enhance technical knowledge of predictive models.

Jesus Rogel-Salazar, Imperial College London, UK
Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Data Mining and Knowledge Discovery Series
The book is intended for practitioners in data science and data analytics in both academic and business environments. It aims to present the reader with concepts in data science and analytics that were deemed to be more advanced or simply out of scope in the author’s first book, and are used in data analytics using tools developed in Python such as SciKit Learn, Pandas, Numpy, etc. The use of Python is of particular benefit given its recent popularity in the data science community. The book is therefore a reference to be used by seasoned programmers and newcomers alike and the key benefit is the practical approach presented throughout the book.

Cunning Machines
Your Pocket Guide to the World of Artificial Intelligence
Jędrzej Osiński
Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Artificial Intelligence and Robotics Series
Artificial Intelligence is all around us – in the news, in our homes, in our phones, in our cars – everywhere. While AI is becoming more ubiquitous in our daily lives, many people don’t have a good understanding of what AI is and how it works. This book aims to address this gap in knowledge by giving readers a pocket guide to the world of AI. It covers basic concepts in AI, their history, and the inspirations that helped them to materialize. It describes what AI is, where to find it, how scientists try to evaluate it, and the main limitations for AI. The book also explores the most popular AI techniques in a very readable and easy to understand way.

Blockchain for Cybersecurity and Privacy
Architectures, Challenges, and Applications
Edited by Yassine Maleh, Mohammad Shojaifar, Mamoun Alazab and Imed Romdhani Series: Internal Audit and IT Audit
Blockchain for Cybersecurity and Privacy: Architectures, Challenges, and Applications is an invaluable resource to discover the Blockchain applications for cybersecurity and privacy. The purpose of this book is to improve the awareness of readers about Blockchain technology applications for cybersecurity and privacy. This book focuses on the fundamentals, architectures, and challenges of adopting the blockchain for cybersecurity. You will discover different applications of blockchain for cybersecurity in IoT and healthcare. The book also includes some case studies of the blockchain for E-Commerce Online Payment, Retention Payment System, and digital forensics.

Cyber Strategy
Risk-Driven Security and Resiliency
Carol Siegel and Mark Sweeney
Cyber Strategy Risk-Driven Security and Resiliency provides a process and roadmap for any company to develop its unified Cybersecurity and Cyber Resiliency Strategy. It demonstrates a methodology for companies to combine their disassociated efforts into one corporate plan with buy-in from senior management that will efficiently utilize resources, target high risk threats, evaluate risk assessment methodologies and the efficacy of resultant risk mitigations. The book discusses all the steps required from conception of the plan from pre-planning (mission/vision, principles, strategic objectives, new initiatives derivation), project management directives.

Cryptoeconomics
Igniting a New Era of Blockchain
Baron Gong and Wei Xu
Cryptoeconomics is based on protocols of decentralized digital economics used to manage the production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services. With a focus on China, this book systematically sorts out the structure and background of the economic model derived from blockchain and illustrates the connection between cryptoeconomics and blockchain with practical cases.

Database Modeling Step by Step
Gavin Powell

This book focuses on the relational database model from the perspective of the data modeling novice. It provides an alternative and easy to understand, step-by-step, simple explanation of designing and building relational database models. Filled with examples and exercises, this book benefits anyone involved with database technology including database administrators, developers, novice data modelers, systems or network administrators, technical managers, marketers, advertisers, forecasters, planners, executives – anyone who does not know something about data modeling and wants to become an expert.

It's All Analytics!
The Foundations of AI, Big Data, and Data Science Landscape for Professionals in Healthcare, Business, and Government
Scott Burk and Gary Miner

This book, the first in a series of three, provides a look at the foundations of artificial intelligence and analytics and why readers need an unbiased understanding of the subject. The authors include the basics such as algorithms, mental concepts, models, and paradigms in addition to the benefits of machine learning. The book also includes a chapter on data and the various forms of data. The authors wrap up this book with a look at next frontiers such as applications and designing your environment for success, which segue into the topics of the next two books in the series.

Distributed Denial of Service Attacks
Ilker Özçelik and Richard Brooks

This book provides a comprehensive textbook on Distributed Denial of Service (DDoS) attacks. It will present both their history and the necessary technical background, including the social impact, economic impact, and other implications of DDoS. The text covers DDoS attack detection, mitigation and on-going research in detail. There will be a focus on bandwidth-starvation attacks. The tools used to perform these attacks, attacker motivations and legal considerations will also be discussed. To help with instruction, each chapter will have example homework questions included. It will also provide a set of exercises that include running, measuring, and countering DDoS in a laboratory setting.

The Cybersecurity Body of Knowledge

The ACM/IEEE/AIS/IFIP Recommendations for a Complete Curriculum in Cybersecurity

Daniel Shoemaker, Anne Kohnke, Lawrence Technological University, Southfield, Michigan, USA and Ken Sigler

This book explains the content, purpose and use of eight knowledge areas that define the boundaries of the discipline of cybersecurity. The discussion focuses on the essential concepts of each knowledge area that collectively capture the cybersecurity body of knowledge to provide a complete picture of the field. This book is based on a brand-new and up to this point unique, global initiative, known as CSEC2017. In essence, this is the entry-level survey of the comprehensive field of cybersecurity. This presentation is also explicitly designed to aid faculty members, administrators, CISOs, policy makers, and stakeholders involved with cybersecurity workforce development initiatives.

Beginner’s Guide to ANSYS Fluent 2019
John Matsson

Unlike any other ANSYS Fluent textbook currently on the market, this book uses applied problems to walk you step-by-step through completing CFD simulations for many common flow cases, including internal and external flows, laminar and turbulent flows, steady and unsteady flows, and single-phase and multiphase flows. You will also learn how to visualize the computed flows in the post-processing phase using different types of plots. To better understand the mathematical models being applied, we’ll validate the results from ANSYS Fluent with numerical solutions calculated using Mathematica.

Introduction to Finite Element Analysis Using SOLIDWORKS Simulation 2020

Randy Shih

The primary emphasis of the text is placed on the practical concepts and procedures needed to use SOLIDWORKS Simulation in performing Linear Static Stress Analysis and basic Modal Analysis. This text covers SOLIDWORKS Simulation and the lessons proceed in a pedagogical fashion to guide you from constructing basic truss elements to generating three-dimensional solid elements from solid models. This text takes a hands-on, exercise-intensive approach to all the important FEA techniques and concepts.

Learning SOLIDWORKS 2020

Randy Shih

This book will teach you everything you need to know to start using SOLIDWORKS 2020 with easy-to-understand, step-by-step tutorials. This book features a simple robot design used as a project throughout the book. You will learn to model parts, create assemblies, run simulations and even create animations of your robot design.

Mastering Surface Modeling with SOLIDWORKS 2020

Lani Tran

Mastering Surface Modeling with SOLIDWORKS 2020 focuses on surfacing tools, an important aspect of SOLIDWORKS’ design capabilities that fills in the gaps that might be left by using solid modeling alone. If you are a SOLIDWORKS user currently relying on solid modeling for designs, or are just not familiar with surface modeling techniques, this book will add these skills to your repertoire to help you create the highest-quality models.

Narrative Design
The Craft of Writing for Games
Michael Breault
A detailed look at the roles narrative designers (writers) play in the game industry, from the point of view of a game design educator and 35-year industry veteran. The work narrative designers and game designers perform on games is presented along with practical advice on how to break into the game industry as either a writer or designer. Templates and detailed instructions are given for readers to create a portfolio of work that could lead to a job in the game industry.

The beginner to intermediate user of SOLIDWORKS 2020. SOLIDWORKS is an immense software package, and no one book can cover all topics for all users. This book provides a centralized reference location to address many of the tools, features and techniques of SOLIDWORKS 2020. It also contains information and examples on the five categories in the CSWA exam. It’s also of interest to those working in security, to enable them to have the most recent developments in data access control. This book covers the entire research scope of Attribute-Based Encryption (ABE), from the background knowledge, to specific constructions, theoretic proofs, and applications with source codes. The goal is to provide in-depth knowledge usable for ABE researchers and PhD students who want to have a comprehensive understanding of Attribute-Based Access Control (ABAC) models, ABE schemes, and the most recent research problems. This book is also ideal for IT companies to provide them with the most recent technologies and research on how to implement the control models. It’s also of interest to those working in security, to enable them to have the most recent developments in data access control.

Big Data Analytics and Computing for Digital Forensic Investigations

Edited by Suneeta Satpathy and Sachi Nandan Mohanty

The explosion of Big Data has created unprecedented opportunities and security challenges as they are not just big in volume, but also unstructured and multi-modal. But, the potential of Big Data for enhanced decision making and analytic process can be seen as a tool for constructing potential valuable evidence to make robust investigation decisions and improve operational efficiency in digital forensic investigations. This book describes the trends of digital forensics served for Big Data, the challenges of evidence acquisition, and further suggests the application of Big Data fusion and mining algorithms to process large amounts of data effectively.

Bio-Inspired Fault-Tolerant Algorithms for Network-on-Chip

Muhammad Athar Javed Sethi, Department of Computer Systems Engineering, University of Engineering and Technology, Peshawar, Pakistan

This book exclusively presents in-depth information regarding bio-inspired algorithms solving real-world problems focussing on fault-tolerant algorithms inspired by the biological brain and implemented on NoC. It further documents the bio-inspired algorithms in general and more specifically, in the design of NoC.

Series: Security, Privacy, and Trust in Mobile Communications

Cross-Site Scripting Attacks: Classification, Attack, and Countermeasures is a comprehensive source which provides an overview of web-based vulnerabilities and explores XSS attack in detail. This book provides a detailed overview of the XSS attack; its classification, recent incidences on various web applications, and impacts of the XSS attack on the target victim. This book addresses the main contributions of various researchers in XSS domain. It provides in-depth analysis of these methods along with their comparative study.

Industrial IoT Application Architectures and Use Cases

Nandagopal Malavizhi, Suresh Annamalai, Pethuraj IBM Pvt Ltd., Manyata Tech Park, Bangalore, India, E A Neeba and Jenn-Wei Lin

As the number of Internet of Things (IoT) elements grows exponentially, their interactions generate massive amount of raw, multi-structured data. The challenge this data presents is to transform this raw data to information and knowledge, which can be used by people and systems to make intelligent decisions. Industrial IoT Application Architectures and Use Cases explores how artificial intelligence (AI), data analytics, and IoT technology combine to promote intelligence decision-making and automation in a range of industries.

Information Engineering for Ports and Marine Environments

Lin Mu, Lizhe Wang and Mingwei Wang

This book describes how to build the ocean dynamics model in information assurance technology for port shipping and ocean environment. It also talks about the three basic modules necessary for the process of modeling namely atmospheric module, wave module and current module; it analyses the key problems of information assurance technology for port shipping and ocean environment that is tidal level, oil spill and sediment transport. Moreover, the book conducts a thorough research for the key technology of these three aspects, constructs the basic database, and establishes an integrated system to forecast the measured level and the real-time information of wind, current and wave.

Internet of Things Security

Principles, Applications, Attacks, and Countermeasures

Brij B. Gupta, National Institute of Technology Kurukshetra, India

Internet of Things (IoT) with its technological advancements and massive innovations is building the idea of inter-connectivity among everyday life objects. With an explosive growth in number of Internet-connected devices, the implications of the idea of IoT on enterprises, individuals, and society are huge. It is getting attention from both academia and industry due to its powerful real-time applications that raises demand to understand the entire spectrum of the field. However, due to increasing security issues, safeguarding the IoT ecosystem has become an important concern.

Soft Computing Techniques for Type-2 Diabetes Data Classification
Ramalingaswamy Cheruku, Damodar Reddy Edla and Venkataanreshbabu Kuppili
Diabetes Mellitus (DM), commonly referred to as diabetes, is a metabolic disorder in which there are high blood sugar levels over a prolonged period. Lack of sufficient insulin causes presence of excess sugar levels in the blood. As a result the glucose levels in diabetic patients are more than normal ones. It has symptoms like frequent urination, increased hunger, increase thirst and high blood sugar. There are mainly three types of diabetes namely type-1, type-2 and gestational diabetes. Type-1 DM occurs due to immune system mistakenly attacks and destroys the beta-cells and Type-2 DM occurs due to insulin resistance.

Multi-UV Planning and Task Allocation
Yasmina Bestaoui Sebbane, Universite d'Evry, France
Multi-robot systems are a major research topic in robotics. Designing, testing, and deploying aerial robots in the real world is a possibility due to recent technological advances. This book explores different aspects of cooperation in multi-agent systems. It covers the team approach, as well as deterministic decision making. It also presents distributed receding horizon control, as well as conflict resolution, artificial potentials, and symbolic planning. The book also covers association with limited communications, as well as genetic algorithms and game theory reasoning. Multi-agent decision making and algorithms for optimal planning are also covered, along with case studies.

Robust and Error-Free Geometric Computing
Dave Eberly
This is a how-to book for solving problems in actual practice. The contents and accompanying source code are based on the feature requests and feedback received from industry and academics who want both the descriptions and source code for hard-to-find implementations of geometric algorithms. The code is robust, as required by the applications they work on.
Thermitic Thermodynamics

A Computational Survey and Comprehensive Interpretation of Over 800 Combinations of Metals, Metalloids, and Oxides

Anthony Peter Gordon Shaw, U.S. Army, RDECOM-ARDEC, Picatinny Arsenal, New Jersey, USA

Thermites, generally considered to be mixtures of metals and metal oxides, are an important subset of energetic materials. The underlying thermodynamic potential of a given mixture dictates whether it may undergo a self-sustaining reaction, liberating heat in the process. Information in the scientific literature is scattered and incomplete. Currently, a comprehensive overview of practical thermite reactions is not available and would be of great use to those working in the areas of energetic materials, pyrometallurgy, chemistry, and materials science. This book solves the problem by describing the results of calculations on 800 possible combinations of metal and metal oxide reactants.

101st Edition - NEW EDITION
CRC Handbook of Chemistry and Physics
Edited by John Rumble, R&R Data Services, Gaithersburg, MD
Series: CRC Handbook of Chemistry and Physics
In a world with access to unlimited amounts of data, how can users who need to make critical scientific and technical decisions find high quality, reliable data? Today, more than ever, the CRC Handbook of Chemistry and Physics remains a hallmark of quality. For over 100 years, the Handbook has provided property data on chemical compounds and all physical particles that have been reported in the literature, carefully reviewed by subject experts. Every year older collections are updated with the latest values and new areas will be added as science progresses.

e-Learning in Medical Physics and Engineering Building Educational Modules with Moodle
Vassilka Tabakova
Series: Series in Medical Physics and Biomedical Engineering
The Moodle learning management system is a free, open source program that is the most popular choice for higher educational institutions worldwide. E-learning is expected to play an even more significant role in the coming years, as the number of medical physicists worldwide is expected to triple by 2035. However, the best practices of the Moodle system are still unknown to many. This practical guide provides educators, programme administrators, and school directors with step-by-step instructions on how to best implement the learning management system Moodle, focusing on the specific requirements of the education and training of Medical Physics and Engineering students.

Social Laser
Application of Quantum Information and Field Theories to Modeling of Social Processes
Edited by Andrei Khrennikov
We remark that the sociopolitical perturbations under consideration are characterized by the cascade dynamics leading to the exponential amplification of coherent social actions. In quantum physics, such exponential and coherent amplification is the basic feature of laser’s functioning. In this book we explore the theory of laser to model aforementioned waves of social protests, rom color revolutions to Brexit and Trump’s election. We call such social processes Stimulated Amplification of Social Actions (SASA), but to keep closer to the analogy with physics we merely operate with the term “social laser.”

TEXTBOOK - READER
A Mole of Chemistry
An Historical and Conceptual Approach to Fundamental Ideas in Chemistry
Caroline Desgranges, Senior Research Scientist, Department of Chemistry, University of Dakota and Jerome Delhommele, Associate Professor, Department of Chemistry, University of Dakota
This book is intended for students in their undergraduate years who need to learn the basics of chemistry, including science and engineering as well as humanities. This is a companion textbook which provides a unique perspective on how the main scientific concepts describing nature were discovered and, eventually, how modern chemistry was born. The book makes use of context found in history, philosophy and the arts to better understand their developments, and without using mathematical equations. The focus is then set on scientific reasoning, making this book a great companion and addition to traditional chemistry textbooks.

Primer on Radiation Oncology Physics

Video Tutorials with Textbook and Problems

Eric Ford, University of Washington Department of Radiation Oncology, WA

Gain mastery over the fundamentals of radiation oncology physics! This package gives you over 60 tutorial videos (each 15-20 minutes in length) with a companion text, providing the most complete and effective introduction available. Dr. Ford has tested this approach in formal instruction for years with outstanding results. The text includes extensive problem sets for each chapter with detailed solutions provided. The videos include embedded quizzes and "whiteboard" screen technology to facilitate comprehension. Together, this provides a valuable learning tool both for training purposes and as a refresher for those in practice.

Douglas McGregor, Kansas State University, Manhattan, USA and J. Kenneth Shultis

Radiation Detection: Concepts, Methods, and Devices provides a modern overview of radiation detection devices and radiation measurement methods. The book topics have been selected on the basis of the authors' many years of experience designing radiation detectors and teaching radiation detection and measurement in a classroom environment. This book is designed to give the reader more than a glimpse at radiation detection devices and a few packaged equations. Rather it seeks to provide an understanding that allows the reader to choose the appropriate detection technology for a particular application, to design detectors, and to competently perform radiation measurements.

Neetu Tripathi and Manoj Kumar Goshist, Govt. College Tokapal, BASTAR, INDIA

Aggregation of Luminophores in Supramolecular System: From Mechanisms to Applications provides recent advancement in Supramolecular Chemistry, in which the luminophores are almost non-luminescent in the molecular state, but become highly emissive in the aggregate state, brings new opportunities and challenges for the development of Supramolecular Chemistry. The intermolecular non-covalent interactions have been considered to be the main driving forces for fabricating supramolecular systems with aggregating luminophores, and have an important influence on the luminescence properties of the probes.

Are There Really Neutrinos?

An Evidential History

Allan D. Franklin, Department of Physics, University of Colorado Boulder and Alysia D. Marino, Department of Physics, University of Colorado Boulder

Series: Frontiers in Physics

This intriguing and accessible book examines the experiments on neutrino oscillations. It argues that this history gives us good reason to believe in the existence of neutrinos, a particle that interacts so weakly with matter that its interaction length is measured in light years of lead. Yet, the scientific process has provided evidence of the elusive neutrino. Written in a style accessible to any reader with a college education in physics, Are There Really Neutrinos? is of interest to students and researchers alike. This second edition contains a new epilogue highlighting the new developments in neutrino physics over the past 20 years.

Bioimaging
Imaging by Light and Electromagnetics in Medicine and Biology
Edited by Shogo Ueno, University of Tokyo, Japan
This book explores new horizons in biomedical imaging and sensing technologies, from the molecular level to the human brain. It provides the most up-to-date information on new medical imaging techniques, such as the detection and imaging of cancer and brain diseases. Edited by Professor Ueno, who has been leading the field of biomedical imaging for 40 years, it is an ideal reference book for graduate and undergraduate students and researchers in medicine and medical physics who are looking for an authoritative treatise on this expanding topic of imaging and sensing in medicine and biology.

Hadron Form Factors
From Basic Phenomenology to QCD Sum Rules
Alexander Khodjamirian, Department Physik
This book introduces the theory of hadron form factors in a consistent manner, deriving step-by-step the key equations, defining the form factors, explaining their symmetry relations and applying mathematical tools to describe their behaviour. Many examples of hadron transition processes involving form factors are considered and in the second part of the book, numerous techniques of form factor calculation, based on the theory of strong interactions, quantum chromodynamics, are introduced in an accessible manner. This book will be an ideal guide for graduate students in particle physics, in addition to early-career researchers and those in related disciplines and fields.

Metals and Non-metals
Five-membered N-heterocycle Synthesis
Navjeet Kaur, Banasthali University, Rajasthan, India
A wide variety of biological activities are carried out by N-containing heterocycles and recently many reports have appeared for the synthesis of these heterocycles. The synthesis of heterocycles with the help of metal and non-metal has become highly rewarding and important method in organic synthesis. This book concentrates on the synthesis of nitrogen containing five-membered heterocycles in the presence of metal and non-metal.

Phytochemistry of Piper Betel Landraces
Vikas Bajpai and Nikhil Kumar
Series: Phytochemical Investigations of Medicinal Plants
Piper betle (betelvine) leaves, consumed by 6 million people, is one of the most important commercial crops in India. The book includes new method of metabolic profiling to find out the cultivars, gender or geographical location-based differences in the plant metabolite without sample preparation by combination of direct analysis in real-time of flight mass spectrometric method and chemometric analysis. Different landraces showed characteristic difference in secondary metabolites. The marker compounds for different landraces, and geographical locations were identified. It was also possible to identify the gender of unknown landraces, with the help of principal component analysis.
Phytochemistry of Plants from Genus Piper
Series: Phytochemical Investigations of Medicinal Plants
Piper species has been reported to possess various pharmacological activities such as insecticidal, anti-bacterial, anti-inflammatory, anti-platelet, anti-hypertensive, anti-thyroid, anti-tumor activities and hepatoprotective properties. Botanical authentication of the plants of Piper species is difficult because of the morphological similarity between species. This book describes ultra-performance liquid chromatography coupled with triple quadrupole electrospray tandem mass spectrometry in multiple reactions monitoring (MRM) mode with continuous polarity switching in the species to study the quantitative variation of thirteen bioactive markers in different plant parts of ten Piper species.

Phytochemistry of Plants from Genus Rauwolfia
Series: Phytochemical Investigations of Medicinal Plants
Rauwolfia species, commonly known as Sarangadha and Snakeroot has been traditionally used in Ayurveda for curing high blood pressure, hypertension, snake bites, feverish illnesses and insanity. Due to its wide variety and differences in chemical composition it is necessary to study an efficient and reliable method, which is required for rapid screening and determination of phytochemical investigation in root extracts of Rauwolfia species. This book provides qualitative and quantitative comparative phytochemical investigations of selected medicinal plants from Rauwolfia genus. These types of information are required to know about the efficacy and safety of the products.

Phytochemistry of Plants of Genus Ocimum
Series: Phytochemical Investigations of Medicinal Plants
Different plant parts such as leaves, roots and flowering tops of Ocimum species are used as a traditional remedy for nausea, flatulence, cold, dysentery, mental fatigue, spasm, rhinitis, arthritis, malaria, diarhea, skin infections, conjunctivitis, bronchitis, lowering blood sugar level and healing wounds. An efficient and accurate UPLC-ESI-QqQ-MS/MS method is described in this book for quality control of O. Sanctum derived formulations which was validated for simultaneous determination of twenty-three bioactive markers including phenolic acids, flavonoids, propenyl phenol and terpenoid in the leaf extract.

Integrated Flood and Drought Mitigation Measures and Strategies. Case Study: The Mun River Basin, Thailand

Saowanit Prabnakorn, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

Floods and droughts are climate extremes that account for more than 80% of people affected by natural disasters worldwide. Both catastrophes co-exist in many river basins, for example, the Mun River Basin in Thailand. Approximately 90% of rice cultivation here is rain-fed, and rice yield is the lowest in the country. This study aims to assess floods and droughts and their impacts on agriculture at the basin scale and attempt to tackle them simultaneously and sustainably by using integrated measures and strategies. Furthermore, the study shows that a holistic approach to simultaneously solving both problems is efficient as most water will benefit agriculture.

Eiman Mohamed Fadul Bashir, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

Spate irrigation has been a mystery to many professionals and irrigators around the world. This flood-based irrigation system relies on variable uncertain seasonal flood scenarios occurring every year. This book presents different frameworks to investigate, analyze and evaluates risks and coping strategies in the spate irrigation system in Sudan, East Africa, where farming communities have to avert water supply risks into productive use in arid environment. Findings contribute to the scarce knowledge and generate new insights to aid informed policy and decision making to improve productivity and sustainability of the spate irrigation systems.

Making Water Security

A Morphological Account of Nile River Development

Hermen Smit, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

This book examines Nile water security through the morphology of the river: it uses the changing form of the river as a device to map and understand how infrastructures and discourses dynamically interact with the Nile. This yields two key insights: 1. scales, units and ‘populations’ figuring in projects to secitize the river emerge with and through the rearrangement of its water and sediments. 2. As ongoing modern ‘development’ of the river reduces the prospects for new large diversions of water, the targeted subjects of development creatively mobilize old irrigation and drainage infrastructures in ways that escape the universal logic of water security.

Socio-Hydrological Dynamics in Bangladesh

Understanding the Interaction Between Hydrological and Social Processes Along the Jamuna Floodplain

Md Ruknul Ferdous, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

Sets out to explore the phenomena, opportunities and risks generated by the interactions between physical and societal processes along the Jamuna River in Bangladesh. This research proposes the concept of "Socio-hydrological spaces" to enrich the study of socio-hydrology because it helps understand the detailed human-water interactions in a specific location. The SHS concept suggests that the interactions between society and water are place-bound and specific because of differences in social processes, technological choices and opportunities, and hydrological dynamics. Such attention is useful anywhere in the world and also for other socio-hydrological systems than floodplains.

Archives, Recordkeeping and Social Justice

Edited by David A. Wallace, Wendy M. Duff, Renée Saucier and Andrew Flinn

Archives, Record-keeping and Social Justice expands the burgeoning literature on archival social justice and impact. Discussions and debates about social justice are playing out in many disciplines, fields of practice, societal sectors, and governments and yet one-dimension cross-cutting these actors and engagement spaces has remained unexplored: the role of recordkeeping and archiving.

It will be essential reading for researchers and students engaged in the study of archives, truth and reconciliation processes, social justice and human rights.

Transformative Digital Humanities: Challenges and Opportunities

Edited by Mary Balkun, Seton Hall University, USA and Marta Deyrup, Seton Hall University, USA

Transformative Digital Humanities takes a two-pronged approach to the digital humanities: it examines the distinct kinds of work currently being undertaken in the field, while also addressing current issues in the digital humanities, including sustainability, accessibility, interdisciplinarity, and funding.

This book considers what sorts of challenges still exist in the field and suggests how they might be addressed. As such, the book will be essential reading for academics and students engaged in the study of information science and digital humanities. It should also be of great interest to practitioners around the globe.

Territorial Politics and the Party System in Spain: Continuity and change since the financial crisis

Caroline Gray

Series: Europa Country Perspectives

Across Europe and beyond, economic woes in the wake of the global financial crisis of 2007-2008 unleashed fundamental changes in politics, with new parties emerging and populism surging. In Spain, the changes seen mark the most seismic shift in politics since the transition to democracy of the late 1970s. The book draws on institutional theories to help understand the Spanish case and situates Spain in the European context, reflecting on ways in which the Spanish case mirrors or departs from political shifts in wider Europe, and what this tells us about Spain and its neighbours.

A ‘Social Turn’ in the European Union?
New trends and ideas about social convergence in Europe
Edited by Jacek Kubera and Tomasz Morozowski
Series: Europa Perspectives on the EU Single Market
Social Europe is a key topic in the construction of the EU and its institutions. This volume examines the current state of, and perspectives for, Social Europe, as well as key issues in European social policy, including the posting of workers, the impact of the free market and regulations on social convergence: work, automation, digitalisation, taxation and democracy in the workplace. The aim of this volume is to identify a course to be followed in integrating the EU’s social policies and point to areas in which co-operation between member states is likely to produce best results.

Russia in the Middle East and North Africa
Continuity and Change
Edited by Chiara Lovotti, Eleonora Tafuro Ambrosetti, Christopher Hartwell and Aleksandra Chmielewska Series: Europa Regional Perspectives
Is Russia’s re-engagement in the Middle East and North Africa part of a strategy, or is it mere opportunism? This book examines this question via an analysis of both the historical drivers of Russian interest in the MENA region and the factors underlying current Russian policies. Benefiting from authors with different backgrounds, experiences and origins, this volume unpacks the key aspects that characterize the Russian presence in the area, including national interest, historical ties, economic, political and cultural cooperation, and perceptions of other relevant international actors.

Coastal Geomorphology

Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 3

Edited by Donald R. Coates
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

This book, first published in 1973, presents the papers from the 3rd Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium. The necessity for interdisciplinary cooperation in research on the processes and terrain of the littoral zone is reflected here, and the central theme that emerges from all papers is the dynamic aspect of the coastal environment, and the way geomorphic principles can be used to solve problems.

Geomorphology and Engineering

Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 7

Edited by Donald R. Coates
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

Whether the project is river engineering, soil mapping for landuse planning, or control of landslides, this volume, first published in 1976, illustrates that the professional partnership between geomorphology and engineering can significantly minimize environmental damage. The papers here were presented at the 7th Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium, and using the broad viewpoint of the planner, much new ground is covered: landfill design, prediction of geomorphic processes and their effects, and minimization of streamflow distortion.

Geomorphology in Arid Regions

Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 8

Edited by Donald O. Doehring
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

This book, first published in 1980, collects together thirteen articles on ‘Geomorphology in Arid Regions’. It uses the term ‘arid’ loosely to include studies from climes which might otherwise be considered semi-arid, in order to provide a diversity of papers dealing with important problems of interest to geomorphologists today.

Thresholds in Geomorphology

Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 9

Edited by Donald R. Coates and John D. Vitek
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

This book, first published in 1980, is a timely and comprehensive appraisal of thresholds in geomorphology. The papers, arising from the 9th Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium, form the cornerstone of a subject that is increasingly important in geomorphology. This book analyses the historical background to thresholds and geomorphology, as well as fluvial landforms, hydrogeologic regimes and other processes, and the impact of man.

Space and Time in Geomorphology
Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 12
Edited by Colin E. Thorn
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
This book, first published in 1982, is a collection of articles aimed at advancing the field of geomorphology. It starts from the position that a meaningful grasp of landscape evolution would depend upon an understanding of the present spatial distribution of processes and process rates; comparison of spatial versus temporal change; and careful appraisal of the character and composition of the stratigraphic record. Each article uses a data set to address between threshold variability in either a spatial or temporal context, and often both.

Hillslope Processes
Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 16
Edited by A.D. Abrahams
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
This book, first published in 1986, collects the articles presented to the 16th Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium and is a ground-breaking work in the study of hillslope processes. Hillslope processes are studied in a variety of disciplines other than geomorphology, such as hydrology, pedology, agricultural engineering, civil engineering and engineering geology – the study is truly an interdisciplinary science.

Groundwater as a Geomorphic Agent
Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 13
Edited by R.G. LaFleur
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
This book, first published in 1984, has both a geomorphic and a hydrologic message. It examines and analyses the role of groundwater in landscapes in a series of articles by authors of diverse backgrounds and experience.

Aeolian Geomorphology
Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 17
Edited by William G. Nickling
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
This book, first published in 1986, stems from the 1986 Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium. The topic was chosen because of the advances in the study of aeolian processes and landforms, particularly in the area of desertification, and the papers collected here clearly indicate that their study is not constrained by discipline boundaries but are of interest to geologists, physical geographers, soil scientists, meteorologists and engineers.
Catastrophic Flooding
Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 18

The History of Geomorphology
From Hutton to Hack: Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 19

Edited by K.J. Tinkler
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
This book, first published in 1989, the proceedings of the 19th Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium, is the first set of essays focused on the history of the subject. The articles analyse the founding precepts of geomorphology, the early pioneers, the formation of a defined discipline, and the present state of the topic.

Periglacial Geomorphology
Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium 22

Edited by John C. Dixon and Athol D. Abrahams
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
This book, first published in 1992, contains the proceedings of the 22nd Binghamton Geomorphology Symposium, and highlights the quantity and diversity of periglacial geomorphic research being undertaken in Arctic and alpine environments. The articles explore a variety of geomorphic processes and examine the potential impacts of global change on the nature and extent of permafrost and seasonal ice phenomena.

Geomorphology and Soils
Edited by K.S. Richards, R.R. Arnett and S. Ellis
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
Soils and sediments influence current processes, preserve evidence of past processes, indicate evolutionary phases in landscapes and provide a basis for relative and absolute chronologies. They provide an important key to the integration of short-term process studies and investigation of longer-term landform evolution. This book, first published in 1985, has been arranged to provide wide temporal and spatial coverage, with studies ranging from historic to geologic time scales and micro- to macro-spatial scales. The interdisciplinary nature of the subject is reflected in contributions from soil scientists, engineers, and geomorphologists.

Environmental Change and Tropical Geomorphology
Edited by I. Douglas and T. Spencer
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
The tropics provide the key to understanding much biological and Earth science. This is particularly true for the study of landforms, which in higher latitudes suffer great seasonal contrasts in process intensity and type, and which often in the past underwent the dramatic changes of glaciation and periglacialization. Yet studies in the tropics have shown that the legacy of past climate changes is much more dramatic than was formerly believed. This book, first published in 1985, brings together the variety of evidence about such environmental changes, over a variety of timescales, and sets it against the current knowledge of the nature of geomorphic processes in the tropics.
Economic and Applied Geology

Landscape Processes
An Introduction to Geomorphology

Darrell and Valerie Weyman
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
This book, first published in 1977, is a concise, fully illustrated introduction to modern geomorphology. Geomorphologists pay much attention to the measurement of present day processes in attempting to develop explanations of landscape evolution, and this book reflects this approach by deliberately emphasising processes in humid environments.

Geological Explorations in Central Borneo (1893–94)

G.A.F. Molengraaff
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology
This book, first published in 1902, is the product of the detailed geological survey undertaken by the Borneo Expedition of the late nineteenth century. The scientific exploration focused on Central Borneo, especially the sources of the Kapoewas and its tributaries, and its analysis of the geology of the region still today forms the bedrock of research into the area.

The Geography of Soil

Brian T. Bunting

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

This book, first published in 1965, was the first by a British soil expert in which he wrote a study of his subject from a geographical, not an agricultural or biological, viewpoint. Chapters 1-8 deal with the factors and processes in soil formation. Chapters 9-17 describe the soil groups of the different regions of the world—for example, desert and tundra, the boreal zone, the Mediterranean, and intertropical areas.

Geography and Soil Properties

A.F. Pitty

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

This book, first published in 1978, provides a comprehensive guide to soil properties in any major world region. It emphasizes the significance of the spatial changes in soil patterns, the environmental influence on soils and their temporal changes, but focuses attention on the systematic examination of soil properties and their reciprocal effects. It covers some important topics as the mineral composition of different soils, their organic matter, structure and porosity, chemical make-up and mechanical properties.

Geomorphology & Time

J.B. Thones and D. Brunsden

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

Time is a central feature of geomorphological research, and is used in this book (first published in 1977) to provide a conceptual framework within which to consider and compare old and new approaches to the field of geomorphology. The emphasis is on providing not merely a manual of current research but an introduction to isolate ideas and concepts, stimulate critical discussion and examine some of the problems that are involved in dealing with data.

The Nature of Geomorphology

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

In this re-evaluation of the basic postulates of geomorphology, first published in 1982, Alistair Pitty examines the subject within its scientific context, arguing that coherence in geomorphology can be demonstrated despite the many apparent divergences, which should themselves be regarded as poles within a spectrum of opinion. Not least, the particularly geographical and geographical aspects of geomorphology are carefully identified and explained within this coherence.

Introduction to Geomorphology

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Geology

The study of landforms is becoming increasingly scientific. This book, first published in 1971, examines the work done in the last few decades, but strives to avoid a too uncritical acceptance of contemporary trends. The author first examines the fundamental characteristics and basic postulates of geomorphology. He then seeks to define the systematic stages through which the study of the landforms of a given area might proceed. Examples are drawn from a wide geographical range with emphasis on presenting examples of actual observations and measurements. The final section presents concise descriptions of simple and inexpensive methods of acquiring field data in landform study.

A Concordance to Conrad's Heart of Darkness

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad
Originally published in 1979, this concordance to Heart of Darkness is intended for use by the general student of Conrad who wants to determine the exact denotation and connotation of Conrad's vocabulary, or the patterns of imagery in his work, quickly and efficiently. It prints under each word every logical context in which it occurs. This volume is part of a series which produced verbal indexes, concordances, and related data for all of Conrad's works.

A Concordance to Conrad's The Arrow of Gold

Paul L. Gaston and Todd K. Bender
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad
Originally published in 1981, this concordance can afford particular benefits to the critic and textual scholar because of several specialized problems that The Arrow of Gold presents. It should be able to shed light on problems distinct to The Arrow of Gold even as it provides information on questions pertinent to Conrad's work as a whole. This volume is part of a series which produced verbal indexes, concordances, and related data for all of Conrad's works.

A Concordance to Conrad's Nostromo

James W. Parins, Robert J. Dilligan and Todd K. Bender
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad
Originally published in 1984, this volume follows others in the series. By looking up a word in the word frequency table, the user can find how often it occurs in the text. The verbal index indicates at what page and line the word occurs so that the user can turn to the field of reference to see the word in each of its contexts. This volume is part of a series which produced verbal indexes, concordances, and related data for all of Conrad's works.

A Concordance to Conrad's An Outcast of the Islands
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad
Originally published in 1984, this volume falls into three parts: the verbal index, the word frequency table, and the field reference. The user can look to the alphabetical listing in the word frequency table to see how many times a word occurs in the text of An Outcast of the Islands. Then turning to the verbal index they can see the page number and line at which each occurrence falls. Then turning to the field of reference they can look at the actual context of each word in the text.

A Concordance to Conrad's The Rover
David Leon Higdon and Todd K. Bender
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad
Originally published in 1985, as with the earlier volumes in the series, the reader of The Rover is here provided a Verbal Index, citing each type and its location, a Word Frequency Table, and a Field of Reference. Using the tables in this concordance, the reader should be better able to address the issue of style and determine on a more informed basis whether Conrad has deliberately eschewed the adjectival and even the figurative in favour of a lean, spare style, or whether he has simply tangled his style in rhetorical excesses and imprecisions.

A Concordance to Conrad's Typhoon and Other Stories and Within the Tides
Todd K. Bender and Kirsten A. Bender
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad
Originally published in 1982, this title supplies a complete verbal index, listing all the words in the texts with their locations, a word frequency table, and a field of reference which establishes a page line reference system for locating each context. The user will look first in the word frequency table to see whether or not the word in question occurs in these works. Then they will turn to the verbal index to find the line and page on which it occurs, and finally, turning to the location in the field of reference, they will find the context for their word.

A Concorance to Conrad's A Set of Six

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad

Originally published in 1981, this concordance to A Set of Six will assist readers in understanding the vocabulary of a group of stories of considerable artistic merit and also of importance to our grasp of Conrad's total works. It is particularly important, however, that this volume of tables be available to the serious scholar of Conrad, because it provides a basis for comparison of his various short works. This volume gives a verbal index, listing all the words used by Conrad in A Set of Six with the page and line number in which the word occurs. The user turns from the verbal index to the field of reference to see the word in its full context.

The Art of Failure

Conrad's Fiction

Suresh Raval
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad

First published in 1986, this is a powerful and original book. It offers textual interpretation of Conrad's major work and articulates the subtlety and richness of his treatment of social-political institutions and of the forces that complicate and distort private and public life. The author argues that the social-personal relations in Conrad's fiction cannot be conceived apart from their existence in the political life of a community; but at the same time they cannot be accommodated institutionally. This important study brings philosophical and literary interests to bear on Conrad's major fiction and illuminates those aspects of his art which have puzzled and fascinated his readers.

The Sea Dreamer

A Definitive Biography of Joseph Conrad

Gérard Jean-Aubry
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Joseph Conrad

First published in 1957, the year of the centenary of Conrad's birth, and although he was firmly established among the world's great literary figures, little was known about him generally, beyond the fact that he was himself once a sailor, and that the language he handled with such mastery was not the one to which he was born. This was described as the definitive biography, written by one of Conrad's closest friends, to whom the novelist willed his personal papers. It took many years to prepare and the author travelled extensively in the lands that Conrad knew and wrote about. This is a record of the strangest and most enigmatic of lives, both fascinating and authoritative.

The Jewish Presence in Latin America
Edited by Judith Lainkin Elkin and Gilbert Merkx
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Jewish History and Identity
Originally published in 1987, this collection of essays is a major contribution toward developing a realistic picture of the Latin American Jewish communities in the late 20th Century. The book will be of interest to students of comparative studies, Jewish studies and Latin American studies and responds to the need to learn more about the Jewish communities of Latin America, both as a fragment of the Jewish diaspora and as an element in the economic and social life of the continent.

Jews, Antisemitism and Culture in Vienna
Edited by Ivar Oxaal, Michael Pollak and Gerhard Botz
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Jewish History and Identity
Originally published in 1987, this book explores the emergence, structure and ultimate fate of the Viennese Jewish community. Thirteen eminent specialists on Viennese social, political and cultural history combine to cover a wide variety of topics, including the social and psychological causes of the highly successful and intellectually creative position held by the Jewish community as a minority within the larger Viennese society. They also analyse the conservative politics of the pre-1914 Jewish community, and their relationship both to Zionism and to Austro-Manirism.

Organizing Rescue
Jewish National Solidarity in the Modern Period
Edited by S. Ilan Troen and Benjamin Pinkus
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Jewish History and Identity
Upheavals of the modern period have dramatically changed the traditional pattern of the rescue of Jews by Jews. The dynamics and achievements of organized rescue in the modern period are critically assessed in this volume, which includes 18 interpretive essays and case studies by leading European, American and Israeli scholars. The introductory essays examine the roots of Jewish solidarity in Jewish law, and trace the transformation of rescue activity from a religious to a largely secular undertaking. These studies illuminate and evaluate the efforts of Jews to defend and preserve communities separated by vast distances and diverse cultural and political systems.

Between Redemption & Perdition
Modern Antisemitism and Jewish Identity
Robert S. Wistrich
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Jewish History and Identity
Originally published in 1990, this book focuses on the challenge to Jewish identity posed by the conflicting forces of enlightenment, emancipation, modern political antisemitism, and secular ideologies like Zionism, nationalism, and socialism. At the heart of his discussion stands the tragic encounter of Jews with Germans and Austrians. He also deals at length with the new problems of Jewish cultural and political identity posed by the existence of the state of Israel and its embattled position among the nations.
Jewish Writing and Identity in the Twentieth Century

Leon Israel Yudkin
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Jewish History and Identity

This book, originally published in 1982, analyses the characteristics of the Jewish sense of identity as it appears in twentieth-century Jewish literature. It considers the work of a variety of authors who wrote in different periods and countries, and shows how their Jewish background pervades their writing. Some of the authors discussed are Franz Kafka, Osip Mandelstam, Henry Roth, Giorgio Bassani, S.Y. Agnon, Saul Bellow and Norman Mailer. This book will be particularly useful since a complete understanding of the Jews in the twentieth century can only be gained by appreciating their literary and intellectual achievements.

The Sephardim of England
A History of the Spanish and Portuguese Jewish Community 1492-1951

Albert M. Hyamson
Series: Routledge Library Editions: Jewish History and Identity

Originally published in 1951, this book explores the development in England of the Sephardi branch of the Jewish community, the co-heirs, with their kinsmen in Holland, in Italy, in North America and in the Middle East, of the Golden Age of Jewish history in Spain. Based on archival history from within the community, it was the first full-length history of the Sephardi community in England and describes how this little Jewish community in England since the Middle Ages, grew, prospered and contributed the wealth and influence of London, and eventually producing in Disraeli one of England’s greatest Prime Ministers.

The Psychology of Everything is a series of books which debunk the popular myths and pseudo-science surrounding some of life’s biggest questions. The series explores the hidden psychological factors that drive us, from our subconscious desires and aversions, to our natural social instincts. Absorbing, informative, and always intriguing, each book is written by an expert in the field, examining how research-based knowledge compares with popular wisdom, and showing how psychology can truly enrich our understanding of modern life.
